Berlin Expecting New Riot Splurge

Battered City Braces Self For Communist Demonstration Set For Today; Reds Even Order Children Into Rally

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Riot-torn Berlin braced itself tonight for a Communist demonstration. Under the slogan "anybody who doesn't march tomorrow is a Nazi," the Communists were reported to have ordered even children to turn out for a Sunday rally against the western powers.

American officials frankly stated that the situation had become "highly dangerous," with Germans meeting under one power to demonstrate against another power. In Washington top British and American officials met in extraordinary session on the Berlin crisis.

The sabbath demonstration is set for the Lustgarten (Garden of Pleasure), about a half mile inside the Soviet sector of Berlin. The rally was called to protest Thursday's anti-Russian mass meeting which touched off street fighting.

After the most violent week in the 79-day-old Soviet blockade, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, U. S. military governor, said:

"Mass demonstrations are not the way to solve the present Berlin situation."

The Americans planned to imitate the British in the U. S. sector within "incident range" of the Russian boundary. Both British and Americans acknowledged that it was difficult to prohibit anti-Communist outbursts altogether in view of the Russian-backed drive to oust the elected city government.

Western German police mobilized strong forces to guard the sector boundaries against a possible invasion of demonstrators from the eastern zone rally.

The Germans, long split along east-west lines, this week grew bolder as a result of the four-power snarl.

SAWYER BLAMES CONGRESS WITH COMMERCE ILLS

Says Solons Slashed Appropriations Necessary To Control All Exports

COMMITTEE IS CHECKING INTO ALLEGED FORGERYS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Secretary of Commerce Sawyer today blamed congressional neglect of his department in 1946 and 1947 for export control irregularities now under fire on Capitol Hill.

A senate investigating committee has been looking into reports of forged export papers and other documents being used by some shippers to get scarce goods out of this country.

Sawyer, labelling the committee's inquiry "another show," for possible election year purposes, said:

"In 1946 and 1947 congress slashed the export control appropriation to a starvation level, so that it was physically impossible either to employ the people or buy the equipment needed to make controls fully tight and effective.

"The office of international trade, for two years and more existed on a beggar's rations and occupied a death cell.

OUACHITA VALLEY FAIR TO OPEN

Exhibition, Bigger And Better Than Ever, To Start On October 4

The Ouachita Valley Fair will conduct its meeting this year during the week beginning October 4. All exhibits must be entered on October 4, and the fair will be officially opened to the public on Tuesday, October 5.

Officers of the fair association are as follows: Tom Hicks, president; Bruce Brooks, first vice-president; John McCormick, second vice-president; A. Petrus, secretary-treasurer; John H. Birdsong, general manager.

In addition to the regular staff of fair officers, the following are, by their connection with the Ouachita Parish Agriculture Association, ex-officio members of the fair staff: J. J. Joyce, parish agricultural agent; Mrs. Jewel McQuiller, home demonstration agent; Mrs. Audrey H. Dawson, director, girl's 4-H Club, and Mrs. Mildred Swift, city home demonstration agent. None of the officials draw any compensation whatever, but volunteer their services free of charge in the public interest.

The fair association has delayed its initial announcement because of the rodeo being presently held in West Monroe, for fear there might be some confusion in the minds of the public, whereas there is no connection whatever between the two activities.

MULHEARN DRIVER ATTACKED BY NEGRO

Monroe police were searching for an unidentified Negro man late last night after he was slashed with a knife while robbing a Mulhearn ambulance driver.

The Negro attacked the ambulance driver last night shortly before 8 p. m. in an alley at the rear of Mulhearn Funeral Home, as he started to move an automobile from the alley to the garage.

The attacked man, Morris Barnett, 20, 1400 South Tihrd street, was knocked unconscious for a few seconds, when the Negro struck him on the side of the head with his fist. He was unconscious for only a short while.

When he came to himself, Barnett said, the Negro had taken his wallet, containing about $30 and was searching through his other pockets. Barnett quickly made for his pocket knife and slashed the Negro across his stomach.

When the Negro was struck with the knife, he fled down the alley, Barnett said.

Barnett was not injured other than slight bruises and scratches around the face.

Police, who were called to the scene, launched an investigation but nothing concerning the case was given late last night.

8,000 Refugees Are Taken Off Volcano-Ravished Island By Big Ship

MANILA, Sept. 11.—(AP)—One U. S. army transport was removing 8,000 refugees from the volcano-ravished island of Camiguin tonight and another was en route to help rescue additional thousands.

Mt. Hibokhibok, which has been erupting since Sept. 1, continued to fume, but Philippines government experts said its noxious gases no longer were deadly.

A landslide had filled one of the volcano's craters, reducing the eruption but increasing the potential danger. Fear was expressed that a terrific eruption might occur if pressure increased beneath the plug.

Capt. Walter Williams of the transport General William Weigel radioed that he was removing 8,000 persons from the town of Sagay on the south coast of Camiguin and would

GENERALS SAY ARMY LACKS PUNCH TO HALT REAL BLITZ

GRAFENWOEHR, Germany, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Two American generals told officers of the U. S. First Infantry division today to expect the worst if war breaks out in Europe, saying American soldiers lack the planes and guns that make up a real punch.

The speakers were Maj. Gen. Frank W. Milburn, division commander, and Brig. Gen. John McKee, former commander of the 87th infantry division.

The opinions came out of a survey of the famed division's conduct in a three-day mock-war in which it got kicked around by an "aggressor" force. The maneuvers resume next Monday, when a mythical six divisions will not only attack, but according to plans, win.

Standing on a hillside, Gen. Milburn said to his staff:

"In the next war, if we get hopped on, we will not have air and artillery superiority, so everyone must go on the assumption that we have no air support at all and we must dig in, camouflage and fight a delaying action."

Said General McKee:

"We have operated in these maneuvers apparently the same as we did at the close of the last war * * * that is, that we have air superiority. That will not be true in the next war, certainly not in the initial phases."

Milburn also told the officers to explain down to the last GI just why the division is practicing to fall back.

The problem, he asserted, pits—or will pit next week—a supposed force too strong for one division to handle.

Therefore, the general said, the men must understand how to hide and skulk, how to infiltrate and to retreat to gain time.

The maneuver problem assumed a striking force of great power from the east, with the U. S. infantry trying to delay the sweep towards the Rhine.

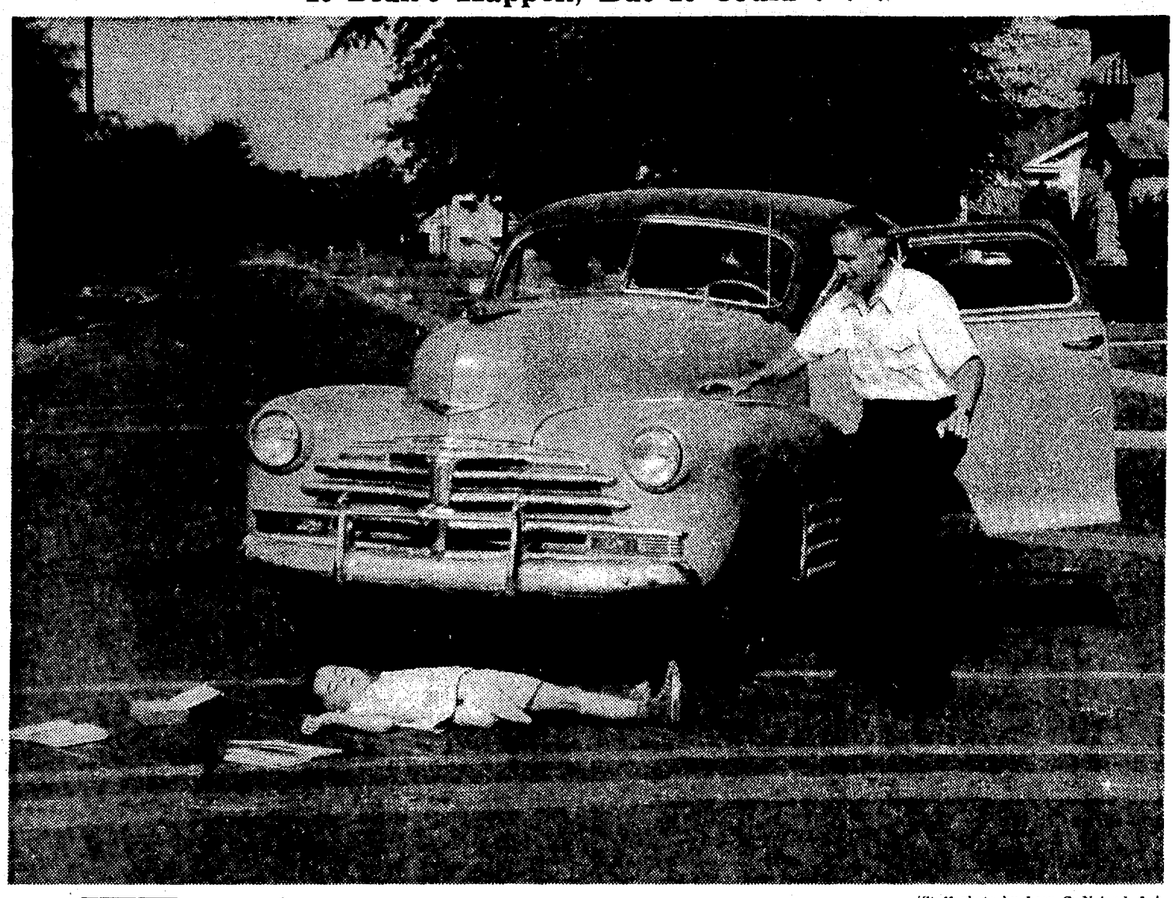

Except for a somewhat "complacent" attitude on the air phase, Milburn found little criticism of his forces.

He said it was the "best division I ever have seen, and that includes all those that jumped off in the last war."

ALL SCHOOLS IN PARISH TO OPEN

City And Outlying Areas Here To Initiate Fall Term Monday

School bells will ring Monday to initiate the school year of 1948-49. All three systems of schools will start their semester on the same day. They are the Ouachita parish, Monroe city schools and the St. Matthew's parochial schools.

For days improvements generally have been made on grounds and in buildings to make ready for the opening. There will be a far larger enrollment than ever it is estimated, as Supt. G. S. Manning of the parish schools anticipates that there will be probably as many as 1,000 additional students this year and the city of Monroe also expects almost as many, as children born in early war-time are now of sufficient age to attend school for the first time.

To meet needs, the parish schools will have 32 additional teachers and rooms have been added at Selman field and in a number of the outlying parish schools.

The city of Monroe also is prepared to accommodate larger numbers than usual, and at both systems it was stated Saturday that there will be ample provision made for all who desire to attend, which affords a decided contrast to conditions a year ago when many schools were crowded beyond their capacity.

Schools in both public systems will dismiss at noon on Monday and Tuesday, with a full day of operation for the remaining three days of the first week.

A joint statement issued by officials of both systems indicates lunches will be served to children beginning Wednesday where lunchrooms were operated last session with federal and state assistance. Funds from these sources this year are suf-

Spy Checkers Are Certain Soviet Has Atomic Secret

Republican Congressman Says Penetration To Bomb Plans Was Great; Committee Will Continue Query

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Congressional spy investigators said today that an army expert on atomic energy is "certain" Russian agents stole some wartime atom bomb secrets.

Furthermore, Representative Vail (R-Ill.), said in a statement, this high officer was so concerned over "the intense activity of Russian espionage agents in their efforts to penetrate atomic research safeguards" that he personally reported on these activities to the late President Roosevelt and then to President Truman.

Vail did not name the officer but said he had testified under oath at closed-door hearings of the house un-American activities committee in the past week. Obviously he meant Lt. Gen. Leslie R. Groves who directed the $2,000,000,000 A-bomb project during the war.

Groves appeared before the committee yesterday but merely hinted to reporters afterward that there might have been some leaks of atomic secrets.

Vail said the officer testified that Russian spies tried to get atomic secret both "before and during his association with the project" and that he so informed the two presidents.

"This statement," Vail said, "as a direct contradiction of Truman's contention that Communists were not involved in war-time espionage."

Mr. Truman told a news conference ten days ago that during the war the Russians were our allies and the Germans and Japanese were the real spies.

Vail said it would appear from facts obtained by the house committee that

Jes' Ramblin'

Three ladies of Monroe set forth to attend the first autumn meeting of one of the oldest and most sedate organizations hereabouts on Friday afternoon. Two were school teachers, one of whom was slated to present the principal address of the afternoon, the other was a charming and dignified well-known middle-aged woman who was to accompany aforesaid younger women. All three, in honor of the occasion attired themselves in their most attractive costumes which included expansive fall hats with veil, white gloves and in the case of the elder woman a corsage and veil were added to round out feminine charms.

One of the teachers had arranged to convey the other two to the meeting place and at the correct time she set forth to the lower end of the city to pick up her school teacher friend. In cheery mood she quickly arrived in her car at the home of the friend who lost no time in boarding the car. But then the fun started. The car, with the sudden stubbornness of a Georgia mule ("Jarhead" they call 'em in Georgia) refused to function. No amount of persuasion would start the engine. There they sat and tried, talked and planned, all to no avail. A call was of necessity placed to a downtown garage to come and get them and as minutes seemed like hours, they awaited the arrival of a

LONG BUGGY TRIP IS AHEAD OF BROTHERS

COOS BAY, Ore., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Two Fairbanks, Alaska, brothers prepared today to take it easy on the rest of their trip to the Mardi Gras in New Orleans.

They're going by horse and buggy, instead of just on horseback.

Dan Peger, 25, and Ray Peger, 21, went from Fairbanks to Yakima, Wash., by car. At Yakima they traded the car for two horses.

It took them a month to ride the 300 miles from Yakima here, and got a bit tiresome. So they hunted up a comfortable buggy for the remainder of the trip.

The brothers, who are looking for a farm to buy as they travel, expected to reach New Orleans just in time for the February Mardi Gras.

SIAMESE TWINS ARE BORN IN MICHIGAN

LANSING, Mich., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Dr. Thomas M. Spaulding said today that Siamese twin girls born to a Holt, Mich., couple would be joined together as long as they lived.

"There is no possibility of their being surgically separated," the attending physician announced.

The strange babies were reported in poor condition in Edward Sparrow Hospital here where they were born at 4:35 a. m. (E. S. T.) September 5.

"It is necessary to keep them in oxygen constantly," Dr. Spaulding explained. "The babies are joined at the pelvis and lower abdomen. They have a separate upper abdomen, chest, head and arms."

The rare birth occurred to Mrs. Robert Rick, wife of a Lansing truck driver. The young wife was reported in good condition.

The children together weighed nine pounds, one ounce.

JUNIOR COLLEGE TO BEGIN WORK

New School Session At Local Campus Will Get Underway Next Wednesday

Northeast Junior College will inaugurate the work of the new school session on Wednesday, September 15.

There will be fewer veterans in the student body than last year because the majority of these have now reached the senior college level. However, a goodly number of veteran students is expected.

Requests for room reservations and other advance notices of prospective enrollment have been high. The freshman group is expected to be the largest in the history of the college, veterans excepted.

Bus routes have been organized to serve communities throughout the territory served by N. J. C. By means of the buses thus made available, students from Oak Grove, Epps, Pioneer, Delhi, Rayville, Bonita, Mer Rouge, Bastrop, Urania, Olla, Kelly, Clarks, Grayson, Columbia, Wisner, Gilbert, Winnsboro, Baskin, Mangham, and a host of intermediate points will be able to commute daily between their homes and the college at very low cost. Of great additional importance is the fact that college students living on one of the bus routes operated by the Ouachita parish school board are permitted to ride these buses to and

Court Action Is Threatened

Primm Calls For State's Voters To Overthrow 'High-Handed And Arbitrary Act'; Says Citizens Won't Get Free Choice

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The Democratic national committee called on Louisiana voters today to overturn the "flagrantly dishonest and fraudulent" barring of President Truman's name from the state's ballot.

In a hotly-worded statement threatening possible court action, William J. Primm, Jr., assistant to National Chairman J. Howard McGrath, challenged action of the state's Democratic committee in substituting the States' Rights ticket for the Truman-Barkley combination.

Primm said this "high-handed and arbitrary act" had "deprived the people of Louisiana of a free ballot," adding:

"This action cannot be tolerated and will not be tolerated by the people of Louisiana."

Primm noted that the States' Rights party supporters had qualified under Louisiana law as a separate party, choosing 10 electors for Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi, their nominees.

He said the state Democratic committee by its action in approving this slate had "committed a fraud on their own people."

"The Dixiecrats have every right to form a new party," he declared, "but the tactics they are employing in taking over the Democratic party machinery in certain states and thereby depriving the people of those states of a free ballot is intolerable. Such methods are flagrantly dishonest and fraudulent."

Primm promised that "every legal means at the command of the national committee" will be used to get Mr. Truman back on the ballot in Louisiana.

He topped this threat of court action with another call for Democratic committee officials who are supporting the States' Rights ticket to resign their party posts.

Primm said this would apply to William H. Talbot of New Orleans, Democratic national committeeman, and a member of the Louisiana state party's executive committee.

Asked what would happen if Talbot and others refused to quit, Primm pointed to a section of the national party's by-laws. This gives the national committee the right to expell members who don't support the regular Democratic nominees.

Primm said such action had been taken in 1896 by the national committee. He would not forecast a similar move by the present committee.

In New Orleans Talbot was quick to reply.

"It's true I am a national committeeman," he said, "a member of the group that makes up the steering committee of the national party.

"But that doesn't mean if the national group decides to mislead the people that I am going to sit silently by and not express my views or those of my people."

Talbot reiterated that he will not resign, and insisted the U. S. supreme court has upheld the state committees as supreme.

"If expel they will," he added, "it's their move."

Merrit H. Gibson, States' Rights national campaign director, said in a statement that the Louisiana action puts 45 southern electoral votes "in the bag" for the Thurmond-Wright ticket.

The States' Righters meanwhile came up with a new wrinkle in Georgia.

They predicted the state Democratic committee there will name 12 un-

TRUMAN BACKERS MAY GET CHANCE AT TEN ELECTORS

NECESSARY FOR ELECTORS TO GIVE NAMES TO CLERK

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 11.—(AP)—President Truman's supporters in Louisiana have an outside chance of recapturing the state's ten electoral votes, but they'll have to work fast and the odds are plenty steep.

That, in effect, is the curbstone opinion of Louisiana Secretary of State Wade O. Martin, Jr.

Martin was discussing yesterday's political coup in which Mr. Truman and his vice-presidential running mate, Sen. Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, were denied a place on the ballot. They were relegated to a "write-in", status when the Democratic state central committee voted to identify itself with states' righters Thurmond and Wright.

Martin sizes it up like this:

"Under our law, there are two ways you can get elector nominees on the printed ballot. One is by submitting their names through the governing body of the party. The other is by filing nominating papers, signed by a thousand non-affiliated voters, prior to the primary election, which was Aug. 31 this year.

"The only other way they can get on the ballot at all is as write-in candidates. This is done by notifying the clerks of court in each of the

HURRICANE IS FOUND 1,100 MILES AT SEA

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 11.—(AP)—An Atlantic storm, about 1,100 miles east of Miami, has grown into a full-fledged hurricane with 115 miles an hour winds in the center.

In an advisory issued at 5:45 p. m. (EST) the weather bureau said the "severe storm" had been accurately located by reconnaissance planes at about 530 miles northeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico, and moving northwestward at 18 to 20 miles an hour.

Aircraft probing the heart of the storm found winds up to 115 miles an hour in the center and heavy squalls and gale winds (up to 65 miles an hour) for some 200 miles north and east of the center.

It was expected the hurricane would continue its forward movement on the northwest path for at least 12 to 18 hours.

"Caution is advised all shipping in the path of this severe storm," the advisory warned.

FRENCH HAVEN IS CLOSED TO DAVIS

PARIS, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Garry Davis, a young American who renounced his citizenship at the U. S. embassy here May 25, said tonight he had been ordered out of France.

He said he planned to take refuge tomorrow on United Nations soil in Paris, which is to be host to the U. N. general assembly session opening Sept. 21.

Davis, 26, is the son of an American orchestra leader, Meyer Davis, and himself a war-time flier and former Broadway actor.

He said he renounced his citizenship and gave up his passport "to focus the attention of men upon the vital need for a world government to avert the coming war."

French police gave him a special permit to stay in France, but Davis said they had now told him that "I must be out of France on Sept. 12."

"I am aware that I cannot seek protection from the United Nations itself," said Davis, "for it is merely a loose collection of fully sovereign states.

"However, this territory has been identified as a common meeting ground for all nations and so has rightfully been designated 'international.'"

He said that "since I cannot legally leave this territory" he saw nothing to do but stay there, until the assembly made a "constructive move" towards a world government or failed to.

LABOR-MANAGEMENT BATTLES GO BACK AND FORTH IN U. S.

(By Associated Press)

The battle-scarred dove of labor-management peace got more slaps and pats Saturday.

The bright side: A union drive for individual settlements gained new ground in the New York truck drivers strike and the independent Aeronautical Mechanics Union made preparations to return to work Monday at the Boeing Airplane Company's Seattle plant after a 140-day strike.

The dark side: New obstacles arose to settlement of the west coast C. I. O. Longshoremen's strike and movement of piled-up army cargoes.

Making new inroads on the once-solid employers front, the A. F. of L. Teamsters Union announced that 285 New York operators, employing 2,278 of the union's 9,400 struck members, had signed up on the union's new scaled-down terms of a 17 1/2 cents hourly wage boost. A committee representing all employers refused to go beyond 15 cents. The strike started 12 days ago, with the union demanding 25 cents plus an employer financed welfare plan.

Possibility of a jurisdictional battle with the A. F. of L. Teamsters Union and a company ban on rehiring "a small number of subversives" complicated the Boeing plant strike settlement. Some 14,800 workers struck April 22, but the company claimed more than 8,000 workers were on the job when the union voted to end its walkout.

Possibility of a new telephone workers demonstration—like the four-hour strike of October, 1945—was announced by several rival telephone unions preparing to open wage talks with the Bell Telephone System. The unions, claiming to represent 375,000 workers, called for another joint meeting Sept. 24—eight days after negotiations are scheduled to start. A spokesman in Washington said the demonstration may be called to enforce pay demands for a wage boost

School bells will ring Monday to initiate the school year of 1948-49. All three systems of schools will start their semester on the same day. They are the Ouachita parish, Monroe city schools and the St. Matthew's parochial schools.

For days improvements generally have been made on grounds and in buildings to make ready for the opening. There will be a far larger enrollment than ever it is estimated, as Supt. G. S. Manning of the parish schools anticipates that there will be probably as many as 1,000 additional students this year and the city of Monroe also expects almost as many, as children born in early war-time are now of sufficient age to attend school for the first time.

To meet needs, the parish schools will have 32 additional teachers and rooms have been added at Selman field and in a number of the outlying parish schools.

The city of Monroe also is prepared to accommodate larger numbers than usual, and at both systems it was stated Saturday that there will be ample provision made for all who desire to attend, which affords a decided contrast to conditions a year ago when many schools were crowded beyond their capacity.

Schools in both public systems will dismiss at noon on Monday and Tuesday, with a full day of operation for the remaining three days of the first week.

A joint statement issued by officials of both systems indicates lunches will be served to children beginning Wednesday where lunchrooms were operated last session with federal and state assistance. Funds from these sources this year are suf-

Spy Checkers Are Certain Soviet Has Atomic Secret

Republican Congressman Says Penetration To Bomb Plans Was Great; Committee Will Continue Query

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Congressional spy investigators said today that an army expert on atomic energy is "certain" Russian agents stole some wartime atom bomb secrets.

Furthermore, Representative Vail (R-Ill.), said in a statement, this high officer was so concerned over "the intense activity of Russian espionage agents in their efforts to penetrate atomic research safeguards" that he personally reported on these activities to the late President Roosevelt and then to President Truman.

Vail did not name the officer but said he had testified under oath at closed-door hearings of the house un-American activities committee in the past week. Obviously he meant Lt. Gen. Leslie R. Groves who directed the $2,000,000,000 A-bomb project during the war.

Groves appeared before the committee yesterday but merely hinted to reporters afterward that there might have been some leaks of atomic secrets.

Vail said the officer testified that Russian spies tried to get atomic secret both "before and during his association with the project" and that he so informed the two presidents.

"This statement," Vail said, "as a direct contradiction of Truman's contention that Communists were not involved in war-time espionage."

Mr. Truman told a news conference ten days ago that during the war the Russians were our allies and the Germans and Japanese were the real spies.

Jes' Ramblin'

Three ladies of Monroe set forth to attend the first autumn meeting of one of the oldest and most sedate organizations hereabouts on Friday afternoon. Two were school teachers, one of whom was slated to present the principal address of the afternoon, the other was a charming and dignified well-known middle-aged woman who was to accompany aforesaid younger women. All three, in honor of the occasion attired themselves in their most attractive costumes which included expansive fall hats with veil, white gloves and in the case of the elder woman a corsage and veil were added to round out feminine charms.

One of the teachers had arranged to convey the other two to the meeting place and at the correct time she set forth to the lower end of the city to pick up her school teacher friend. In cheery mood she quickly arrived in her car at the home of the friend who lost no time in boarding the car. But then the fun started. The car, with the sudden stubbornness of a Georgia mule ("Jarhead" they call 'em in Georgia) refused to function. No amount of persuasion would start the engine. There they sat and tried, talked and planned, all to no avail. A call was of necessity placed to a downtown garage to come and get them and as minutes seemed like hours, they awaited the arrival of a

COOS BAY, Ore., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Two Fairbanks, Alaska, brothers prepared today to take it easy on the rest of their trip to the Mardi Gras in New Orleans.

They're going by horse and buggy, instead of just on horseback.

Dan Peger, 25, and Ray Peger, 21, went from Fairbanks to Yakima, Wash., by car. At Yakima they traded the car for two horses.

It took them a month to ride the 300 miles from Yakima here, and got a bit tiresome. So they hunted up a comfortable buggy for the remainder of the trip.

The brothers, who are looking for a farm to buy as they travel, expected to reach New Orleans just in time for the February Mardi Gras.

SIAMESE TWINS ARE BORN IN MICHIGAN

LANSING, Mich., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Dr. Thomas M. Spaulding said today that Siamese twin girls born to a Holt, Mich., couple would be joined together as long as they lived.

"There is no possibility of their being surgically separated," the attending physician announced.

The strange babies were reported in poor condition in Edward Sparrow Hospital here where they were born at 4:35 a. m. (E. S. T.) September 5.

"It is necessary to keep them in oxygen constantly," Dr. Spaulding explained. "The babies are joined at the pelvis and lower abdomen. They have a separate upper abdomen, chest, head and arms."

The rare birth occurred to Mrs. Robert Rick, wife of a Lansing truck driver. The young wife was reported in good condition.

The children together weighed nine pounds, one ounce.

JUNIOR COLLEGE TO BEGIN WORK

New School Session At Local Campus Will Get Underway Next Wednesday

Northeast Junior College will inaugurate the work of the new school session on Wednesday, September 15.

There will be fewer veterans in the student body than last year because the majority of these have now reached the senior college level. However, a goodly number of veteran students is expected.

Requests for room reservations and other advance notices of prospective enrollment have been high. The freshman group is expected to be the largest in the history of the college, veterans excepted.

Bus routes have been organized to serve communities throughout the territory served by N. J. C. By means of the buses thus made available, students from Oak Grove, Epps, Pioneer, Delhi, Rayville, Bonita, Mer Rouge, Bastrop, Urania, Olla, Kelly, Clarks, Grayson, Columbia, Wisner, Gilbert, Winnsboro, Baskin, Mangham, and a host of intermediate points will be able to commute daily between their homes and the college at very low cost. Of great additional importance is the fact that college students living on one of the bus routes operated by the Ouachita parish school board are permitted to ride these buses to and

(By Associated Press)

The battle-scarred dove of labor-management peace got more slaps and pats Saturday.

The bright side: A union drive for individual settlements gained new ground in the New York truck drivers strike and the independent Aeronautical Mechanics Union made preparations to return to work Monday at the Boeing Airplane Company's Seattle plant after a 140-day strike.

The dark side: New obstacles arose to settlement of the west coast C. I. O. Longshoremen's strike and movement of piled-up army cargoes.

Making new inroads on the once-solid employers front, the A. F. of L. Teamsters Union announced that 285 New York operators, employing 2,278 of the union's 9,400 struck members, had signed up on the union's new scaled-down terms of a 17 1/2 cents hourly wage boost. A committee representing all employers refused to go beyond 15 cents. The strike started 12 days ago, with the union demanding 25 cents plus an employer financed welfare plan.

Possibility of a jurisdictional battle with the A. F. of L. Teamsters Union and a company ban on rehiring "a small number of subversives" complicated the Boeing plant strike settlement. Some 14,800 workers struck April 22, but the company claimed more than 8,000 workers were on the job when the union voted to end its walkout.

Possibility of a new telephone workers demonstration—like the four-hour strike of October, 1945—was announced by several rival telephone unions preparing to open wage talks with the Bell Telephone System. The unions, claiming to represent 375,000 workers, called for another joint meeting Sept. 24—eight days after negotiations are scheduled to start. A spokesman in Washington said the demonstration may be called to enforce pay demands for a wage boost

Primm Calls For State's Voters To Overthrow 'High-Handed And Arbitrary Act'; Says Citizens Won't Get Free Choice

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The Democratic national committee called on Louisiana voters today to overturn the "flagrantly dishonest and fraudulent" barring of President Truman's name from the state's ballot.

In a hotly-worded statement threatening possible court action, William J. Primm, Jr., assistant to National Chairman J. Howard McGrath, challenged action of the state's Democratic committee in substituting the States' Rights ticket for the Truman-Barkley combination.

Primm said this "high-handed and arbitrary act" had "deprived the people of Louisiana of a free ballot," adding:

"This action cannot be tolerated and will not be tolerated by the people of Louisiana."

Primm noted that the States' Rights party supporters had qualified under Louisiana law as a separate party, choosing 10 electors for Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi, their nominees.

He said the state Democratic committee by its action in approving this slate had "committed a fraud on their own people."

"The Dixiecrats have every right to form a new party," he declared, "but the tactics they are employing in taking over the Democratic party machinery in certain states and thereby depriving the people of those states of a free ballot is intolerable. Such methods are flagrantly dishonest and fraudulent."

Primm promised that "every legal means at the command of the national committee" will be used to get Mr. Truman back on the ballot in Louisiana.

He topped this threat of court action with another call for Democratic committee officials who are supporting the States' Rights ticket to resign their party posts.

Primm said this would apply to William H. Talbot of New Orleans, Democratic national committeeman, and a member of the Louisiana state party's executive committee.

Asked what would happen if Talbot and others refused to quit, Primm pointed to a section of the national party's by-laws. This gives the national committee the right to expell members who don't support the regular Democratic nominees.

Primm said such action had been taken in 1896 by the national committee. He would not forecast a similar move by the present committee.

In New Orleans Talbot was quick to reply.

"It's true I am a national committeeman," he said, "a member of the group that makes up the steering committee of the national party.

"But that doesn't mean if the national group decides to mislead the people that I am going to sit silently by and not express my views or those of my people."

Talbot reiterated that he will not resign, and insisted the U. S. supreme court has upheld the state committees as supreme.

"If expel they will," he added, "it's their move."

Merrit H. Gibson, States' Rights national campaign director, said in a statement that the Louisiana action puts 45 southern electoral votes "in the bag" for the Thurmond-Wright ticket.

The States' Righters meanwhile came up with a new wrinkle in Georgia.

They predicted the state Democratic committee there will name 12 un-

TRUMAN BACKERS MAY GET CHANCE AT TEN ELECTORS

NECESSARY FOR ELECTORS TO GIVE NAMES TO CLERK

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 11.—(AP)—President Truman's supporters in Louisiana have an outside chance of recapturing the state's ten electoral votes, but they'll have to work fast and the odds are plenty steep.

That, in effect, is the curbstone opinion of Louisiana Secretary of State Wade O. Martin, Jr.

Martin was discussing yesterday's political coup in which Mr. Truman and his vice-presidential running mate, Sen. Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, were denied a place on the ballot. They were relegated to a "write-in" status when the Democratic state central committee voted to identify itself with states' righters Thurmond and Wright.

Martin sizes it up like this:

"Under our law, there are two ways you can get elector nominees on the printed ballot. One is by submitting their names through the governing body of the party. The other is by filing nominating papers, signed by a thousand non-affiliated voters, prior to the primary election, which was Aug. 31 this year.

"The only other way they can get on the ballot at all is as write-in candidates. This is done by notifying the clerks of court in each of the

HURRICANE IS FOUND 1,100 MILES AT SEA

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 11.—(AP)—An Atlantic storm, about 1,100 miles east of Miami, has grown into a full-fledged hurricane with 115 miles an hour winds in the center.

In an advisory issued at 5:45 p. m. (EST) the weather bureau said the "severe storm" had been accurately located by reconnaissance planes at about 530 miles northeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico, and moving northwestward at 18 to 20 miles an hour.

Aircraft probing the heart of the storm found winds up to 115 miles an hour in the center and heavy squalls and gale winds (up to 65 miles an hour) for some 200 miles north and east of the center.

It was expected the hurricane would continue its forward movement on the northwest path for at least 12 to 18 hours.

"Caution is advised all shipping in the path of this severe storm," the advisory warned.

FRENCH HAVEN IS CLOSED TO DAVIS

PARIS, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Garry Davis, a young American who renounced his citizenship at the U. S. embassy here May 25, said tonight he had been ordered out of France.

He said he planned to take refuge tomorrow on United Nations soil in Paris, which is to be host to the U. N. general assembly session opening Sept. 21.

Davis, 26, is the son of an American orchestra leader, Meyer Davis, and himself a war-time flier and former Broadway actor.

He said he renounced his citizenship and gave up his passport "to focus the attention of men upon the vital need for a world government to avert the coming war."

French police gave him a special permit to stay in France, but Davis said they had now told him that "I must be out of France on Sept. 12."

"I am aware that I cannot seek protection from the United Nations itself," said Davis, "for it is merely a loose collection of fully sovereign states.

"However, this territory has been identified as a common meeting ground for all nations and so has rightfully been designated 'international.'"

He said that "since I cannot legally leave this territory" he saw nothing to do but stay there, until the assembly made a "constructive move" towards a world government or failed to.

LITTLE THEATRE HEAD SEEKS AID

President Frank Breese Urges Public To Join Organization

Frank Breese, president of the Monroe Little Theatre, traces the history of this group here. The campaign for members has already started and it is hoped to exceed all past memberships.

Explaining the project, the president states:

"America is mostly made up of not large fast-moving cities, but of small communities such as our own here in Monroe, where one knows one's neighbors, smiles at their idiosyncracies and applauds their merits. Few smaller cities have professional theatres and rely for their stage plays upon the passing stock companies, or New York shows on tour. This handicap was the incentive which promoted the founding of Little Theatre groups throughout America. In such groups the plays of the New York season could be given. To put on first class productions requires more than acting ability. It requires the funds for lighting, for costumes and for stage scenery. At this point, we would remind our readers that Lake Charles a much smaller community than our own, has placed its Little Theatre amongst the 12 foremost in the United States. How has this achievement been accomplished? The answer lies with the people. Applying their personal as well as financial support they have, by these means, incorporated the Little Theatre into their lives. The Little Theatre has a very definite place in the cultural and recreational life of America. We ask of you for the approaching season of 1948-49 your interested good-will extended towards us as an encouraging handshake. In a growing city of 40,000 people we believe the Little Theatre has a place.

"For over 16 years now a small group here has helped in the early struggles for existence of our Little Theatre, giving of their time, donations and themselves. It is not their task alone, although many friendships have been made in this way and many happy hours enjoyed. We want that friendship and enjoyment to extend outwards to all people in Monroe, because we believe that is where the Little Theatre belongs—to the people.

"The season is just beginning and we are earnestly seeking your cooperation to make this season's Little Theatre a project of the people. Through your membership you are entitled to an active voice and part in all the productions scheduled for this coming year. We ask your participation—we seek your assistance.

"We are ambitious for Monroe with plans which include our own Theatre within the next few years. Any worthwhile project is worth while supporting. It not this worth while? An ambition fostered and kept alive throughout the years in spite of disappointments and setbacks; always a few new hands at the wheel, a few new eager young voices. Let us make the few many, let us accept the Little Theatre as our community project this season. In return, the board of the Little Theatre promises you good plays, staged, directed and portrayed by people you know. Histrionic talent is found in diverse places and people. Won't you join with us in finding your niche? We extend you a hearty welcome and the outstretched hand of friendship."

Mr. Passman Returns

Last Sunday we said editorially that we thought people of the state were tired of politics. Apparently a large number of our readers agreed with us, from the expressions we received during the past week.

Following our editorial, Mr. McKenzie withdrew from a second campaign against Congressman Passman. We commend Mr. McKenzie for his sparing the voters of the Fifth district another campaign. As we pointed out, Mr. Passman lacked only about 400 votes of receiving a clear majority over his two opponents, but as long as there was no majority, Mr. McKenzie, being second in the first race, had a legal right to go into a second primary. Instead, as he stated in his announcement of withdrawal, he agreed that there had been "too much politics" during the past year and that, in consideration of the people of the district and upon advice of his friends and supporters, he was withdrawing from the race.

Thus, we congratulate Mr. Passman upon his re-election. He has made a good record in congress, particularly in handling the affairs of his constituents in this district to their utmost advantage. He has been attentive to his duties for his own section of the state and he's also been present in congress for participation in deliberation on national and international affairs.

As we pointed out, Mr. Passman was anxious to obtain adequate appropriations for flood control and drainage, a matter of prime importance to Northeast Louisiana. It was particularly fitting, therefore, that upon the eve of his return to congress, it was announced from Washington that he had obtained approval of the U. S. army engineers for construction of protection for Bawcomville, near West Monroe, for various improvements of the Ouachita river system of locks and dams to provide an all-year nine-foot channel as far as Camden, Ark., and other projects throughout the district. The program now will go to the congress for funds with which to complete these projects, and we are sure Mr. Passman will with the help of his colleagues in the house, push the measure to a successful completion.

We have every confidence in his ability and energy to serve the Fifth district in a capable manner, and wish to offer him any assistance we may be able to give him in his efforts to serve his constituents.

MR. PRITCHARD LEAVES

A number of persons have expressed regret that "Dick" Pritchard, for the past 17 years engineer for the Tensas basin levee board, has been relieved of his duties.

Mr. Pritchard is thoroughly familiar with the work in which he has been associated for many years and his advice and counsel has been most valuable to the board.

The reason for Mr. Pritchard's dismissal was not announced. Some say it was "politics," but that we don't know.

We wish him success in whatever endeavor he turns to now, and thank him for his efforts in behalf of the people residing within the parishes under the jurisdiction of the board. We also congratulate the new engineer upon his appointment and hope that he enjoys the same success which marked the service of Mr. Pritchard.

SERVING THE PUBLIC

Newsprint supplies continue inadequate to meet the demand, but the nation's daily newspapers have made great progress in the last two years in modernizing and re-equipping plants. According to best advices in trade circles, more than $100,000,000 is currently being expended by newspapers in all parts of the country in expansion and modernization programs.

Newspaper circulation increased greatly during the war and this trend is continuing. On top of this, the nation's daily newspapers currently are carrying twice the advertising volume of 10 years ago. The strain on mechanical equipment, which could not be added to or replaced during the war, has been tremendous. Even today orders for new equipment must be placed many months, or years, ahead of delivery.

Modernization of press room equipment appears to be featuring a majority of the changes in plant set-up. Larger presses are needed by a majority of the nation's newspapers. Facilities for color printing are being added in many instances. Enlargement of photoengraving equipment is also being pushed.

Newspapers are serving the public as never before, and the cost is tremendous. A medium size press that cost $60,000 before the war now is quoted at twice that figure. But it is modern, fast equipment that makes the newspaper of today possible.

WATCHWORD FOR ADMIRALS

Navy men take pride in the trim, sleek lines of their fighting vessels. Their aim is to keep their ships at the peak of performance, always ready should emergency come. But there is some equipment of peace time that becomes excess in time of battle. When decks are stripped for action this surplus is jettisoned and comfort is sacrificed to efficiency.

The inspector general of the navy believes that trim ships deserve trim admirals. Too many of these officers, he finds, have taken on lines that would be considered disgraceful in a ship.

Too many, says Rear Admiral Hewlett Thebaud in a report to the chief of naval operations, "eat, drink, smoke and sit" too much. The result is excess avoirdupois which cannot be jettisoned with the ease with which surplus equipment is disposed of. If the admirals are to be at peak efficiency in emergency, they must "watch that waistline" at all times.

To impress the admirals with the importance of the inspector general's recommendation, the navy is having prepared pamphlets on diet and exercise. "Watch that waistline" is to be the watchword.

IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Gary Cooper is itching to produce, and star in, a movie based on the life story of baseball's grand old man, Connie Mack. . . . Altar-bound: Rita (Ida's sister) Lupino and Roger Anderson, New York actor, now in Hollywood for screen tests. . . . My London correspondent informs me that Ingrid Bergman was painfully, though not seriously, injured last week in a traffic crash. . . . Kirk Douglas (real name: Demsky) will ask local courts to legalize his screen monicker. . . . Hollywood dopesters are offering bets that Eric Johnson will be replaced, within the next months, as head of the M. P. A.

Ava Gardner, suffering from nerve troubles, is asking M.-G.-M. bosses to postpone the start of her next picture, "The Great Sinner." . . . Time out for Della (Mrs. Andy Russell) Norrell, who incurred a broken ankle when she fell into the partially drained family swimming pool. . . . Betty Hutton will enter an eastern clinic on her return from Europe in an effort to find out the cause of a persistent ailment that's been affecting her voice. Local medicos think it's an allergy. . . . Mel Torme and Candy Toxton are marriage-minded.

Wotzis about an independent producer having the bad taste to propose a picture based on the current dope scandal? . . . Understand Mae West will use her present courtroom adventures as the bassis for a nightclub act in which she'll be chief quipster. . . . Look for the Forrest Tuckers' marital woes to reach divorce courts soon.

PREVIEW NIGHTS: Pic of the week: United Artists' "An Innocent Affair" (Fred MacMurray-Madeleine Carroll-Charles "Buddy" Rogers). Farce comedy that will give adult audiences a bumper crop of laughs. . . . GOOD: Universal-International's "The Saxon Charm" (Robert Montgomery-Susan Hayward-John Payne-Audrey Totter). Off-the-beaten-path drama, distinguished by fine direction and brilliant performances. . . . RKO's "Station West" (Dick Powell-Jane Greer). Action melodrama with a high thrill content. . . . FAIR: 20th Century-Fox's "The Luck of the Irish" (Tyrone Power-Anne Baxter-Cecil Kellaway). Screen fantasy with very debatable audience appeal. . . . ROUTINE: Republic's "Desperadoes of Dodge City" (Allan "Rocky" Lane-Eddy Waller-Mildred Coles). Another carbon copy western. . . . BEST PERFORMANCE: Robert Montgomery in "The Saxon Charm."

Not long ago a certain major studio bought the screen rights to a hit play. It paid for it one of the most extravagant prices on record—despite the fact that the play contained much censorable material which, obviously, would have to be cleaned up before the story could be filmed. I understand, now, that writer after writer has tried his hand at that clean-up job and that all of them have failed. I also understand that the studio bosses, in despair, have almost decided to shelve the story and write off a loss of approximately $1,000,000. Well, it's an old story. Time after time studio heads have burned their fingers by buying censorable stories and censorable plays, knowing in advance that major amputations will be necessary before the M. P. A. can be expected to okay a script. The sum total of the money wasted on such idiotic ventures would pay the salaries of Allah-knows-how-many underlings who have been fired recently in the interest of "economy."

I want to doff my bonnet to Gene Autry, who's just turned down a lucrative personal appearance tour because he doesn't want to be responsible for drawing kids into theaters as long as the current polio epidemic lasts. Such a decision is in perfect keeping with Autry's entire professional policy. The welfare of the kids has always been his first consideration. This present sacrifice is one that should give the rest of the movie industry food for thought. Every doctor who's ever expressed an opinion on the subject has advocated the closing of theaters to children during the acute infantile paralysis epidemics. The parent-teachers associations have advocated it. Sure, it would cost the industry, as a whole, some admission fees—but if it saved one child from the dread disease, the loss would be a long-term gain.

I'm amused (?) by a printed quotation from Burt Lancaster. He says being a movie actor "bores" him, and that he'd be willing to do almost anything to break the monotony. I'm touched. Lancaster skyrocketed to stardom and to an affluence previously unknown to him less than two years ago. Since becoming a top-flight star he's pretty well had his pick of stories and roles. And now he's BORED! Well, he can console himself, for he doesn't suffer alone. For every Hollywoodite who's bored with stardom, there are probably a dozen Hollywoodites who are bored with stars that profess boredom.

Pitching Horseshoes
By Billy Rose

Billy Rose

New York, as anyone who lives west of the Kill van Kull will tell you, is a cold and unfriendly town. Its inhabitants don't know a starling from a starlet and, what's even worse, never borrow cups of sugar from each other.

Well, the only sugar I've ever borrowed had pictures of presidents on it, but I do know a man-sized myth when I see one. And, in my book, the chestnut about New York being heartless is a myth that's as good as a mile, if not better.

Proof? I give you the case history of Mr. Fishman and her no-good son, Joey, heart-tug by heart-tug . . .

When I was knee-high to the Allen street gutter, I used to buy my licorice whips and jawbreakers in a tiny candy store run by a Mrs. Fishman who was only a few years removed from a village in the Ukraine. There was also a Mr. Fishman, but I only remember him as a sad-faced little gent who stayed home and coughed a lot.

Somewhere around the time that Cautious Cal became our Chief executive, life started kicking the candy-store lady around. One December day she gave birth to a son named Joey, and the following April, rode out to Brooklyn in a black carriage and watched them bury Mr. Fishman. And for the next 20 years, life never let up on her.

Joey, raised in the kill-or-cure incubator that is the East Side, grew up to be a no-good, and the residents of Allen Street seldom mentioned his name without adding, "Poor Mrs. Fishman." For years he divided his time regularly between the pool room and the police line-up, but I never once heard Mrs. Fishman run her son down. According to her, it was only a matter of time before he settled down and made something of himself.

One day a couple of years ago, I went back to the old neighborhood for a look-see and a listen-hear, and Sam Carmel, who has been carrying the Allen street mail for 35 years, brought me up to date on Joey and his activities.

Sam is the kind of mailman you're supposed to find only in small towns. In addition to getting the mail through, he acts as family counsellor, information dispenser and all-around letter-writer. He speaks both Yiddish and Italian fluently, and many's the time I've seen him squat on a stoop and write a letter in one language while it was being dictated in another.

I met Sam as he was going into the walk-up tenement where Mrs. Fishman still lives. He had a long, brown envelope in his hand. "For your old friend," he explained.

"Is Joey writing her from Sing Sing?" I asked.

"Joey isn't writing from any place," said Sam. "He was killed in the war, and this is the check his mother gets every month from the government."

"I'm not surprised to hear Joey's dead," I said, "but I always thought the blessed event would take place in a back alley."

"That's what we all thought," said Sam, "and it probably would have if it hadn't been for Mitch Riley."

It didn't take much coaxing to get the rest of the story from Sam. A couple of years before the war, Joey started seeing a lot of a nice kid named Mitch Riley. No one could understand what this Cohen-&-Kelly combine had in common, but the fact is that the pair became inseparable, and it wasn't long before Mitch was having most of his meals in Mrs. Fishman's kitchen.

Mitch was an orphan, and in return for this bit of home life, he took it on himself to keep Joey out of trouble, and out of the $30 a week he made as a truckers' helper, he would usually make good whenever Joey heaved a brick through somebody's plate glass window or found something that hadn't been lost. Although she never said anything about it, it's my guess that Mrs. Fishman had an idea of what was going on, for she treated Mitch like another son, and space and finances permitting, would have adopted him.

When the war began, Mitch enlisted. Joey did everything he could to beat the draft, but it finally caught up with him, and the two buddies wound up in the same infantry outfit. When they went overseas, Mrs. Fishman got regular letters signed "Joe and Mitch," but according to Sam Carmel who translated the letters for the old lady, they were always in Mitch's handwriting.

Then one day Mrs. Fishman got an official letter from the government—and with it, a long letter from Mitch telling how Joey had died a hero's death for a cause he'd believed in. Mitch said his pal had proved himself to be a son any mother would be proud to call her own, and according to Sam, it was the most touching letter he had ever translated.

When Mitch was discharged, he came to see Mrs. Fishman, bringing a pile of Joey's personal effects, a couple of medals and a congressional citation for valor and heroism over and beyond the call of duty. Mrs. Fishman dried her eyes, had the document framed, and hung it over the parlor mantle. Then, when she found out that Mitch didn't have a place to live, she insisted that he move in with her. Joey's bed was empty, and she had room for him at last.

When Sam told me the story, I said, "That's a nice finish, and Joey's mom must feel pretty good about her kid turning out so well after all."

"There's a little more to the story," said Sam. "The day after Mitch came back, Mrs. Fishman showed me the citation, and since then almost everybody on Allen street has been up to see it. Most of the folks now can read and write English—it's not like the old days—but not a single person has ever thought it necessary to tell the old lady that the name on the scroll isn't Joseph Fishman but Mitchell Riley . . ."

These Days
By George E. Sokolsky

SHILLS

I went to the animal fair,
The birds and beasts were there.
The big baboon,
He sat on the moon,
And combed his golden hair.
The monk . . . . . .

Yes, that must have been me, for I went to the country fair and played all the shill games. I moved from one to the other to see how they worked; how they took the money from the yokels, of whom I was one. It was a wonderful experience getting stuck every time I put up a dime or a quarter or even half a dollar.

There was the game with the horses climbing uphill. You pushed a handle and a ball bounced in a glass case and every time the ball went into a slot, the horse moved. The first horse to reach the top won the prize. About a dozen could play at once, but only one could win a prize. I played half a dozen times. A boy, about 14 years old or thereabouts, won five times out of six. He was playing an hour later. He was playing two hours later. He was the shill. He worked for the house.

So I moved to a real proposition. This stand exhibited the most expensive prizes. If anyone won, he would walk off with something real, like a costly portable radio or a fishing outfit. So I put up a quarter. A number of India rubber balls were rolling down a chute. Each ball had a number on it in black ink. The number was related to a group of numbers on a chart; these numbers were red, black and green; and one of them was yellow. The numbers were not in consecutive order nor were the colors arranged for easy sight. The chart was a confusing hodge-podge. That helped.

Here is the game. Black numbers are a total loss. Red numbers get a prize—something unimportant. If you win a green number, then the ante is raised to 50 cents. The object is to get three greens or two greens and a red and then you can pick anything on the stand. Maybe for $3 or $4 you can take something that costs $100—maybe. The yellow number is only to mix up; you get an extra play for nothing, but no prize.

It cost me $3.50 to catch on. At first, the fellow sends balls of all colors down the chute. So you get a red or a green or a black. You get two balls for a quarter. You grab them yourself. Nobody interferes. Maybe you win a little prize. But you are tempted to get the three greens. So you go on playing. But now you never get any but black numbers. All of a sudden no balls appear that show red or green numbers on the chart. Maybe you get a yellow which gives you an extra turn, but then again there is an avalanche of India rubber balls with little numbers on them—all showing black on the chart.

So you can go on playing until you are broke because the fellow at the end of the chute controls the balls. He can send them as he likes and he likes not to give expensive prizes.

Well, I had a wonderful time playing these games with not a chance of winning. Sure, I'm a sucker. Sure, everybody at the fair was a sucker. But it was fun. It must be more fun if you don't figure it out, if you live in a kind of fairyland for grownups. Why not? Who doesn't like a hog dog or a hamburger at a stand where nobody is inspected by a health commissioner? But what has become of the pink lemonade and the hokey-pokey ice-cream and the snowball with three colored flavors squirted on the ice? They're lost in the reforms which the refrigerator and the deep freeze introduced. That's what progress does to us.

So I went to the fair and saw Indian jewelry made in Providence, Rhode Island, and cowboy clothes made in Brooklyn. Who cares? It was a day when I forgot Berlin, Vienna, Moscow. They tell me that Zhdanov died while I was at the fair. so?

DANGER OF NOT THINKING

The other day at a civic club meeting I listened to an address by the Secretary-Treasurer of the American Federation of Labor for one of our Southern states. His speech was well, even enthusiastically, received by the audience, but when he finished, I wondered how many of those present actually thought through on the points he attempted to make.

The gentleman was sincere in his speech, there was no doubt about that. He believed what he was saying. The fact that he murdered the King's English made no difference; he said he had had no opportunity to go to school as a youngster, and he probably didn't, so no one would criticise him for that. But the very sincerity of his talk and the emotionalism he used made what he said, if accepted at face value, even more dangerous. It was a rabble-rousing kind of talk that would easily sway those who do not think or those who do not want to think.

He called for a restoration of price control, he strongly advocated the closed shop, and he urged increase of the minimum wage. These were his main points.

By their applause when he had finished, the audience evidently thought he had made a good case for his points. Yet anyone who has read history, anyone who understands economics and government knows that it would be difficult to seize upon measures which would be more destructive of democracy than such government controls as these. They lead straight to socialism.

Price control by governmental force has never worked in history. It is quite necessary in a war emergency when the energies of the people are devoted to the making of materials of war, but even then it only works because of the voluntary cooperation of the people. There is no excuse for price control in time of peace. It not only lessens production, in that it destroys the incentive to produce, but it also inevitably leads to the "black market" and all its attendant ills. It harms most those whom it professes to help. Its enforcement agencies add to the load of bureaucracy. It does a great deal more harm than good.

As to the closed shop, it is not to be believed that any American citizen who gives the matter serious thought could advocate the closed shop. Nor does opposition to the closed shop mean opposition to unionism. Labor has just as much right to form a union as business does to form a chamber of commerce—but neither business nor labor has the right to enforce a closed shop. If freedom means anything at all, it means that a man has the right to join a union if he wants to, but it also means that he cannot be forced to join before he is allowed to go out and make a living for himself and his family. To do so would be to destroy individual freedom, the cornerstone on which our nation was founded and the key to the prosperity it has attained. It is taxation without representation—the very issue on which our forefathers revolted from English rule in the first place. It is quite easy to understand why labor leaders desire the closed shop. It gives them the domination necessary for complete control over the union members—but if that is the way control is to be maintained, then it is not deserved.

The speaker's third main point was to urge that the minimum wage be increased from 40c per hour to 75c per hour. Here again, anyone who believes in the system of government under which this nation has lived and prospered cannot countenance wages fixed by law. Of course everyone wants a living wage, and should have it, if he earns it. Most of us want a good deal more than a living wage, and should have that, too, if he earns it. But anyone who believes in freedom would never agree that a person should have a fixed wage whether he earns it or not—of any amount. If it were sensible and desirable to fix a minimum wage, why not fix it at $1 or $2 or $10 per hour, and let everybody really prosper? Moreover, it must be remembered that if the government can assume the power to fix minimum wages, it can just as easily assume the power to fix maximum wages. Then freedom has completely flown out the window and socialism is over the threshold!

What Others Say

ZHDANOV AND RUSSIAN POLICY

Most editors agree the Iron Curtain covers the question of whether Russian General Zhdanov died a natural death. Many feel that any improvement in Russia-Yugoslav relations, considered probable by the majority, will be strong evidence that he was liquidated to permit such improvement. Some, however, think Zhdanov's chagrin in failing to make Tito adhere to the cominform party line might have complicated a natural ailment into a fatal heart attack. On the main east-west stage, majority opinion is that removal of Zhdanov, bitterest foe of the west, may result in an interlude of calculating, Molotov-type negotiations but in no change of long-range Russian policy.

Columbus (Ohio) Evening Dispatch (Ind.): "A hardened, disillusioned and, perhaps, even cynical American public opinion will ultimately decide for itself, on the basis of what occurs in the relationships between Russia and Yugoslavia and Russia and the United States, whether the death of Zhdanov was so timely an event as to discount the possibility of a coincidence."

Baltimore (Md.) Sun (Ind.-Dem.): "Zhdanov was 52 years old and that age, as we all know, is one at which all kinds of degenerative diseases threaten the human male. . . . Stalin apparently believed that Zhdanov's skill was great enough to bring Tito to heel, but so far that has not happened. . . . But rather than assume that Zhdanov paid for his errors with his life, it is simpler to assume that his own chagrin brought on a heart attack. That explanation fills the need."

Hartford (Conn.) Courant (Rep.): "Marshal Tito, whom General Zhdanov tried to read out of the Communist party, has now solidified his control in Yugoslavia. His attempt at independence has been a startling spectacle, because a rebellious Communist is a contradiction in terms. Now, perhaps, with a new head to the cominform to be named, there will be an excuse to heal the breach. Beyond changes such as this, there is little hope that Russian policy will be different."

Birmingham (Ala.) News (Ind.-Dem.): "The Kremlin never forgets, never forgives. The very fact that Zhdanov had made Tito his personal whipping boy may strengthen the Russian politburo's determination to be rid of the troublesome fellow who has caused his superiors to lose face before the western world. . . . It will be remembered that the quarrel between Yugoslavia and Russia has now been taken out of the class of an intra-party misunderstanding; it is a definite rift between official governments. . . ."

Columbia (S. C.) Record (Ind.-Dem.): "Colonel General Zhdanov . . . was the bitterest Russian opponent of the United States. . . . His death may, therefore, result in changes in Russian foreign policy. A new head of the cominform must be named to conduct the cold war. And this person may not be as eager as Zhdanov was to stick his neck out. But the west will be well advised to wait and see what happens before it banks too much on a change. After all the majority of those who control Russia's foreign policy do not appear to be in favor of any real peace."

Cincinnati (Ohio) Enquirer (Ind.): "Zhdanov's death cannot help but lead to an undue amount of speculation. . . . Stalin, Molotov and Zhdanov have been regarded as the top men in the Soviet hierarchy . . . and there was little love lost between the two heirs apparent. They were supposed to disagree radically on Marxian doctrine as applied to foreign affairs. Molotov apparently believes in negotiating with the capitalist powers of the west. Zhdanov did not."

Boise Idaho Statesman (Ind.-Rep.): "If Molotov's clique takes over Zhdanov's influential position with Stalin, that may well mean less immediate danger of war at this time. But it won't alter in the slightest the long range Soviet strategy. . . . With Zhdanov, the hurry-up-and-sock 'em proponent gone, it will simply mean that communism will dicker more and shake its fist less until it is better prepared to force its will upon the world."

Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer (Ind.-Dem.): "All that can be hoped for at most is a change in tactics which will permit the west, for a time, to get along with the Russians. Thereby a breathing spell may be provided during which there is some possibility that the Russian people themselves will learn the truth about their government and the peaceful hopes of the capitalistic world."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

Paul in his misionary journeys encountered much opposition, and persecution from his fellow Jews, who were as much opposed to the new Christian way as he himself had once been.

But sooner or later he was bound to come into collision with the paganism, and licentiousness, of the cities in which he preached.

The clash came in Ephesus, which was the capital city of the Roman province of Asia, and an important place on the great trade route between Rome and the East. It was an excellent center from which Paul could carry on his missionary work, and he remained in the city for nearly three years. The Epistle to the Ephesians reveals how deeply rooted was his work there; and his intense love for the Ephesian disciples is manifested in the beautiful prayer for them in Ephesians 3:14-21.

At first Paul seems to have met with little opposition. Pagan religionists and authorities were probably sure enough of themselves not to be troubled about some new, small, and strange religious group.

The clash when it came was not really religious, but arose over economic gain and self-interest, with the religious outcry as a pretext. The goddess, "whom all Asia and the world worshippeth" (verse 27), here called Diana, usually represented as a huntress, was actually Artemis, the goddess of fertility. Immortal rites were associated with her worship. Judaism had long won many proselytes to its faith from the pagan world because of its superior morality, and we can well understand how many in that licentious city would turn to the better way that Paul preached.

The silversmiths who made shrines for the goddess became alarmed about their loss of trade. Among themselves they said, "Our craft is in danger," but to the public they said, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." Led by Demetrius, they stirred up a mob riot against Paul's companions. It was a typical mob, and about to become violent, when a man stepped forth whose name is unknown but whose fame is enshrined on the sacred page. It was the town clerk of Ephesus, calming them, talking common sense, and reminding them that they were likely to get into trouble with the Roman authorities. He, too, worshipped Diana, but paganism has its sincere souls who live up to the best that they knew.

To prepare stuffed celery for a party, mash cream cheese with blue cheese, thin with a little cream, flavor with finely grated onion and tabasco sauce. Wash the celery, trim off the leaves, cut stalks in two-inch lengths and stuff with the cheese mixture. Sprinkle with a little paprika and arrange attractively on a serving plate.

Mr. Passman Returns

Last Sunday we said editorially that we thought people of the state were tired of politics. Apparently a large number of our readers agreed with us, from the expressions we received during the past week.

Following our editorial, Mr. McKenzie withdrew from a second campaign against Congressman Passman. We commend Mr. McKenzie for his sparing the voters of the Fifth district another campaign. As we pointed out, Mr. Passman lacked only about 400 votes of receiving a clear majority over his two opponents, but as long as there was no majority, Mr. McKenzie, being second in the first race, had a legal right to go into a second primary. Instead, as he stated in his announcement of withdrawal, he agreed that there had been "too much politics" during the past year and that, in consideration of the people of the district and upon advice of his friends and supporters, he was withdrawing from the race.

Thus, we congratulate Mr. Passman upon his re-election. He has made a good record in congress, particularly in handling the affairs of his constituents in this district to their utmost advantage. He has been attentive to his duties for his own section of the state and he's also been present in congress for participation in deliberation on national and international affairs.

As we pointed out, Mr. Passman was anxious to obtain adequate appropriations for flood control and drainage, a matter of prime importance to Northeast Louisiana. It was particularly fitting, therefore, that upon the eve of his return to congress, it was announced from Washington that he had obtained approval of the U. S. army engineers for construction of protection for Bawcomville, near West Monroe, for various improvements of the Ouachita river system of locks and dams to provide an all-year nine-foot channel as far as Camden, Ark., and other projects throughout the district. The program now will go to the congress for funds with which to complete these projects, and we are sure Mr. Passman will with the help of his colleagues in the house, push the measure to a successful completion.

We have every confidence in his ability and energy to serve the Fifth district in a capable manner, and wish to offer him any assistance we may be able to give him in his efforts to serve his constituents.

MR. PRITCHARD LEAVES

A number of persons have expressed regret that "Dick" Pritchard, for the past 17 years engineer for the Tensas basin levee board, has been relieved of his duties.

Mr. Pritchard is thoroughly familiar with the work in which he has been associated for many years and his advice and counsel has been most valuable to the board.

The reason for Mr. Pritchard's dismissal was not announced. Some say it was "politics," but that we don't know.

We wish him success in whatever endeavor he turns to now, and thank him for his efforts in behalf of the people residing within the parishes under the jurisdiction of the board. We also congratulate the new engineer upon his appointment and hope that he enjoys the same success which marked the service of Mr. Pritchard.

SERVING THE PUBLIC

Newsprint supplies continue inadequate to meet the demand, but the nation's daily newspapers have made great progress in the last two years in modernizing and re-equipping plants. According to best advices in trade circles, more than $100,000,000 is currently being expended by newspapers in all parts of the country in expansion and modernization programs.

Newspaper circulation increased greatly during the war and this trend is continuing. On top of this, the nation's daily newspapers currently are carrying twice the advertising volume of 10 years ago. The strain on mechanical equipment, which could not be added to or replaced during the war, has been tremendous. Even today orders for new equipment must be placed many months, or years, ahead of delivery.

Modernization of press room equipment appears to be featuring a majority of the changes in plant set-up. Larger presses are needed by a majority of the nation's newspapers. Facilities for color printing are being added in many instances. Enlargement of photoengraving equipment is also being pushed.

Newspapers are serving the public as never before, and the cost is tremendous. A medium size press that cost $60,000 before the war now is quoted at twice that figure. But it is modern, fast equipment that makes the newspaper of today possible.

WATCHWORD FOR ADMIRALS

Navy men take pride in the trim, sleek lines of their fighting vessels. Their aim is to keep their ships at the peak of performance, always ready should emergency come. But there is some equipment of peace time that becomes excess in time of battle. When decks are stripped for action this surplus is jettisoned and comfort is sacrificed to efficiency.

The inspector general of the navy believes that trim ships deserve trim admirals. Too many of these officers, he finds, have taken on lines that would be considered disgraceful in a ship.

Too many, says Rear Admiral Hewlett Thebaud in a report to the chief of naval operations, "eat, drink, smoke and sit" too much. The result is excess avoirdupois which cannot be jettisoned with the ease with which surplus equipment is disposed of. If the admirals are to be at peak efficiency in emergency, they must "watch that waistline" at all times.

To impress the admirals with the importance of the inspector general's recommendation, the navy is having prepared pamphlets on diet and exercise. "Watch that waistline" is to be the watchword.

IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Gary Cooper is itching to produce, and star in, a movie based on the life story of baseball's grand old man, Connie Mack. . . . Altar-bound: Rita (Ida's sister) Lupino and Roger Anderson, New York actor, now in Hollywood for screen tests. . . . My London correspondent informs me that Ingrid Bergman was painfully, though not seriously, injured last week in a traffic crash. . . . Kirk Douglas (real name: Demsky) will ask local courts to legalize his screen monicker. . . . Hollywood dopesters are offering bets that Eric Johnson will be replaced, within the next months, as head of the M. P. A.

Ava Gardner, suffering from nerve troubles, is asking M.-G.-M. bosses to postpone the start of her next picture, "The Great Sinner." . . . Time out for Della (Mrs. Andy Russell) Norrell, who incurred a broken ankle when she fell into the partially drained family swimming pool. . . . Betty Hutton will enter an eastern clinic on her return from Europe in an effort to find out the cause of a persistent ailment that's been affecting her voice. Local medicos think it's an allergy. . . . Mel Torme and Candy Toxton are marriage-minded.

Wotzis about an independent producer having the bad taste to propose a picture based on the current dope scandal? . . . Understand Mae West will use her present courtroom adventures as the bassis for a nightclub act in which she'll be chief quipster. . . . Look for the Forrest Tuckers' marital woes to reach divorce courts soon.

PREVIEW NIGHTS: Pic of the week: United Artists' "An Innocent Affair" (Fred MacMurray-Madeleine Carroll-Charles "Buddy" Rogers). Farce comedy that will give adult audiences a bumper crop of laughs. . . . GOOD: Universal-International's "The Saxon Charm" (Robert Montgomery-Susan Hayward-John Payne-Audrey Totter). Off-the-beaten-path drama, distinguished by fine direction and brilliant performances. . . . RKO's "Station West" (Dick Powell-Jane Greer). Action melodrama with a high thrill content. . . . FAIR: 20th Century-Fox's "The Luck of the Irish" (Tyrone Power-Anne Baxter-Cecil Kellaway). Screen fantasy with very debatable audience appeal. . . . ROUTINE: Republic's "Desperadoes of Dodge City" (Allan "Rocky" Lane-Eddy Waller-Mildred Coles). Another carbon copy western. . . . BEST PERFORMANCE: Robert Montgomery in "The Saxon Charm."

Not long ago a certain major studio bought the screen rights to a hit play. It paid for it one of the most extravagant prices on record—despite the fact that the play contained much censorable material which, obviously, would have to be cleaned up before the story could be filmed. I understand, now, that writer after writer has tried his hand at that clean-up job and that all of them have failed. I also understand that the studio bosses, in despair, have almost decided to shelve the story and write off a loss of approximately $1,000,000. Well, it's an old story. Time after time studio heads have burned their fingers by buying censorable stories and censorable plays, knowing in advance that major amputations will be necessary before the M. P. A. can be expected to okay a script. The sum total of the money wasted on such idiotic ventures would pay the salaries of Allah-knows-how-many underlings who have been fired recently in the interest of "economy."

I want to doff my bonnet to Gene Autry, who's just turned down a lucrative personal appearance tour because he doesn't want to be responsible for drawing kids into theaters as long as the current polio epidemic lasts. Such a decision is in perfect keeping with Autry's entire professional policy. The welfare of the kids has always been his first consideration. This present sacrifice is one that should give the rest of the movie industry food for thought. Every doctor who's ever expressed an opinion on the subject has advocated the closing of theaters to children during the acute infantile paralysis epidemics. The parent-teachers associations have advocated it. Sure, it would cost the industry, as a whole, some admission fees—but if it saved one child from the dread disease, the loss would be a long-term gain.

I'm amused (?) by a printed quotation from Burt Lancaster. He says being a movie actor "bores" him, and that he'd be willing to do almost anything to break the monotony. I'm touched. Lancaster skyrocketed to stardom and to an affluence previously unknown to him less than two years ago. Since becoming a top-flight star he's pretty well had his pick of stories and roles. And now he's BORED! Well, he can console himself, for he doesn't suffer alone. For every Hollywoodite who's bored with stardom, there are probably a dozen Hollywoodites who are bored with stars that profess boredom.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

SHILLS

I went to the animal fair,
The birds and beasts were there.
The big baboon,
He sat on the moon,
And combed his golden hair.
The monk . . . . . .

Yes, that must have been me, for I went to the country fair and played all the shill games. I moved from one to the other to see how they worked; how they took the money from the yokels, of whom I was one. It was a wonderful experience getting stuck every time I put up a dime or a quarter or even half a dollar.

There was the game with the horses climbing uphill. You pushed a handle and a ball bounced in a glass case and every time the ball went into a slot, the horse moved. The first horse to reach the top won the prize. About a dozen could play at once, but only one could win a prize. I played half a dozen times. A boy, about 14 years old or thereabouts, won five times out of six. He was playing an hour later. He was playing two hours later. He was the shill. He worked for the house.

So I moved to a real proposition. This stand exhibited the most expensive prizes. If anyone won, he would walk off with something real, like a costly portable radio or a fishing outfit. So I put up a quarter. A number of India rubber balls were rolling down a chute. Each ball had a number on it in black ink. The number was related to a group of numbers on a chart; these numbers were red, black and green; and one of them was yellow. The numbers were not in consecutive order nor were the colors arranged for easy sight. The chart was a confusing hodge-podge. That helped.

Here is the game. Black numbers are a total loss. Red numbers get a prize—something unimportant. If you win a green number, then the ante is raised to 50 cents. The object is to get three greens or two greens and a red and then you can pick anything on the stand. Maybe for $3 or $4 you can take something that costs $100—maybe. The yellow number is only to mix up; you get an extra play for nothing, but no prize.

It cost me $3.50 to catch on. At first, the fellow sends balls of all colors down the chute. So you get a red or a green or a black. You get two balls for a quarter. You grab them yourself. Nobody interferes. Maybe you win a little prize. But you are tempted to get the three greens. So you go on playing. But now you never get any but black numbers. All of a sudden no balls appear that show red or green numbers on the chart. Maybe you get a yellow which gives you an extra turn, but then again there is an avalanche of India rubber balls with little numbers on them—all showing black on the chart.

So you can go on playing until you are broke because the fellow at the end of the chute controls the balls. He can send them as he likes and he likes not to give expensive prizes.

Well, I had a wonderful time playing these games with not a chance of winning. Sure, I'm a sucker. Sure, everybody at the fair was a sucker. But it was fun. It must be more fun if you don't figure it out, if you live in a kind of fairyland for grownups. Why not? Who doesn't like a hog dog or a hamburger at a stand where nobody is inspected by a health commissioner? But what has become of the pink lemonade and the hokey-pokey ice-cream and the snowball with three colored flavors squirted on the ice? They're lost in the reforms which the refrigerator and the deep freeze introduced. That's what progress does to us.

So I went to the fair and saw Indian jewelry made in Providence, Rhode Island, and cowboy clothes made in Brooklyn. Who cares? It was a day when I forgot Berlin, Vienna, Moscow. They tell me that Zhdanov died while I was at the fair, so?

DANGER OF NOT THINKING

The other day at a civic club meeting I listened to an address by the Secretary-Treasurer of the American Federation of Labor for one of our Southern states. His speech was well, even enthusiastically, received by the audience, but when he finished, I wondered how many of those present actually thought through on the points he attempted to make.

The gentleman was sincere in his speech, there was no doubt about that. He believed what he was saying. The fact that he murdered the King's English made no difference; he said he had had no opportunity to go to school as a youngster, and he probably didn't, so no one would criticise him for that. But the very sincerity of his talk and the emotionalism he used made what he said, if accepted at face value, even more dangerous. It was a rabble-rousing kind of talk that would easily sway those who do not think or those who do not want to think.

He called for a restoration of price control, he strongly advocated the closed shop, and he urged increase of the minimum wage. These were his main points.

By their applause when he had finished, the audience evidently thought he had made a good case for his points. Yet anyone who has read history, anyone who understands economics and government knows that it would be difficult to seize upon measures which would be more destructive of democracy than such government controls as these. They lead straight to socialism.

Price control by governmental force has never worked in history. It is quite necessary in a war emergency when the energies of the people are devoted to the making of materials of war, but even then it only works because of the voluntary cooperation of the people. There is no excuse for price control in time of peace. It not only lessens production, in that it destroys the incentive to produce, but it also inevitably leads to the "black market" and all its attendant ills. It harms most those whom it professes to help. Its enforcement agencies add to the load of bureaucracy. It does a great deal more harm than good.

As to the closed shop, it is not to be believed that any American citizen who gives the matter serious thought could advocate the closed shop. Nor does opposition to the closed shop mean opposition to unionism. Labor has just as much right to form a union as business does to form a chamber of commerce—but neither business nor labor has the right to enforce a closed shop. If freedom means anything at all, it means that a man has the right to join a union if he wants to, but it also means that he cannot be forced to join before he is allowed to go out and make a living for himself and his family. To do so would be to destroy individual freedom, the cornerstone on which our nation was founded and the key to the prosperity it has attained. It is taxation without representation—the very issue on which our forefathers revolted from English rule in the first place. It is quite easy to understand why labor leaders desire the closed shop. It gives them the domination necessary for complete control over the union members—but if that is the way control is to be maintained, then it is not deserved.

The speaker's third main point was to urge that the minimum wage be increased from 40c per hour to 75c per hour. Here again, anyone who believes in the system of government under which this nation has lived and prospered cannot countenance wages fixed by law. Of course everyone wants a living wage, and should have it, if he earns it. Most of us want a good deal more than a living wage, and should have that, too, if he earns it. But anyone who believes in freedom would never agree that a person should have a fixed wage whether he earns it or not—of any amount. If it were sensible and desirable to fix a minimum wage, why not fix it at $1 or $2 or $10 per hour, and let everybody really prosper? Moreover, it must be remembered that if the government can assume the power to fix minimum wages, it can just as easily assume the power to fix maximum wages. Then freedom has completely flown out the window and socialism is over the threshold!

Editors' Roundtable

ZHDANOV AND RUSSIAN POLICY

Most editors agree the Iron Curtain covers the question of whether Russian General Zhdanov died a natural death. Many feel that any improvement in Russia-Yugoslav relations, considered probable by the majority, will be strong evidence that he was liquidated to permit such improvement. Some, however, think Zhdanov's chagrin in failing to make Tito adhere to the cominform party line might have complicated a natural ailment into a fatal heart attack. On the main east-west stage, majority opinion is that removal of Zhdanov, bitterest foe of the west, may result in an interlude of calculating, Molotov-type negotiations but in no change of long-range Russian policy.

Columbus (Ohio) Evening Dispatch (Ind.): "A hardened, disillusioned and, perhaps, even cynical American public opinion will ultimately decide for itself, on the basis of what occurs in the relationships between Russia and Yugoslavia and Russia and the United States, whether the death of Zhdanov was so timely an event as to discount the possibility of a coincidence."

Baltimore (Md.) Sun (Ind.-Dem.): "Zhdanov was 52 years old and that age, as we all know, is one at which all kinds of degenerative diseases threaten the human male. . . . Stalin apparently believed that Zhdanov's skill was great enough to bring Tito to heel, but so far that has not happened. . . . But rather than assume that Zhdanov paid for his errors with his life, it is simpler to assume that his own chagrin brought on a heart attack. That explanation fills the need."

Hartford (Conn.) Courant (Rep.): "Marshal Tito, whom General Zhdanov tried to read out of the Communist party, has now solidified his control in Yugoslavia. His attempt at independence has been a startling spectacle, because a rebellious Communist is a contradiction in terms. Now, perhaps, with a new head to the cominform to be named, there will be an excuse to heal the breach. Beyond changes such as this, there is little hope that Russian policy will be different."

Birmingham (Ala.) News (Ind.-Dem.): "The Kremlin never forgets, never forgives. The very fact that Zhdanov had made Tito his personal whipping boy may strengthen the Russian politburo's determination to be rid of the troublesome fellow who has caused his superiors to lose face before the western world. . . . It will be remembered that the quarrel between Yugoslavia and Russia has now been taken out of the class of an intra-party misunderstanding; it is a definite rift between official governments. . . ."

Columbia (S. C.) Record (Ind.-Dem.): "Colonel General Zhdanov . . . was the bitterest Russian opponent of the United States. . . . His death may, therefore, result in changes in Russian foreign policy. A new head of the cominform must be named to conduct the cold war. And this person may not be as eager as Zhdanov was to stick his neck out. But the west will be well advised to wait and see what happens before it banks too much on a change. After all the majority of those who control Russia's foreign policy do not appear to be in favor of any real peace."

Cincinnati (Ohio) Enquirer (Ind.): "Zhdanov's death cannot help but lead to an undue amount of speculation. . . . Stalin, Molotov and Zhdanov have been regarded as the top men in the Soviet hierarchy . . . and there was little love lost between the two heirs apparent. They were supposed to disagree radically on Marxian doctrine as applied to foreign affairs. Molotov apparently believes in negotiating with the capitalist powers of the west. Zhdanov did not."

Boise Idaho Statesman (Ind.-Rep.): "If Molotov's clique takes over Zhdanov's influential position with Stalin, that may well mean less immediate danger of war at this time. But it won't alter in the slightest the long range Soviet strategy. . . . With Zhdanov, the hurry-up-and-sock 'em proponent gone, it will simply mean that communism will dicker more and shake its fist less until it is better prepared to force its will upon the world."

Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer (Ind.-Dem.): "All that can be hoped for at most is a change in tactics which will permit the west, for a time, to get along with the Russians. Thereby a breathing spell may be provided during which there is some possibility that the Russian people themselves will learn the truth about their government and the peaceful hopes of the capitalistic world."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

Paul in his misisonary journeys encountered much opposition, and persecution from his fellow Jews, who were as much opposed to the new Christian way as he himself had once been.

But sooner or later he was bound to come into collision with the paganism, and licentiousness, of the cities in which he preached.

The clash came in Ephesus, which was the capital city of the Roman province of Asia, and an important place on the great trade route between Rome and the East. It was an excellent center from which Paul could carry on his missionary work, and he remained in the city for nearly three years. The Epistle to the Ephesians reveals how deeply rooted was his work there; and his intense love for the Ephesian disciples is manifested in the beautiful prayer for them in Ephesians 3:14-21.

At first Paul seems to have met with little opposition. Pagan religionists and authorities were probably sure enough of themselves not to be troubled about some new, small, and strange religious group.

The clash when it came was not really religious, but arose over economic gain and self-interest, with the religious outcry as a pretext. The goddess, "whom all Asia and the world worshippeth" (verse 27), here called Diana, usually represented as a huntress, was actually Artemis, the goddess of fertility. Immortal rites were associated with her worship. Judaism had long won many proselytes to its faith from the pagan world because of its superior morality, and we can well understand how many in that licentious city would turn to the better way that Paul preached.

The silversmiths who made shrines for the goddess became alarmed about their loss of trade. Among themselves they said, "Our craft is in danger," but to the public they said, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." Led by Demetrius, they stirred up a mob riot against Paul's companions. It was a typical mob, and about to become violent, when a man stepped forth whose name is unknown but whose fame is enshrined on the sacred page. It was the town clerk of Ephesus, calming them, talking common sense, and reminding them that they were likely to get into trouble with the Roman authorities. He, too, worshipped Diana, but paganism has its sincere souls who live up to the best that they knew.

Wash the celery, trim off the leaves, cut stalks in two-inch lengths and stuff with the cheese mixture. Sprinkle with a little paprika and arrange attractively on a serving plate.

Pitching Horseshoes

By Billy Rose

Billy Rose

New York, as anyone who lives west of the Kill van Kull will tell you, is a cold and unfriendly town. Its inhabitants don't know a starling from a starlet and, what's even worse, never borrow cups of sugar from each other.

Well, the only sugar I've ever borrowed had pictures of presidents on it, but I do know a man-sized myth when I see one. And, in my book, the chestnut about New York being heartless is a myth that's as good as a mile, if not better.

Proof? I give you the case history of Mr. Fishman and her no-good son, Joey, heart-tug by heart-tug . . .

When I was knee-high to the Allen street gutter, I used to buy my licorice whips and jawbreakers in a tiny candy store run by a Mrs. Fishman who was only a few years removed from a village in the Ukraine. There was also a Mr. Fishman, but I only remember him as a sad-faced little gent who stayed home and coughed a lot.

Somewhere around the time that Cautious Cal became our Chief executive, life started kicking the candy-store lady around. One December day she gave birth to a son named Joey, and the following April, rode out to Brooklyn in a black carriage and watched them bury Mr. Fishman. And for the next 20 years, life never let up on her.

Joey, raised in the kill-or-cure incubator that is the East Side, grew up to be a no-good, and the residents of Allen Street seldom mentioned his name without adding, "Poor Mrs. Fishman." For years he divided his time regularly between the pool room and the police line-up, but I never once heard Mrs. Fishman run her son down. According to her, it was only a matter of time before he settled down and made something of himself.

One day a couple of years ago, I went back to the old neighborhood for a look-see and a listen-hear, and Sam Carmel, who has been carrying the Allen street mail for 35 years, brought me up to date on Joey and his activities.

Sam is the kind of mailman you're supposed to find only in small towns. In addition to getting the mail through, he acts as family counsellor, information dispenser and all-around letter-writer. He speaks both Yiddish and Italian fluently, and many's the time I've seen him squat on a stoop and write a letter in one language while it was being dictated in another.

I met Sam as he was going into the walk-up tenement where Mrs. Fishman still lives. He had a long, brown envelope in his hand. "For your old friend," he explained.

"Is Joey writing her from Sing Sing?" I asked.

"Joey isn't writing from any place," said Sam. "He was killed in the war, and this is the check his mother gets every month from the government."

"I'm not surprised to hear Joey's dead," I said, "but I always thought the blessed event would take place in a back alley."

"That's what we all thought," said Sam, "and it probably would have if it hadn't been for Mitch Riley."

It didn't take much coaxing to get the rest of the story from Sam. A couple of years before the war, Joey started seeing a lot of a nice kid named Mitch Riley. No one could understand what this Cohen-&-Kelly combine had in common, but the fact is that the pair became inseparable, and it wasn't long before Mitch was having most of his meals in Mrs. Fishman's kitchen.

Mitch was an orphan, and in return for this bit of home life, he took it on himself to keep Joey out of trouble, and out of the $30 a week he made as a truckers' helper, he would usually make good whenever Joey heaved a brick through somebody's plate glass window or found something that hadn't been lost. Although she never said anything about it, it's my guess that Mrs. Fishman had an idea of what was going on, for she treated Mitch like another son, and space and finances permitting, would have adopted him.

When the war began, Mitch enlisted. Joey did everything he could to beat the draft, but it finally caught up with him, and the two buddies wound up in the same infantry outfit. When they went overseas, Mrs. Fishman got regular letters signed "Joe and Mitch," but according to Sam Carmel who translated the letters for the old lady, they were always in Mitch's handwriting.

Then one day Mrs. Fishman got an official letter from the government—and with it, a long letter from Mitch telling how Joey had died a hero's death for a cause he'd believed in. Mitch said his pal had proved himself to be a son any mother would be proud to call her own, and according to Sam, it was the most touching letter he had ever translated.

When Mitch was discharged, he came to see Mrs. Fishman, bringing a pile of Joey's personal effects, a couple of medals and a congressional citation for valor and heroism over and beyond the call of duty. Mrs. Fishman dried her eyes, had the document framed, and hung it over the parlor mantle. Then, when she found out that Mitch didn't have a place to live, she insisted that he move in with her. Joey's bed was empty, and she had room for him at last.

When Sam told me the story, I said, "That's a nice finish, and Joey's mom must feel pretty good about her kid turning out so well after all."

"There's a little more to the story," said Sam. "The day after Mitch came back, Mrs. Fishman showed me the citation, and since then almost everybody on Allen street has been up to see it. Most of the folks now can read and write English—it's not like the old days—but not a single person has ever thought it necessary to tell the old lady that the name on the scroll isn't Joseph Fishman but Mitchell Riley . . ."

G. S. Cutini, Of Atlanta, Guest Of Underwriters Here

Widely experienced as a lecturer on life underwriting, Cutini is presently touring the state of Louisiana, speaking before the various associations of underwriters.

A native of Niagara Falls, N. Y., and for several years an agent there for the Metropolitan Life, Cutini came south during the war as an army staff sergeant. He was stationed at Fort McPherson, Ga., as occupational counsellor in the separation center and later as education specialist. Following the war he was selected as an insurance officer for the Veterans Administration in Georgia.

The appearance of G. S. Cutini marked the beginning of planned programs for the local association during the coming year. President Walker states that every effort is being directed toward bringing outstanding men in the underwriting profession before the association from time to time.

GOING TO ENGLAND

CAPT. STRATFORD TO BRIDGE GAP OF 36 YEARS ABROAD

Two decendants from what was once the most prominent and perhaps the wealthiest family in England will be leaving Monroe on Sunday for a visit to England and other nearby countries. Relatives in England have sponsored a trip abroad for Captain Charles A. Stratford, local commander of the Salvation Army, and his son, Charles. Captain Stratford was born in Brighton, Sussex, England, and left there when he was nine years old, while Charles who is now eighteen years old, was born in Washington, D. C.

During the past three years, the captain has lost his mother, father and older brother, all of whom resided in Canada and his English relatives are looking forward to seeing the boy who left England 36 years ago and migrated to Canada with his family.

In the office of Captain Stratford can be seen the "Stratford coat of arms" which was one of the first, if not the first coat of arms used in English history. This coat of arms dates back before the year 1300 and was the personal coat of arms belonging to John Stratford, LL.D., who was archbishop of Canterbury for fifteen years while his brother, Robert de Stratford, was appointed "keeper of the seal." Previous to the appointment as archbishop of Canterbury, John Stratford was appointed to the "court of Rome" where he served for many years, then he was made "bishop of Winchester," "keeper of the seal" and "chief advisor to King Edward II. John became so prominent that according to "the history of Canterbury" page 717, it mentions the following: "John Stratford continued faithful and constant to King Edward II, and it gained him the favour of the king and queen so that when King Edward III was made king and passed with his army over into Flanders during the French war, he appointed John Stratford to be his sole justiciary and committed to him the whole care and government of the kingdom during his absence." The Stratford's were extremely wealthy people and according to the book as mentioned above, "Multitudes were fed daily with the remains from the table of John Stratford and in addition to this, he personally fed thirteen families three times a day."

The Stratfords held important positions in the English government for over 300 years and included in this list was John Stratford, as mentioned above, Robert, his brother, who held the positions of "lord treasurer," "lord chancellor," "archdeacon of Canterbury" and other prominent positions, Ralph de Stratford "bishop of London," Charles Stratford, "earl of Aldborough," Dr. Nicholas Stratford, "dean of St. Asaph," "bishop of Chester," who was a great author, and many others too numerous to mention.

In recent American history and descended from this same line, was "Stratford de Redcliffe" better known as "Stratford Canning" who was ambassador to Washington during the time of John Quincy Adams and who was accused of starting the Crimean War. It was the Stratford family who originally built the great College of "Stratford Upon Avon" and built the original church and chantry for priests. In fact the name of Stratford originated in the founding of the little village of "Stratford Upon Avon" and the "Church of the Holy Trinity" now occupies the site if the "old monastry" dating back to the year 691.

Distantly related to Captain Stratford are many wealthy people including several millionaires but none of them in his immediate family. However, in England he will visit those who have sponsored his visit and will spend some of his time at Hustmonaux and Blenheim Castle where two of the captain's cousins are located.

Their overseas address will be Manor House, Adderbury, Oxen, England.

Mrs. Stratford and daughter, Anne, will be staying in Monroe wishing them the best of luck as they leave here Sunday morning in a Bellanca plane, belonging to a friend, for their trip to New York where they will board the Mauretania. The plane will be piloted by Captain Stratford and his son, Charles, will be co-pilot and chief navigator. They will return from England on the Queen Elizabeth, October 14.

DELTA AIR LINES SHOWING PROFIT

Will Net $220,000 For Fiscal Year Ending June 30, Woolman States

C. E. Woolman, president and general manager of Delta Air Lines, said Delta Air Lines will show an operating profit of approximately $375,000 and a net profit after taxes of $220,000 for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1948, after adjustments are made to reflect Delta's new mail rate which was announced by the civil aeronautics board on September 8.

"The new basis of compensation for Delta is retroactive to September 9, 1947, and is the first change since Delta's rates were reduced during abnormally high loads of our war-time operations," Woolman pointed out.

"The new rate, which is permanent rather than temporary, restores Delta's mail pay per mile to approximately what it was in 1940. Costs of materials and labor have advanced substantially since 1940, but larger equipment, improved operating economics which have been effected, and increased route miles have permitted a modest profit in the face of rising costs, after adjustment of the mail rate.

"The new sliding scale formula (which changes with variations in passenger loads) which we advocated before the civil aeronautics board, and was adopted in this decision, represents in our opinion a fair method of compensating air carriers for the transportation of air mail."

Under the newly established rate, Delta will also show a profit for the two months of July and August since the end of the fiscal year, Woolman said.

EAGLE SCOUT IN ANOTHER HONOR

Robert Currey To Receive God And Country Award Today

Eagle Scout Robert Currey, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Currey, Fairbanks, will receive the God and Country Award in a special ceremony at the Fairbanks Baptist Church at 10:45 a.m. today. The award is to be presented by Rev. R. L. Ross, Jr., pastor of the Fairbanks Baptist Church, with whom Currey has worked faithfully for many years in meeting the difficult requirements for the award. Robert Currey is the first Scout in the Ouachita Valley Council to receive this high honor.

The God and Country Award is a church award presented by the church to Scouts. The only Scouting requirement is that the boy must have attained the first-class rank. The beautiful medal, which is a red cross on a white shield suspended from a blue ribbon, is worn with the Eagle badge on the left pocket of the Scout uniform over the heart.

Reverend Ross states that Robert has been extremely active in church work since he was converted and united with the Fairbanks Baptist Church at the age of eight. He has been a zealous worker since his conversion, taking part in all of the activities of the church. These activities include serving as president of the Intermediate Training Union, president of the Intermediate Sunday School class, and serving as usher since he was nine years of age. He has been very regular in attendance at all services, including the midweek service, and has a record of five years of perfect attendance in Sunday School. He is also a member of the Bible Memory Association, which meets annually at Ringgold, La. During his two-year membership in this organization, he has memorized five hundred scriptures.

Young Currey has been extremely active in Scout Troop 67, of Sterlington. Scoutmaster Tom Wafer reports that Robert has been an active leader in troop 67 since he joined in May, 1946. He advanced rapidly through his initial Scout requirements to become a first-class Scout in July, 1946. He then received his star rank in May, 1947, and life rank in July, 1947. He then passed the necessary requirements for twenty-six merit badges to receive his eagle rank in February, 1948, Scouting's highest award. He has also been active in council-wide activities, having attended the council camp for several years.

ONE MORE HONOR

Robert Currey, above, already an Eagle Scout, will today be awarded the God and Country emblem in an impressive church exercise.

He is a member of the Order of the Arrow, national honor camper's society.

The public is invited to participate in the ceremony for this outstanding award to Scout Currey, which is to take place at the regular morning service of the Fairbanks Baptist Church.

CIVIC MUSIC IS BEING FEATURED

This Week Being Set Aside For Annual Membership Campaign

This is Civic Music Week, according to a combined proclamation of the Twin Cities' mayors, Mayor Breece, of Monroe, and Mayor Bell, of West Monroe. In observance of Civic Music Week the Monroe Civic Music Association will conduct its annual membership campaign with a "kickoff" dinner in honor of its officers, board members and workers. This dinner will be held on the Roof Garden of the Virginia Hotel, Monday evening at 6:30 p.m., according to an announcement of the association's president, Paul Hewitt.

The people of the Twin Cities may observe Civic Music Week by joining their Civic Music Association in bringing the finest in cultural entertainment to Monroe. Realizing that fine music and good entertainment are necessary factors in the life of a city, the workers to the association will strive to increase its membership by forty per cent this year in order to bring the very best. It is hoped that the people of the Twin Cities interested in seeing this accomplishment will give their full support to the association since the number of members determines the number and type programs available, said Mr. Hewitt.

Anyone in the community is entitled to a membership and membership dues for the season are, adults $6.00 and students $3.00 including federal tax. No single admissions will be sold for any concert and only members may attend, Mr. Hewitt stated.

The association headquarters is located in the Virginia Hotel lobby and memberships may be obtained there or by calling 10508 or 10509, Mr. Hewitt said.

The membership drive will close Saturday night, September 18, at 7 p.m., and after that time no one may join for another year, according to Mr. Hewitt.

Artists who have appeared in past seasons in the Monroe Civic Music Association series are: Gladys Swarthout, Margaret Speaks, Conrad Thibault, Jean Dickenson, Vivian Della Chiesa, Robert Merrill and the Houston Symphony.

CIVIC MUSIC IS BEING FEATURED

This Week Being Set Aside For Annual Membership Campaign

This is Civic Music Week, according to a combined proclamation of the Twin Cities' mayors, Mayor Breece, of Monroe, and Mayor Bell, of West Monroe. In observance of Civic Music Week the Monroe Civic Music Association will conduct its annual membership campaign with a "kickoff" dinner in honor of its officers, board members and workers. This dinner will be held on the Roof Garden of the Virginia Hotel, Monday evening at 6:30 p.m., according to an announcement of the association's president, Paul Hewitt.

The people of the Twin Cities may observe Civic Music Week by joining their Civic Music Association in bringing the finest in cultural entertainment to Monroe. Realizing that fine music and good entertainment are necessary factors in the life of a city, the workers to the association will strive to increase its membership by forty per cent this year in order to bring the very best. It is hoped that the people of the Twin Cities interested in seeing this accomplishment will give their full support to the association since the number of members determines the number and type programs available, said Mr. Hewitt.

Anyone in the community is entitled to a membership and membership dues for the season are, adults $6.00 and students $3.00 including federal tax. No single admissions will be sold for any concert and only members may attend, Mr. Hewitt stated.

The association headquarters is located in the Virginia Hotel lobby and memberships may be obtained there or by calling 10508 or 10509, Mr. Hewitt said.

The membership drive will close Saturday night, September 18, at 7 p.m., and after that time no one may join for another year, according to Mr. Hewitt.

Artists who have appeared in past seasons in the Monroe Civic Music Association series are: Gladys Swarthout, Margaret Speaks, Conrad Thibault, Jean Dickenson, Vivian Della Chiesa, Robert Merrill and the Houston Symphony.

JUNIOR COLLEGE

from Northeast Junior College every day without cost to themselves.

The girl's dormitory is now practically filled by reservations from girl students whose place of residence prevents their commuting by bus. Thirty boys will be housed in the college stadium. The veterans' barracks at Selman field will accommodate 116 single men. Citizens of the twin cities are making rooms in their homes available to boarding students.

A full program of studies is being planned for the students who will soon be enrolled. Curricula and courses of approved college quality will include music, commerce, sciences, engineering, agriculture, home economics, social studies, pre-law, pre-medicine, pre-dental, and teacher education.

Plans permit students to enroll for a regular curriculum leading to a college diploma or degree, or to take a special program tailored to their needs if they do not plan to stay in college for a full two- or four-year schedule.

The official opening of the college will be on Wednesday, September 15. There will be a meeting of the entire faculty at 8 a. m. This will be followed by an assembly at 9:30 a. m. designed to begin a program of orientation for beginning students. All new students are expected to attend this assembly where they will receive instructions for registration and where they will be introduced to the general policies of the college.

Featured on this program will be the introduction of college and community leaders and an address by Miss Hazel Mitchell entitled, "The Spirit of N. J. C." Miss Mitchell is assistant professor of Spanish, chairman of the committee on student activities and is herself a graduate of Northeast Junior College.

Following the orientation assembly students will confer with their faculty advisers and will get acquainted with points of interest at the college.

Actual registration for beginning students will get under way at 1 p. m. Wednesday, and students will register by groups according to alphabetical order as follows:

Those whose last names begin with the letter A will register from 1-2; B, 2-3; C, and D, 3-4. On Thursday, September 16, the groups will be: E, F and G, 9-10 a. m.; H, 10-11; I, J and K, 11-12; L, Mc, 1-2 p. m.; M and N, 2-3; O, P, 3-4. On Friday, September 17, the groups will be: Q and R, 9-10 a. m.; S, T, U and V, 10-11; W, X, Y and Z, 11-12.

Second semester freshmen and all other students, including those transferring from other colleges, will register September 17 and September 20 in the following alphabetical order: On Friday, September 17: A, B, 1-2; C, D, E, 2-3; F, G, 3-4; and on Monday, September 20: H, I, 9-10; J, K, L, 10-11; Mc, M, N, 11-12; O, P, Q, R, 1-2; S, T, U, V, 2-3; W, X, Y and Z, 3-4.

Information about the new school session is available to those who will get in touch with the registrar or the dean. Inquiries are invited.

take them to Mindanao, big island a dozen miles to the south.

The transport General C. G. Morton sailed from Manila to aid the work, which was slowed by absence of wharves. All persons were having to come off in small boats.

Capt. William (Pineapple Bill) Murray of the General Morton expected to arrive off Camiguin late Sunday.

The small island is 450 miles southeast of Manila by air but about 700 by sea.

A U. S. navy plane dropped food to refugees huddled in the congested little towns on the southern shores of the island.

Estimates of the number on Camiguin varied widely. Previous reports from official sources had said 36,000 already had fled and about 14,000 remained. Later estimates said 20,000 were still in danger. Lack of census figures and the fact that many had reached nearby Mindanao in small boats made an accurate count impossible.

Captain Williams said local relief officials believed that the entire island could be evacuated by next Tuesday, however.

Season scrambled eggs with a little Worcestershire sauce, as well as salt and freshly-ground pepper; then serve with creamed dried beef and mushrooms for Sunday brunch. To make this a company meal start with a fresh fruit cocktail, add popovers, lots of good strong coffee and homemade peach or plum preserves.

"at least equal to the national pattern."

The west coast shipowners refused to deal with Harry Bridges' striking C. I. O. Longshoremen in handling army cargoes piled up in Pacific ports. The union had agreed to work army shipments on a pre-strike basis.

Secretary of the Army Royall Monday referred a union-army agreement Friday to west coast firms to resume work on army cargoes on the same conditions existing before the strike.

The employers said they would not deal with Bridges' union until union leaders sign non-Communist affidavits in compliance with the Taft-Hartley act.

Earlier, Bridges announced his union had rejected by secret ballot employers demands for the signing of non-Communist affidavits. However, he proposed that negotiations be resumed on union wage demands. The longshoremen seek a 13 cents hourly retroactive wage increase or 15 cents without retroactivity. The employers offered 10 cents without retroactivity but later withdrew this.

No signs of early settlement appeared as the C. I. O. Oil Refinery Workers strike against six major California producers went into its second week.

In Detroit, the Briggs Manufacturing Company appealed to its 25,000 idle production workers to return to work Monday. However, the C. I. O. United Auto Workers, speaking for the employes, declined. The walkout of 170 Briggs strike guards, members of an independent union, has made 50,000 auto workers idle since Wednesday in Briggs, Chrysler and Packard plants. Other workers have refused to pass through the picket lines.

ficient to pay food costs only. For a trial period a contribution of five cents as a minimum, and varying in some schools due to differences in costs, will be requested to pay labor and expenses other than for food. These items are not covered by funds to be received from the state department of education from federal and state sources. The contribution rate may increase if it proves inadequate to meet the expenses.

Facilities available at this time in schools having lunch programs last session with federal and state assistance will not permit service to all children immediately. Further announcements will be made by principals to children enrolled in schools where lunchrooms were not operated last session with federal and state support.

School officials have expressed the desire to co-operate with the state department of education in providing lunches to the children. Explanations concerning the plan for this session are to be given to superintendents, supervisors, visiting teachers, principals, and lunchroom directors at a meeting called by Superintendent of Education Shelby M. Jackson at Northeast Junior College, Saturday, September 18, at 9:30 a. m. Final plans for operation of lunchrooms cannot be given until after this meeting. Lunches can not be served all pupils until additional facilities are provided even though plans are revised by the state department of education whereby funds will be increased to cover labor, facilities, etc., in addition to the present allotment devoted entirely to the purchase of food.

is the direct or indirect product of congressional neglect."

During most of the period in which the report "mistakes" were made, Sawyer said, the enforcement staff of the office of international trade (OIT) consisted of one person.

"Since we have had adequate funds available, the OIT export control staff has been increased to 690 persons and a complete new enforcement program has been put into effect."

Sawyer's reference to the OIT having occupied a "death cell" was apparently based on the fact that at one time congress extended the trade office's life for 15 days while debating whether to discontinue its functions.

Sawyer said the impressions given the public by the current senate hearings "are so misleading and false that same statement of fact as distinguished from innuendo is called for."

As to the "revelation" that nails which might have been used for construction purposes were exported as shoe tacks," Sawyer said:

"So far as anyone knows now, these nails were never actually exported • • • ."

As to the "revelation" that one exporter shipped out cast iron soil pipe, which was under tight control, labeled as concrete pipe, which was under no control, Sawyer declared:

"Here, as in the case of the nails, this incident occurred in 1947 and was possible because customs was not equipped to make any check of the commodity exported. Congress had not appropriated the money necessary for that purpose."

Sawyer said the senate committee also had "revealed" that "a man already under suspicion in connection with forged export licenses was by error granted permission to export a million dollars worth of goods two weeks after he came under suspicion."

The fact is, Sawyer said, "this license was cancelled as soon as the error was discovered and before any use could be made of it."

Concerning the "revelation" that a New York exporter claimed to have bought a number of forged export licenses, Sawyer said the shipments against those forged licenses occurred in 1947.

"And no one connected with the government participated, or was claimed to have participated, in the forgery."

Sawyer added that since he became secretary of commerce on May 6, this year, there has been no instance of irregularity in connection with the issuance of export licenses brought to my attention," by any senate committee members.

In connection with one irregularity about which he learned within the department he said a former employe of the office of international trade had admitted favoritism in granting two export licenses.

Sawyer said this employe was promptly suspended when the department found out about the situation, although he said the committee knew of it and failed to inform the department.

Meanwhile the commerce department announced that its export regulations will be tightened up effective Sept. 16.

cific fault-finding such as:

The communications troops talked too much on field telephones.

The radio contact men were too careless and could not resist "gabbing," which made the code easily breakable.

Night discipline was lax. Camp fires burned when security was supposed to be the watch word.

The 26th infantry regiment, commanded by Col. Sam T. Williams, came in for special praise. Its 1,000 men marched 14 miles at four miles an hour at night, split the aggressor lines, and crossed up the "enemy" intelligence.

This alone saved the division from a mythical smashing defeat.

state's 64 parishes (counties) of your willingness to run as an independent electoral candidate. Ten persons in the state must do this—two at large and one from each congressional district—at least ten days before election day, Nov. 2 this time, and their names must be posted conspicuously in the clerk's office.

"Louisiana's two recognized parties, Democrats and Republicans, have already complied with the first stipulation. The Progressives and the states' righters have met the second. Since the primary date is past, Truman electors can not use the nominating paper procedure. Their only course, then, is to follow the third course."

Martin said that, in printing the ballot, a blank space is always left anyway in the event voters prefer to write in a candidate's name. But unless the candidate has been certified, he added, the ballot would be spoiled.

Should ten persons announce their willingness to serve as Truman electors, Martin said a pro-Truman voter would have to "get the ten electors' names from the clerk, then write them in the blank space reserved for that purpose."

In Orleans and East Baton Rouge parishes (counties), where voting machines are used, Martin said a similar procedure would be followed:

"The machines are always set up for write-ins. On the face of the machine, right alongside the printed names of candidates, there are slides which open onto a sheet of paper inside. You'd open ten of these and write a candidate's name on each one. When you press the lever to open the polling booth curtain, the paper revolves and the machine is ready for the next voter."

Martin said yesterday's reshuffling of Democratic elector nominees, to set up an all anti-Truman slate was not entirely without precedent. In 1944, he said, a resolution binding Louisiana to actions of the national convention was defeated, 90 votes to six, and half the electors were either ousted or forced to resign when they refused to support the Roosevelt-Truman ticket.

announce that in keeping with the policy adopted at the first meeting after the war, in 1946, there will be no solicitation for ads in a fair catalog, the financing of the fair to be accomplished only through voluntary cooperation of the business interests of the Twin Cities and their trade area, through the sponsorship of shows, and what other means may be deemed practicable and expedient.

The objects of the fair are of course, primarily for the encouragement of and necessary education for the improvement and conservation of all types of farm produce, but it is not to be overlooked or discounted that the fair is the melting pot of ideas, in that it is a social center, where the farmers can mingle with the business people, making for better relationships between them, and the exchange of ideas between the farmers, and questions to be answered by the parish officials that would probably never be brought out by a visit to the agricultural office.

It is the ambition of the entire staff of the association, to give to the people of this area a bigger, better, more educational and enjoyable fair than they have ever had before, and to this end, the cooperation of all interested citizens is solicited.

BERLIN

For the first time they physically attacked Russian troops, showering them with rocks after Thursday's anti-Communist demonstration. Germans ripped the Red flag from atop Brandenburg gate. They stoned a Russian war memorial.

Today the Christian - Democrat newspaper went one step further. It advised the Russians to pull down the massive monument which they proudly erected to the conquest of Berlin.

"The Soviet military administration in Berlin has made every conceivable mistake," the newspaper said. "This monument is the worst. Never before in Europe has a victor erected a war monument in the capital of the conquered."

Adding to the cleavage, a British-licensed newspaper said the Russians had repatriated thousands of members of the Paulus-Seydlitz "free Germany" army, infiltrating them into the police forces throughout their zone. The report was given credence in allied intelligence quarters.

The move would give immediate strong-arm support to communism in the zone. A more distant and more vital objective could be to set up the nucleus for a Communist army if the western allies agreed with Russia to pull out occupation forces.

"The free Germany" army was formed after Stalingrad and is composed of Germans who have been converted to communism.

Berliners marked down the last few days as the "bloody week" of the crisis, with one dead and at least 20 injured. For the first time, Russian soldiers fired after a Soviet jeep was stone.

Violence began on Monday when Communist-led demonstrators stormed the city hall, forcing the anti-Red government to withdraw to the safety of the west—perhaps permanently.

Russian-directed German police crashed into an American office of the city hall on the following day and carried off in chains 19 western German policemen refuged there.

On the next night the Russians clamped a hunger blockade on the city hall to starve out a score more policemen still cornered in the British and French offices. They lifted this and guaranteed safe passage to the policemen but only a few blocks away Russians and Germans seized the police and carried them off.

These events burst into the culminating anti-Russian flareup in Thursday's demonstration.

service station colored employe who examined the engine and then informed that his only course was to push 'em to their destination.

"Where you all wants to go?" he asked. They told him the place in downtown Monroe where they were at that time almost due.

The "pushing process" started and they went four or five blocks in this primitive fashion until they picked up the middle-aged woman at her home. Somewhat upset at the equipage and its motor power, she also boarded the car.

"Where all you next want to go?" asked the pushing attendant.

The women informed that if he would only push over to a Lee avenue bus they would go to town thus and let him take his time in getting to the garage with the faltering auto. Luck seemed to be coming their way when a bus on Lee avenue hove in sight. They boarded it and were beginning to feel more normal, for they were sure now they would not be over 10 minutes late for the meeting. At Lee and Forrest there was an "explosion" resembling an atomic bomb blast. The rear wheel had a blowout and the bus load was stalled indefinitely.

And then the usually sedate senior of the trio declared to the younger women:

"We'll get out and do, what is it they call it, hitch-hike?" It was agreed upon.

Down came a lumbering, thundering truck. "No not that!" declared the suggestor of the project. Then came a nice new car with a pleasant-faced driver.

Up went the fore finger of a teacher. He stopped and all three clambored in. He proved a pleasing, sympathetic autoist and conveyed them to the very door of their meeting place. Later on they had a merry laugh over the afternoon's experiences. And it all happened on a FRIDAY!

A really worth while project has just been made possible through the efforts of Supt. J. C. Gresham, superintendent of the Louisiana Training Institute, who has secured financing of an earnest, talented youth who, after graduating from high school at the training institute last June, is now to make his dreams come true by entering Louisiana State University. This lad, Jimmy Dan Smith, 17, entered the institute some years ago at his own request. He had committed no crime, but was the unfortunate member of a broken home, his parents being divorced. He was sent here and proved a model student, excelling in scholarship and in course of time received his high school diploma. Superintendent Gresham learned that this ambitious youth desired to pursue a course in mechanical engineering at the state university, but that it would prove expensive and he had no money and his parents were unable to finance him. Then Superintendent Gresham got busy and secured contributions outside that will insure that the youth can be able to enter the state university this week.

It would seem that there is no better means of aiding in citizenship building than in assisting a youth who fills the qualifications of young Smith. Those who put up the money will never miss it and they will feel assured that they have done something that will ever be to their credit. A word of praise also is due to Superintendent Gresham. He is a newcomer here, but if he will help in advancing promising youth at the institute he will be rendering a great public service. He deserves great credit and here is wishing that young Smith makes "A's" in all his studies, and that success may crown his entire life's efforts.

Dmitri Karagheuzov, 35, who has been Bulgaria's acting consul general, vanished Thursday. Some reports said he might have been granted a visa and been spirited out of the country, perhaps to the United States. The American consul general, C. E. Macey, refused to comment on the case.

pledged electors, whose names will appear under Mr. Truman's on the ballot.

But the catch would be that the electors would vote for Mr. Truman only if his defeat otherwise was assured. If Thurmond needed their vote, it would be the understanding he could have it.

This plan would carry out the anti-Truman fight but would let the electors off the hook as "bolters" if their votes weren't needed to defeat the president.

News elsewhere was good—and bad—for Mr. Truman.

The New York state C. I. O. political action committee added itself to the list of organizations formally supporting the Truman-Barkley ticket.

But in Illinois, Henry Wallace's Progressive party carried to the state supreme court its fight for a place on the ballot. The state certifying board had turned down the party's petition.

Democrats have been fighting to keep the Progressives off the ballot in critical Illinois. If the Wallace group gets on most political observers think the balance would be tipped steeply for the Republicans, who already are claiming they will sweep the state.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican nominee, went back to his Pawling farm for a rest after a New York City conference with Gov. Robert F. Bradford of Massachusetts.

Dewey, who leaves next Sunday for his first formal speech of a western tour at Des Moines Sept. 20, said he and Bradford talked about greater cooperation between the states and the federal government.

The possibility was mentioned that Gov. Earl Warren of California, the vice-presidential nominee, might be assigned to bringing about such cooperation in the event Republicans win.

Dewey said that was possible. He added that he hadn't talked about it to Warren yet.

Meanwhile, Herbert Brownell, Jr., Dewey's campaign manager, announced the appointment of Bernard Katzen of New York City as an assistant.

Mr. Truman pointed up some of his western tour speeches in a week-end rest on the presidential yacht Williamsburg. He starts out Friday for Dexter, Iowa, to open his tour with a farm talk there.

Dewey will be following the president closely into three major cities on their separate tours.

After his appearance in Iowa, Dewey will speak in Denver Sept. 21, one day after a visit there by Mr. Truman. The Republican nominee will follow by one day the president's Sept. 23 appearance in Los Angeles and will be three days behind Mr. Truman's Sept. 22 arrival in San Francisco.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 11.—(AP)—States' rights sympathizers were accused here today of holding secret precinct meetings and of using "communistic tactics," in their attempts to gain control of the Democratic party in Texas.

These charges were made as the credentials sub-committee of the state Democratic executive committee began hearings to determine which of a dozen rival delegations would be seated at Tuesday's state Democratic convention.

It was the opening round in the convention battle between the pro-Truman or loyalist faction of the party and the states' rights group that has elected to stay within the party as long as possible to urge Governor J. Srom Thurmond as the Democratic presidential nominee in Texas.

While the credentials committee considered contests from Harris, Harrison, Tarrant and Dallas counties today, a steering committee of the loyalist faction met in executive session to plan strategy. This is the group following Governor Beauford H. Jester and Executive Committee Chairman Robert W. Calvert.

K. S. McNamee of Marshall, leader of a contesting delegation from Harrison county, told the credentials committee that states' righters held secret precinct conventions there in order to control the Harrison county convention. I. C. Underwood, Marshall attorney representing the delegation certified by county party officials, said "there was absolutely no secrecy" about any precinct convention in Marshall. He said McNamee and his group bolted the county convention without cause and that the second convention had no legal status.

The talk about communistic tactics came at the hearing on the Harris county dispute.

W. A. Combs, Houston attorney, said the states' righters were using such tactics to infiltrate and destroy the Democratic party from within. O. A. McCracken, Jr., represening the anti-Truman delegation headed by R. W. Milner, Jr., called this accusation "window dressing" and referred to the delegation led by Sam D. W. Low as "boltingcrats."

Low said that pro-Truman or loyalist Democrats were met by locked doors in many precinct conventions. "In some cases, they (the states' righters) grabbed the official papers and ran around the corner," Low charged.

McCracken's counter charge was that the contesting group was just an outvoted minority claiming the rights of the majority.

Combs contended that most of the Milner delegation had demonstrated publicly by their open advocacy of Governor Thurmond that they are not loyal to the Democratic party.

Opposing delegations of states' righters and Truman-loyalists also contended from Dallas and Tarrant counties. The committee planned to hear all before announcing its decision.

Texas states' rights Democrats Wednesday organized a states' rights party of Texas and named 23 electors pledged to Thurmond and Wright.

That was a move to assure the states' rights candidates will be on the November election ballot.

The states' righters also seek control of the state Democratic convention, which would let them control the Democratic party machinery. The contending today was part of that effort.

BOB HOPE DOES UNEXPECTED GAG

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The fact that Bob Hope changed writers has nothing to do with this gag.

The comedian was rehearsing last night for his new radio show. He had just come from dinner. Suddenly he gasped for breath.

For once there wasn't a funny crack from writer, cast or press agent. They called a doctor from the emergency hospital, who removed a fishbone from Hope's throat.

Hope recovered and went on with his usual gaggings.

GOOD PLOWING

SPILLVILLE, Ia., Sept. 11.—(AP)—A year ago Louis Andera, living near here lost his billfold while plowing. While doing some fall plowing recently the lost billfold turned up. The $85 in currency in it was somewhat decomposed but in good enough condition to be exchanged for new bills.

If Stomach Gas or Sour Food Taste Robs You of Sleep

Here's How You May Help, Whether You Eat 500 Pounds or 2000 Pounds of Food In a Year

You can't feel cheerful, be happy and sleep well, if your stomach is always upset. As age advances the "old stomach" needs more help. The reason is this:

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains very special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

from Northeast Junior College every day without cost to themselves.

The girl's dormitory is now practically filled by reservations from girl students whose place of residence prevents their commuting by bus. Thirty boys will be housed in the college stadium. The veterans' barracks at Selman field will accommodate 116 single men. Citizens of the twin cities are making rooms in their homes available to boarding students.

A full program of studies is being planned for the students who will soon be enrolled. Curricula and courses of approved college quality will include music, commerce, sciences, engineering, agriculture, home economics, social studies, pre-law, pre-medicine, pre-dental, and teacher education.

Plans permit students to enroll for a regular curriculum leading to a college diploma or degree, or to take a special program tailored to their needs if they do not plan to stay in college for a full two- or four-year schedule.

The official opening of the college will be on Wednesday, September 15. There will be a meeting of the entire faculty at 8 a. m. This will be followed by an assembly at 9:30 a. m. designed to begin a program of orientation for beginning students. All new students are expected to attend this assembly where they will receive instructions for registration and where they will be introduced to the general policies of the college.

Featured on this program will be the introduction of college and community leaders and an address by Miss Hazel Mitchell entitled, "The Spirit of N. J. C." Miss Mitchell is assistant professor of Spanish, chairman of the committee on student activities and is herself a graduate of Northeast Junior College.

Following the orientation assembly students will confer with their faculty advisers and will get acquainted with points of interest at the college.

Actual registration for beginning students will get under way at 1 p. m. Wednesday, and students will register by groups according to alphabetical order as follows:

Those whose last names begin with the letter A will register from 1-2; B, 2-3; C, and D, 3-4. On Thursday, September 16, the groups will be: E, F and G, 9-10 a. m.; H, 10-11; I, J and K, 11-12; L, Mc, 1-2 p. m.; M and N, 2-3; O, P, 3-4. On Friday, September 17, the groups will be: Q and R, 9-10 a. m.; S, T, U and V, 10-11; W, X, Y and Z, 11-12.

Second semester freshmen and all other students, including those transferring from other colleges, will register September 17 and September 20 in the following alphabetical order: On Friday, September 17: A, B, 1-2; C, D, E, 2-3; F, G, 3-4; and on Monday, September 20: H, I, 9-10; J, K, L, 10-11; Mc, M, N, 11-12; O, P, Q, R, 1-2; S, T, U, V, 2-3; W, X, Y and Z, 3-4.

Information about the new school session is available to those who will get in touch with the registrar or the dean. Inquiries are invited.

take them to Mindanao, big island a dozen miles to the south.

The transport General C. G. Morton sailed from Manila to aid the work, which was slowed by absence of wharves. All persons were having to come off in small boats.

Capt. William (Pineapple Bill) Murray of the General Morton expected to arrive off Camiguin late Sunday.

The small island is 450 miles southeast of Manila by air but about 700 by sea.

A U. S. navy plane dropped food to refugees huddled in the congested little towns on the southern shores of the island.

Estimates of the number on Camiguin varied widely. Previous reports from official sources had said 36,000 already had fled and about 14,000 remained. Later estimates said 20,000 were still in danger. Lack of census figures and the fact that many had reached nearby Mindanao in small boats made an accurate count impossible.

Captain Williams said local relief officials believed that the entire island could be evacuated by next Tuesday, however.

Season scrambled eggs with a little Worcestershire sauce, as well as salt and freshly-ground pepper; then serve with creamed dried beef and mushrooms for Sunday brunch. To make this a company meal start with a fresh fruit cocktail, add popovers, lots of good strong coffee and homemade peach or plum preserves.

"at least equal to the national pattern."

The west coast shipowners refused to deal with Harry Bridges' striking C. I. O. Longshoremen in handling army cargoes piled up in Pacific ports. The union had agreed to work army shipments on a pre-strike basis.

Secretary of the Army Royall Monday referred a union-army agreement Friday to west coast firms to resume work on army cargoes on the same conditions existing before the strike.

The employers said they would not deal with Bridges' union until union leaders sign non-Communist affidavits in compliance with the Taft-Hartley act.

Earlier, Bridges announced his union had rejected by secret ballot employers demands for the signing of non-Communist affidavits. However, he proposed that negotiations be resumed on union wage demands. The longshoremen seek a 13 cents hourly retroactive wage increase or 15 cents without retroactivity. The employers offered 10 cents without retroactivity but later withdrew this.

No signs of early settlement appeared as the C. I. O. Oil Refinery Workers strike against six major California producers went into its second week.

In Detroit, the Briggs Manufacturing Company appealed to its 25,000 idle production workers to return to work Monday. However, the C. I. O. United Auto Workers, speaking for the employes, declined. The walkout of 170 Briggs strike guards, members of an independent union, has made 50,000 auto workers idle since Wednesday in Briggs, Chrysler and Packard plants. Other workers have refused to pass through the picket lines.

ficient to pay food costs only. For a trial period a contribution of five cents as a minimum, and varying in some schools due to differences in costs, will be requested to pay labor and expenses other than for food. These items are not covered by funds to be received from the state department of education from federal and state sources. The contribution rate may increase if it proves inadequate to meet the expenses.

Facilities available at this time in schools having lunch programs last session with federal and state assistance will not permit service to all children immediately. Further announcements will be made by principals to children enrolled in schools where lunchrooms were not operated last session with federal and state support.

School officials have expressed the desire to co-operate with the state department of education in providing lunches to the children. Explanations concerning the plan for this session are to be given to superintendents, supervisors, visiting teachers, principals, and lunchroom directors at a meeting called by Superintendent of Education Shelby M. Jackson at Northeast Junior College, Saturday, September 18, at 9:30 a. m. Final plans for operation of lunchrooms cannot be given until after this meeting. Lunches can not be served all pupils until additional facilities are provided even though plans are revised by the state department of education whereby funds will be increased to cover labor, facilities, etc., in addition to the present allotment devoted entirely to the purchase of food.

is the direct or indirect product of congressional neglect."

During most of the period in which the report "mistakes" were made, Sawyer said, the enforcement staff of the office of international trade (OIT) consisted of one person.

"Since we have had adequate funds available, the OIT export control staff has been increased to 690 persons and a complete new enforcement program has been put into effect."

Sawyer's reference to the OIT having occupied a "death cell" was apparently based on the fact that at one time congress extended the trade office's life for 15 days while debating whether to discontinue its functions.

Sawyer said the impressions given the public by the current senate hearings "are so misleading and false that same statement of fact as distinguished from innuendo is called for."

As to the "revelation" that nails which might have been used for construction purposes were exported as shoe tacks," Sawyer said:

"So far as anyone knows now, these nails were never actually exported . . . ."

As to the "revelation" that one exporter shipped out cast iron soil pipe, which was under tight control, labeled as concrete pipe, which was under no control, Sawyer declared:

"Here, as in the case of the nails, this incident occurred in 1947 and was possible because customs was not equipped to make any check of the commodity exported. Congress had not appropriated the money necessary for that purpose."

Sawyer said the senate committee also had "revealed" that "a man already under suspicion in connection with forged export licenses was by error granted permission to export a million dollars worth of goods two weeks after he came under suspicion."

The fact is, Sawyer said, "this license was cancelled as soon as the error was discovered and before any use could be made of it."

Concerning the "revelation" that a New York exporter claimed to have bought a number of forged export licenses, Sawyer said the shipments against those forged licenses occurred in 1947.

"And no one connected with the government participated, or was claimed to have participated, in the forgery."

Sawyer added that since he became secretary of commerce on May 6, this year, there has been no instance of irregularity in connection with the issuance of export licenses brought to my attention," by any senate committee members.

In connection with one irregularity about which he learned within the department he said a former employe of the office of international trade had admitted favoritism in granting two export licenses.

Sawyer said this employe was promptly suspended when the department found out about the situation, although he said the committee knew of it and failed to inform the department.

Meanwhile the commerce department announced that its export regulations will be tightened up effective Sept. 16.

cific fault-finding such as;

The communications troops talked too much on field telephones.

The radio contact men were too careless and could not resist "gabbing," which made the code easily breakable.

Night discipline was lax. Camp fires burned when security was supposed to be the watch word.

The 26th infantry regiment, commanded by Col. Sam T. Williams, came in for special praise. Its 1,000 men marched 14 miles at four miles an hour at night, split the aggressor lines, and crossed up the "enemy" intelligence.

This alone saved the division from a mythical smashing defeat.

state's 64 parishes (counties) of your willingness to run as an independent electoral candidate. Ten persons in the state must do this—two at large and one from each congressional district—at least ten days before election day, Nov. 2 this time, and their names must be posted conspicuously in the clerk's office.

"Louisiana's two recognized parties, Democrats and Republicans, have already complied with the first stipulation. The Progressives and the states' righters have met the second. Since the primary date is past, Truman electors can not use the nominating paper procedure. Their only course, then, is to follow the third course."

Martin said that, in printing the ballot, a blank space is always left anyway in the event voters prefer to write in a candidate's name. But unless the cnadidate has been certified, he added, the ballot would be spoiled.

Should ten persons announce their willingness to serve as Truman electors, Martin said a pro-Truman voter would have to "get the ten electors' names from the clerk, then write them in the blank space reserved for that purpose."

In Orleans and East Baton Rouge parishes (counties), where voting machines are used, Martin said a similar procedure would be followed:

"The machines are always set up for write-ins. On the face of the machine, right alongside the printed names of candidates, there are slides which open onto a sheet of paper inside. You'd open ten of these and write a candidate's name on each one. When you press the lever to open the polling booth curtain, the paper revolves and the machine is ready for the next voter."

Martin said yesterday's reshuffling of Democratic elector nominees, to set up an all anti-Truman slate was not entirely without precedent. In 1944, he said, a resolution binding Louisiana to actions of the national convention was defeated, 90 votes to six, and half the electors were either ousted or forced to resign when they refused to support the Roosevelt-Truman ticket.

announce that in keeping with the policy adopted at the first meeting after the war, in 1946, there will be no solicitation for ads in a fair catalog, the financing of the fair to be accomplished only through voluntary cooperation of the business interests of the Twin Cities and their trade area, through the sponsorship of shows, and what other means may be deemed practicable and expedient.

The objects of the fair are of course, primarily for the encouragement of and necessary education for the improvement and conservation of all types of farm produce, but it is not to be overlooked or discounted that the fair is the melting pot of ideas, in that it is a social center, where the farmers can mingle with the business people, making for better relationships between them, and the exchange of ideas between the farmers, and questions to be answered by the parish officials that would probably never be brought out by a visit to the agricultural office.

It is the ambition of the entire staff of the association, to give to the people of this area a bigger, better, more educational and enjoyable fair than they have ever had before, and to this end, the cooperation of all interested citizens is solicited.

For the first time they physically attacked Russian troops, showering them with rocks after Thursday's anti-Communist demonstration. Germans ripped the Red flag from atop Brandenburg gate. They stoned a Russian war memorial.

Today the Christian - Democrat newspaper went one step further. It advised the Russians to pull down the massive monument which they proudly erected to the conquest of Berlin.

"The Soviet military administration in Berlin has made every conceivable mistake," the newspaper said. "This monument is the worst. Never before in Europe has a victor erected a war monument in the capital of the conquered."

Adding to the cleavage, a British-licensed newspaper said the Russians had repatriated thousands of members of the Paulus-Seydlitz "free Germany" army, infiltrating them into the police forces throughout their zone. The report was given credence in allied intelligence quarters.

The move would give immediate strong-arm support to communism in the zone. A more distant and more vital objective could be to set up the nucleus for a Communist army if the western allies agreed with Russia to pull out occupation forces.

"The free Germany" army was formed after Stalingrad and is composed of Germans who have been converted to communism.

Berliners marked down the last few days as the "bloody week" of the crisis, with one dead and at least 20 injured. For the first time, Russian soldiers fired after a Soviet jeep was stone.

Violence began on Monday when Communist-led demonstrators stormed the city hall, forcing the anti-Red government to withdraw to the safety of the west—perhaps permanently.

Russian-directed German police crashed into an American office of the city hall on the following day and carried off in chains 19 western German policemen refuged there.

On the next night the Russians clamped a hunger blockade on the city hall to starve out a score more policemen still cornered in the British and French offices. They lifted this and guaranteed safe passage to the policemen but only a few blocks away Russians and Germans seized the police and carried them off.

These events burst into the culminating anti-Russian flareup in Thursday's demonstration.

service station colored employe who examined the engine and then informed that his only course was to push 'em to their destination.

"Where you all wants to go?" he asked. They told him the place in downtown Monroe where they were at that time almost due.

The "pushing process" started and they went four or five blocks in this primitive fashion until they picked up the middle-aged woman at her home. Somewhat upset at the equipage and its motor power, she also boarded the car.

"Where all you next want to go?" asked the pushing attendant.

The women informed that if he would only push over to a Lee avenue bus they would go to town thus and let him take his time in getting to the garage with the faltering auto. Luck seemed to be coming their way when a bus on Lee avenue hove in sight. They boarded it and were beginning to feel more normal, for they were sure now they would not be over 10 minutes late for the meeting. At Lee and Forrest there was an "explosion" resembling an atomic bomb blast. The rear wheel had a blowout and the bus load was stalled indefinitely.

And then the usually sedate senior of the trio declared to the younger women:

"We'll get out and do, what is it they call it, hitch-hike?" It was agreed upon.

Down came a lumbering, thundering truck. "No not that!" declared the suggestor of the project. Then came a nice new car with a pleasant-faced driver.

Up went the fore finger of a teacher. He stopped and all three clambored in. He proved a pleasing, sympathetic autoist and conveyed them to the very door of their meeting place. Later on they had a merry laugh over the afternoon's experiences. And it all happened on a FRIDAY!

A really worth while project has just been made possible through the efforts of Supt. J. C. Gresham, superintendent of the Louisiana Training Institute, who has secured financing of an earnest, talented youth who, after graduating from high school at the training institute last June, is now to make his dreams come true by entering Louisiana State University. This lad, Jimmy Dan Smith, 17, entered the institute some years ago at his own request. He had committed no crime, but was the unfortunate member of a broken home, his parents being divorced. He was sent here and proved a model student, excelling in scholarship and in course of time received his high school diploma. Superintendent Gresham learned that this ambitious youth desired to pursue a course in mechanical engineering at the state university, but that it would prove expensive and he had no money and his parents were unable to finance him. Then Superintendent Gresham got busy and secured contributions outside that will insure that the youth can be able to enter the state university this week.

It would seem that there is no better means of aiding in citizenship building than in assisting a youth who fills the qualifications of young Smith. Those who put up the money will never miss it and they will feel assured that they have done something that will ever be to their credit. A word of praise also is due to Superintendent Gresham. He is a newcomer here, but if he will help in advancing promising youth at the institute he will be rendering a great public service. He deserves great credit and here is wishing that young Smith makes "A's" in all his studies, and that success may crown his entire life's efforts.

Dmitri Karagheuzov, 35, who has been Bulgaria's acting consul general, vanished Thursday. Some reports said he might have been granted a visa and been spirited out of the country, perhaps to the United States. The American consul general, C. E. Macey, refused to comment on the case.

pledged electors, whose names will appear under Mr. Truman's on the ballot.

But the catch would be that the electors would vote for Mr. Truman only if his defeat otherwise was assured. If Thurmond needed their vote, it would be the understanding he could have it.

This plan would carry out the anti-Truman fight but would let the electors off the hook as "bolters" if their votes weren't needed to defeat the president.

News elsewhere was good—and bad—for Mr. Truman.

The New York state C. I. O. political action committee added itself to the list of organizations formally supporting the Truman-Barkley ticket.

But in Illinois, Henry Wallace's Progressive party carried to the state supreme court its fight for a place on the ballot. The state certifying board had turned down the party's petition.

Democrats have been fighting to keep the Progressives off the ballot in critical Illinois. If the Wallace group gets on most political observers think the balance would be tipped steeply for the Republicans, who already are claiming they will sweep the state.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican nominee, went back to his Pawling farm for a rest after a New York City conference with Gov. Robert F. Bradford of Massachusetts.

Dewey, who leaves next Sunday for his first formal speech of a western tour at Des Moines Sept. 20, said he and Bradford talked about greater cooperation between the states and the federal government.

The possibility was mentioned that Gov. Earl Warren of California, the vice-presidential nominee, might be assigned to bringing about such cooperation in the event Republicans win.

Dewey said that was possible. He added that he hadn't talked about it to Warren yet.

Meanwhile, Herbert Brownell, Jr., Dewey's campaign manager, announced the appointment of Bernard Katzen of New York City as an assistant.

Mr. Truman pointed up some of his western tour speeches in a week-end rest on the presidential yacht Williamsburg. He starts out Friday for Dexter, Iowa, to open his tour with a farm talk there.

Dewey will be following the president closely into three major cities on their separate tours.

After his appearance in Iowa, Dewey will speak in Denver Sept. 21, one day after a visit there by Mr. Truman. The Republican nominee will follow by one day the president's Sept. 23 appearance in Los Angeles and will be three days behind Mr. Truman's Sept. 22 arrival in San Francisco.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 11.—(AP)—States' rights sympathizers were accused here today of holding secret precinct meetings and of using "communistic tactics," in their attempts to gain control of the Democratic party in Texas.

These charges were made as the credentials sub-committee of the state Democratic executive committee began hearings to determine which of a dozen rival delegations would be seated at Tuesday's state Democratic convention.

It was the opening round in the convention battle between the pro-Truman or loyalist faction of the party and the states' rights group that has elected to stay within the party as long as possible to urge Governor J. Srom Thurmond as the Democratic presidential nominee in Texas.

While the credentials committee considered contests from Harris, Harrison, Tarrant and Dallas counties today, a steering committee of the loyalist faction met in executive session to plan strategy. This is the group following Governor Beauford H. Jester and Executive Committee Chairman Robert W. Calvert.

K. S. McNamee of Marshall, leader of a contesting delegation from Harrison county, told the credentials committee that states' righters held secret precinct conventions there in order to control the Harrison county convention. I. C. Underwood, Marshall attorney representing the delegation certified by county party officials, said "there was absolutely no secrecy" about any precinct convention in Marshall. He said McNamee and his group bolted the county convention without cause and that the second convention had no legal status.

The talk about communistic tactics came at the hearing on the Harris county dispute.

W. A. Combs, Houston attorney, said the states' righters were using such tactics to infiltrate and destroy the Democratic party from within. O. A. McCracken, Jr., represening the anti-Truman delegation headed by R. W. Milner, Jr., called this accusation "window dressing" and referred to the delegation led by Sam D. W. Low as "boltingcrats."

Low said that pro-Truman or loyalist Democrats were met by locked doors in many precinct conventions. "In some cases, they (the states' righters) grabbed the official papers and ran around the corner," Low charged.

McCracken's counter charge was that the contesting group was just an outvoted minority claiming the rights of the majority.

Combs contended that most of the Milner delegation had demonstrated publicly by their open advocacy of Governor Thurmond that they are not loyal to the Democratic party.

Opposing delegations of states' righters and Truman-loyalists also contended from Dallas and Tarrant counties. The committee planned to hear all before announcing its decision.

Texas states' rights Democrats Wednesday organized a states' rights party of Texas and named 23 electors pledged to Thurmond and Wright.

That was a move to assure the states' rights candidates will be on the November election ballot.

The states' righters also seek control of the state Democratic convention, which would let them control the Democratic party machinery. The contending today was part of that effort.

BOB HOPE DOES UNEXPECTED GAG

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The fact that Bob Hope changed writers has nothing to do with this gag.

The comedian was rehearsing last night for his new radio show. He had just come from dinner. Suddenly he gasped for breath.

For once there wasn't a funny crack from writer, cast or press agent. They called a doctor from the emergency hospital, who removed a fishbone from Hope's throat.

Hope recovered and went on with his usual gaggings.

SPILLVILLE, Ia., Sept. 11.—(AP)—A year ago Louis Andera, living near here lost his billfold while plowing. While doing some fall plowing recently the lost billfold turned up. The $85 in currency in it was somewhat decomposed but in good enough condition to be exchanged for new bills.

If Stomach Gas or Sour Food Taste Robs You of Sleep

Here's How You May Help, Whether You Eat 500 Pounds or 2000 Pounds of Food In a Year

You can't feel cheerful, be happy and sleep well, if your stomach is always upset. As age advances the "old stomach" needs more help. The reason is this:

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains very special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

WEAKS SUPPLY 40 YEARS OLD

Was Established In 1908 And Has Grown With The Progress Of Industry

The Weaks Supply Co. Ltd., is rounding out 40 years of service to the public. It was established by the late George G. Weaks, Sr., in 1908 chiefly to render supply service to the sawmill industry. Oil mills and railroads also were clients and some of these still today are being served.

Later when the Monroe gas field was discovered, numerous lines were added to serve drillers and producers as well as the carbon black industry. Also later still when pipelines and compressor stations were required, this company was ready to furnish supplies here and in other southern states.

With the establishment of the pulp and paper industry there was a further expansion. Plumbing supplies and electrical goods also were added.

It is stated that this company has ever endeavored to progress with industry and to be able to supply any and virtually all needs.

The present building on North Fourth street was built in 1927 and in the warehouse there is an effort to maintain a stock of supplies which will give customers assurance of prompt deliveries and efficient supply service. There are ample railroad loading facilities and places for the loading of trucks when required.

GIBSON IS NAMED TO HEAD STATE HOTEL ASSOCIATION

McMeans Of Bastrop Is Elected To Serve Term As Vice President

Ernest C. Gibson, manager of the Frances Hotel, was elected president of the Louisiana Hotel Association yesterday at the final business session of the 23rd annual convention which was held here Friday and Saturday.

The hotel association elected Arthur J. McMeans of the Louisiana Hotel in Bastrop to serve as vice-president of the association for the coming year. William Worthington, representing the Southern Hotel in Covington, was re-elected to serve as sergeant-at-arms and Mrs. Gladys F. Piper, of New Orleans, re-installed as secretary-treasurer.

Elected to serve on the executive committee of the association were Coleman J. Hudson, of the Bentley Hotel in Alexandria; A. F. Spatafora, of the Monteleone Hotel, New Orleans; John J. O'Leary, of the St. Charles Hotel, New Orleans; Jack Tullos, of the Washington-Youree Hotel, Shreveport; Tom Wyman, of the Majestic Hotel, Lake Charles; Roland A. Bahan, of the LaSalle Hotel, New Orleans; Seymour Weiss, of the Roosevelt Hotel, New Orleans.

President of the Arkansas Hotel Association Clare Clark spoke at the early morning business meeting and stressed the importance of hotels building up community relations.

In his speech to over a hundred hotel managers and operators Clark pointed out that the community is the hotel's first market.

He stated further that the hotel is no longer exclusively for traveling people, but should be considered a center for civic affairs and entertainment.

"The entire community is often judged by some incident in the hotel whether good or bad," Clark said, "and often formulates the whole opinion of the community."

"Improved community relations mean better business for your hotel," Clark asserted.

Members of the association were commended by L. W. Dawson, representative of the veterans employment for Louisiana, on their assistance shown in providing jobs for physically handicapped veterans.

Dawson advocated "utilizing the service of these physical handicapped especially veterans who made supreme sacrifices for our country and are the grass roots of every community."

"The rise of national employment to new high peaks has improved job opportunities for disabled veterans and other handicapped workers but has not supplied sufficient job openings to assure gainful employment to disabled veterans as rapidly as they are ready for jobs," Lawson said.

"An additional 100,000 job opportunities will be needed this year, according to an official report forwarded to all state veterans employment representatives," he asserted.

"In Louisiana, the backlog of disabled veteran applicants has been reduced from 3,600 in 1946 to 1,400 in 1948," Lawson revealed.

These facts point to a coming manpower shortage. With this looming ahead, Dawson believes that partial answer is the utilization of the many trained and willing disabled veterans seeking their place in the labor force. These men and women are capable of producing in the equal competition with the non disabled when placed in the proper occupations.

Mel J. Deininger, of the Picks Hotels, Baton Rouge, spoke to the convention briefly on public relations. Deininger was the fiftieth president of the Ohio Hotel Association in 1943 and stressed the importance of a hotel's obligation to the industry.

"What hurts one hotel hurts the industry," Deininger said, and "hotels should not forget their obligations to the hotel industries and fellow men."

The Louisiana Hotel Association discussed having a joint annual convention with the Mississippi Hotel Association next year on the Gulf coast but a date for the meeting was not scheduled.

DON'T USE ALARM BOX FOR MAILING

Persons who are not acquainted with the newly painted fire alarm boxes in Monroe and mistake them for mail boxes, are herbey warned by J. D. Parker, superintendent of alarm, with the Monroe fire department, that anyone pulling a fire alarm box in attempting to mail a letter will highly irritate the fire department which is at the present time kept busy with the "real thing."

Parker stated that after the alarm boxes were painted recently, they evidently appeared as mail boxes to many persons who have inquired about whether or not they were mail boxes.

It is hoped, by the fire department, that those who haven't yet discovered the "New Look" of he painted alarm boxes will recognize them as property of the fire department and not the U. S. Postal Service. They are painted red with a silver ring painted above and below the pole on which they are installed.

WEAKS SUPPLY 40 YEARS OLD

Was Established In 1908 And Has Grown With The Progress Of Industry

The Weaks Supply Co. Ltd., is rounding out 40 years of service to the public. It was established by the late George G. Weaks, Sr., in 1908 chiefly to render supply service to the sawmill industry. Oil mills and railroads also were clients and some of these still today are being served.

Later when the Monroe gas field was discovered, numerous lines were added to serve drillers and producers as well as the carbon black industry. Also later still when pipelines and compressor stations were required, this company was ready to furnish supplies here and in other southern states.

With the establishment of the pulp and paper industry there was a further expansion. Plumbing supplies and electrical goods also were added.

It is stated that this company has ever endeavored to progress with industry and to be able to supply any and virtually all needs.

The present building on North Fourth street was built in 1927 and in the warehouse there is an effort to maintain a stock of supplies which will give customers assurance of prompt deliveries and efficient supply service. There are ample railroad loading facilities and places for the loading of trucks when required.

REDSKINS AWAIT NORTHWEST MISSISSIPPI

N. J. C. LAUNCHES FOOTBALL WARS THURSDAY NIGHT

Coach Malone Lifts Curtain On Squad To Reveal Probable Starters

Lifting the curtain that has shrouded the Northeast Junior College football squad through nearly two weeks of training, Coach James L. Malone yesterday gave a "glimpse" at his probable starting lineup with the announcement that the team that will open against the Northwest Mississippi Rangers of Senatobia here Thursday night has about been decided.

The Indians will swing into action with an all-letterman backfield, but all were understudies to the No. 1 combination lost from last season.

Doyle Penton, a 160-pounder who got into action plenty last year, particularly when Woody Boyles was nursing a broken leg, has been assigned to the quarterback slot. Fleet Al Carter, also at 160 pounds, will be in the left halfback position, and Joe Glen Gibson, who worked at left half last year, will pack his 170 pounds in the right half position this trip.

Power-driving Ernie Murphee, 185, who lettered at halfback, is drawing the fullback assignment.

With the exception of the starting center job, the line positions also appear to be sewed up.

Malone said Thomas Moncrief and Don Vining are tagged to start at the ends. Charles "Red" Dillon and James Raines, the latter a freshman, are due to start at the tackles, and the guard positions are to be in the mighty capable hands of Claude Brawner and Charles "Bud" Cain, both regulars last year although Cain won his letter as a tackle.

George "Punie" Roach and Dan Neville apparently are running a neck-and-neck race for the pivot position and both are sure to see plenty of action Thursday night. Roach was formerly a standout tackle at Neville High School here, and Dan Neville was on the second All-Southern high school team while with Baton Rouge High School. Roach looms mighty strong as a defensive player, and Neville, despite the fact that he's about the smallest player on the squad at 150 pounds, is a deadly blocker.

Coach Malone, who has been dodging comment concerning his team as if to do so would be giving out military secrets, finally admitted what the rail birds have been noting all along.

"We've got speed, in the line as well at the backfield, and the club displays the necessary finesse to operate from the T formation which we will specialize," Malone said.

Danks, a freshman, looks like a mighty good prospect for the "man down under" in the T system. He's also an exceptional passer who resembles in many respects Tommy Hines, the Alabama lad who worked with the Redskins in 1946, although Danks is much taller and heavier. He's also tagged as the No. 1 punter.

Yesterday morning Malone put his Indians through the roughest scrimmage session they've had to date, and the Indian mentor expressed belief it was the toughest he had ever put a club through in his 15 seasons here. But the Warriors gobbled it up, and were asking for more when the show was over.

The drill was not without its casualties although they were mostly of minor significance. Chief injury was a gashed eye suffered by Tackle John Grimm, a 240-pounder.

Rex Pensinger, who was injured while running at fullback last week, expects to be discharged by his physician Tuesday and will be back shooting for the job which is currently in the hands of Murphree and Ochoa.

Tickets for the Northwest Mississippi game will be on sale all this week at Wilson-Lockhart Sporting Goods, and fans are being urged to get their's early to avoid the congestion at the gate.

SULPHUR FALLS BEFORE BYRD'S JACKETS, 20 TO 7

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 11.—(AP)—The Byrd High Yellow Jackets raised the curtain on the 1948 gridiron season here with a 20 to 7 victory over the Sulphur Tornadoes last night.

Paul Winder, 145-pound quarterback, ignited the Yellow Jackets for their first score early in the second quarter. He took a Sulphur punt on his own 48 and flashed down the left sideline and over the Tornado goal line to break up a scoreless deadlock.

Byrd came back quickly in the second half as Spivens Rosenblath intercepted a Tornado aerial on the 49, and returned it to the 31-yard marker. Winder faded back from the "T" and hit Dickie Murray on the button to the 11. Winder went off the right side of the line for his second touchdown of the game. Charles Worley's placement went squarely between the uprights and Byrd went out in front, 13-0.

John Childers, in his fourth campaign as Byrd High regular, took a lateral from Winder on the home town's 34. He raced around left end for a 28-yard spree, finally being caught down on the Tornados' 28 as the third quarter ended.

Red Shield Club, favored to gain the finals, opens the two-out-of-three play with Sigma Phi Omega on the Neville High School diamond this afternoon, while the W. O. W. club will meet the Wham Alligators on the diamond at Fairbanks.

It is planned to hasten the series along by playing night week-day games, and the sites and times for such meetings will be announced later.

Football rosters, so populated with 17-year-olds in the war years, have gone back to the "big boys" if the University of Texas 1948 lineup is indicative. Only one teen-ager is in the starting eleven—18-year-old Errol Fry, who despite his tender years is a junior and in his third year of college football.

LOUISIANA HUNTERS FACED WITH REVISED GAME LAWS

Rabbit And Squirrel Seasons Shorter; Morning Dove Hunting Forbidden

Revisions in state hunting laws face Louisiana sportsmen during the season opening Thursday and lasting through February 15 with chief changes being the shortening of rabbit and squirrel season, closing of the bear and turkey seasons, and reducing the license fee from $2 back to $1.

The first half of the split season on doves opens Thursday and closes October 5. The second half of dove hunting will be from December 24 to January 12. Doves cannot be hunted in the morning.

From October 6 through October 14 all hunting in the state will be illegal, but the season swings into action again with the opening of the rabbit season October 15.

In addition to the closing of the season on bears and turkey, squirrels and rabbits are getting the benefit of additional protection. In recent years the season on rabbits and squirrels has opened on October 1, but this trip the squirrel season won't open until November 1, and the hunting of rabbits can legally begin October 15. The rabbit season, which has been extending to March 1, will close this season on Feruary 15.

Additional protection has been afforded the rabbit by new regulations forbidding the sale of the animal. For several seasons sale of rabbit meat was permissible while all other game could not be sold. Now rabbits join the list with the expectation that such regulations will stop the mass killings of the animal for the commercial market. Only game that can be sold is meat of fur animals trapped during the open season by holders of trapping licenses.

Hunting licenses for the state have already been put on sale here by Sheriff Bailey Grant, and may be obtained at the sheriff's office or at Hunt and Whitaker, Kiper Hardware, Cook and Preddy, Gene's Sporting Goods, New York Furniture Company, Wilson-Lockhart Sporting Goods, May and Guthrie Hardware, John's Trading Post, Rizzo's Pharmacy, Star Furniture Company, Farmer's Feed and Seed Store, Southerland Sports Shop, Haddad's Hardware in Monroe; Brown Clothing, Mills Furniture and Millsaps Furniture in West Monroe; O. K. Bailey Mercantile Company, Sterlington; and Fred Hill, Swartz.

Except for last year, the hunting licenses have sold for $1, the price it will take again this season. The $2-fee went into effect last year with half of the amount to be divided between Ducks Unlimited and a state fund to be built up for the purpose of buying public hunting grounds.

The department of wild life and fisheries has released regulations for the 1948-49 season as follows:

License provisions—Resident hunters under 60 years of age must pay $1 for license, and hunters over 60 must have a permit obtained from the sheriff's office. Fees for non-residents are $25, and the trapping fee, for residents only, is $2.

Shipment of game—All game shipped by hunter on common carrier must be tagged by hunter, stating when killed and giving hunter's license number. No game may be shipped from the state without special permit, but non-resident hunter may take with him two days' bag limit of resident game birds.

Sale of game—The sale of all wild birds and all wild game animals, in open season, is absolutely prohibited. The meat of fur animals trapped during the open season may be sold by holder of trapping license.

Not more than one day's bag limit of ducks may be possessed opening day.

Coots (Poule-d'Eau)—November 12 to December 11, inclusive. Bag limit 15, possession limit 15.

Geese—November 12 to December 11, inclusive. Daily bag and possession limit is four, including in such limit either two Canada geese (including Hutchinson or cackling geese) or two white-fronted or speckled-belly geese, or one of each.

TIGERS REBUILD WITH COMPLETE NEW BACKFIELD

Bengals Away From Home For Battle With Strong Crimson Wave

The Neville High School Tigers, with a complete new backfield, open their season at Minden next Friday night when they tangle with the Minden High School Crimson Wave at 8 o'clock.

Apparently the Bengals will be moving into fast company right from the start as the Wave put up surprising resistance Friday night in holding the defending state Class A Champion Ruston Bearcats to a 19-0 victory, and reports indicate the battle was even closer than even the score indicates.

"It begins to look like we will be in for a little more than we bargained for," Coach Bill Ruple said yesterday. "After watching Minden in action against Ruston, we can't deny that the Wave will give us a hard battle."

Coach Ruple also announced his Tiger lineup is about set and awaits only the polishing touches this week.

David Kahn and Billy Corser are installed at the ends with Capt. Joe Love and H. M. Butler handling the tackles. Bob Brummel, Jack Parker, and a newcomer, Kenneth Lewis, are battling for the staring guard assignments, and Wayne Moore will be holding down center.

With his complete 1947 starting backfield among the 18 players lost from last season's squad, Coach Ruple has had to develop a new set of backs.

The backfield Friday night will open with Vernon Sanders at quarterback, Ronald Gunter at right half, Sam Shepard at left half, and Jerry Brooks at fullback.

The Neville team last year lost only two games, each by one-point margins to Bogalusa's Class AA state champs, and Ruston's Class A state titlists, but, in remoulding his backfield in quest of something resembling last season's stellar combination, Coach Ruple moved All-State Guard Gunter, and End Sam Shepard into the ball handling department to find the combination he desired.

The backs appear well fortified with reserves, including Benny Heidenrich, Guy Dupriest, W. T. Brown, Harold Bassett, Joe Lasuzza, Sam Campbell, Larry Tucker, and Bobby Ledbetter.

The Neville band, Tigerettes, cheerleaders, and other Neville supporters plan to follow the team to Minden.

TICKETS ON SALE

The advanced sale of season tickets to home games of the Neville High School football team begins tomorrow with the pasteboards covering five battles on sale at Wilson-Lockhart Sporting Goods, Haddad Hardware, and at Neville High.

The season tickets are being sold for $4.50 to adults and $2.25 to children.

MANGHAM DEFEATS POINT IN 12 INNINGS

MANGHAM, La., Sept. 11.—(Special) The Mangham baseball club, which ends its season against Bernice here next Tuesday night, defeated the Point Red Sox, champs of the Little Eight League, 10 to 9, here Friday night in a battle that went 12 innings.

Johnny Ballance, who performed at third base with the Winnsboro Red Sox in the hose drive to the state semi-pro title and a place in the National Baseball Congress meet at Wichita, Kan., led Mangham to victory with his lusty hitting.

Ballance banked out three home runs and a double in five times at bat, one of his circuit clouts being the game winning blow in the twelfth.

The game was the third of the season with Point and gave Mangham a 2 to 1 edge in the series.

FAIR PARK, MARSHALL BATTLE TO 7 TO 7 TIE

MARSHALL, Tex., Sept. 11.—(AP)—In a nip and tuck affair the Fair Park Indians and Marshall Mavericks battled to a 7-7 tie Friday night before 5,000 fans.

The Mavericks paced by fleet-footed Cahlen Dinkle had the better of the going around the midfield but on three occasions in the first half the Shreveporters held the Texans within the Indian 15-yard line.

More than 200 cowboys have entered the various contests to be held at the 23rd annual Madison Square Garden rodeo, September 29-October 24.

FERRIDAY DRILLS BECOME ROUGHER

Bulldogs End Light Workouts; Four Veterans Will Lead Eleven This Year

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 11.—(Special)—With a week of light contact and signal drills under their belts, the Ferriday Bulldogs will next week turn to all out scrimmaging and a polishing up of their offense.

The past week has been devoted to ball handling, blocking and tackling drills, Coaches Charley Loomis and Ray Harris employing "spot" scrimmage and frequent changes and substitutions. They have been able to size up most of their prospects and work out several effective combinations. Ferriday's offense is particularly looking good.

The mentors of the Bulldogs will depend on veterans Joe Price Lancaster, Alvah Stuart, Jack Lancaster and Charles Albert Massey. The Lancaster boys with Jack's speed and Joe Price's speed, power and hard shifty running, should prove valuable to the team. Alvah Stuart is very fast and very hard to drag down. Massey with a sizeable increase in weight over last year, has changed from a good little player to a good big one. He will probably share part of the punting duties, probably, and Joe Price promises to be pretty effective in the passing department.

Bill Gore looks good in scrimmage and will play a lot of halfback for the Bulldogs this year. All of the others are showing up well.

This year's schedule follows the pattern of past schedules in respect to completeness and difficulty, so being able to point to certain tough games, Coach Loomis' charges will have to play each game as it comes and maintain a peak of efficiency.

Workouts will be continued on next Monday, it was announced.

HAYNESVILLE'S TORNADO DOWNS SPRINGHILL, 30-0

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Jackie Martin averaged 16 yards per try last night as the Haynesville Golden Tornado defeated the Springhill Lumberjacks, 30-0.

The Tornado All-Stater took a 40-yard pass from M. D. Ray to set up the first Haynesville score.

In the second half Beasley ran 26 yards; Ray passed to Garland May for 23 more and Craig carried it over from the one. After the Jacks failed to gain they punted and Martin romped 64 yards for another score.

BASTROP'S COLE WINS ATTENTION OF TIGER COACH

Quarterback Sure To Share Whatever Glory Awaits L. S. U. Eleven

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 11.—(Special)—Bastrop's contribution to the Louisiana State University eleven is Jack Cole, hailed around these parts as one of the sophomore finds of the season.

An 18-year-old quarterback, signal caller and aerialist, Cole is a natural under the center on the Tigers' T-formation. He is at his best when a quick, flat pass to either of the ends is in order.

Gaynell Tinsley, the Bayou Bengals new head man, will probably call upon Cole to share the quarterback berth with Charlie Pevey, two others who like Cole are sophomores, Ray Porta and Fred Brechtel, and junior Carroll Griffith, who will also perform at right half. And Tinsley will need them all when the going gets tough this fall.

For the Tigers will have their backs against the wall most of the campaign. There is not one breather during the season. After two away-from-homers with a pair of rugged Southwest Conference contenders, Texas and Rice, the Purple and Gold meets Texas A. and M., Georgia, North Carolina, Ole Miss, Vanderbilt, Mississippi State, Alabama and Tulane.

The North Carolina and Vanderbilt games are also road engagements.

Cole has most of the requirements of a first-rate back. He's got determination, confidence and aggressiveness. With some college experience behind him—he won his frosh numeral last fall—he will be practically a cinch to make anybody's team.

For a quarterback, Cole weighs enough. At 180 pounds, his six-one frame carries him well and fast. He makes full use of his deceptive powers.

He began his football days at Bastrop High School, and lettered in football, baseball and baseball before he was graduated in 1947. His coach, Charles Thomas, tutored him in all three sports, developing him into a forward in basketball and a baseball shortstop, as well as a back in football.

In his last year he made honorable mention, all-state in football.

Cole's father, J. M. Cole, resides at 125 Herrington avenue in Bastrop.

REDSKINS AWAIT NORTHWEST MISSISSIPPI

N. J. C. LAUNCHES FOOTBALL WARS THURSDAY NIGHT

Coach Malone Lifts Curtain On Squad To Reveal Probable Starters

Lifting the curtain that has shrouded the Northeast Junior College football squad through nearly two weeks of training, Coach James L. Malone yesterday gave a "glimpse" at his probable starting lineup with the announcement that the team that will open against the Northwest Mississippi Rangers of Senatobia here Thursday night has about been decided.

The Indians will swing into action with an all-letterman backfield, but all were understudies to the No. 1 combination lost from last season.

Doyle Penton, a 160-pounder who got into action plenty last year, particularly when Woody Boyles was nursing a broken leg, has been assigned to the quarterback slot. Fleet Al Carter, also at 160 pounds, will be in the left halfback position, and Joe Glen Gibson, who worked at left half last year, will pack his 170 pounds in the right half position this trip.

Power-driving Ernie Murphee, 185, who lettered at halfback, is drawing the fullback assignment.

With the exception of the starting center job, the line positions also appear to be sewed up.

Malone said Thomas Moncrief and Don Vining are tagged to start at the ends. Charles "Red" Dillon and James Raines, the latter a freshman, are due to start at the tackles, and the guard positions are to be in the mighty capable hands of Claude Brawner and Charles "Bud" Cain, both regulars last year although Cain won his letter as a tackle.

George "Punie" Roach and Dan Neville apparently are running a neck-and-neck race for the pivot position and both are sure to see plenty of action Thursday night. Roach was formerly a standout tackle at Neville High School here, and Dan Neville was on the second All-Southern high school team while with Baton Rouge High School. Roach looms mighty strong as a defensive player, and Neville, despite the fact that he's about the smallest player on the squad at 150 pounds, is a deadly blocker.

Coach Malone, who has been dodging comment concerning his team as if to do so would be giving out military secrets, finally admitted what the rail birds have been noting all along.

"We've got speed, in the line as well at the backfield, and the club displays the necessary finesse to operate from the T formation which we will specialize," Malone said.

Danks, a freshman, looks like a mighty good prospect for the "man down under" in the T system. He's also an exceptional passer who resembles in many respects Tommy Hines, the Alabama lad who worked with the Redskins in 1946, although Danks is much taller and heavier. He's also tagged as the No. 1 punter.

Yesterday morning Malone put his Indians through the roughest scrimmage session they've had to date, and the Indian mentor expressed belief it was the toughest he had ever put a club through in his 15 seasons here. But the Warriors gobbled it up, and were asking for more when the show was over.

Rex Pensinger, who was injured while running at fullback last week, expects to be discharged by his physician Tuesday and will be back shooting for the job which is currently in the hands of Murphree and Ochoa.

Tickets for the Northwest Mississippi game will be on sale all this week at Wilson-Lockhart Sporting Goods, and fans are being urged to get their's early to avoid the congestion at the gate.

The W. O. W. League swings into its championship playoff series today with the four leading clubs battling it out in the semi-final games.

Red Shield Club, favored to gain the finals, opens the two-out-of-three play with Sigma Phi Omega on the Neville High School diamond this afternoon, while the W. O. W. club will meet the Wham Alligators on the diamond at Fairbanks.

It is planned to hasten the series along by playing night week-day games, and the sites and times for such meetings will be announced later.

Football rosters, so populated with 17-year-olds in the war years, have gone back to the "big boys" if the University of Texas 1948 lineup is indicative. Only one teen-ager is in the starting eleven—18-year-old Errol Fry, who despite his tender years is a junior and in his third year of college football.

LOUISIANA HUNTERS FACED WITH REVISED GAME LAWS

Rabbit And Squirrel Seasons Shorter; Morning Dove Hunting Forbidden

Revisions in state hunting laws face Louisiana sportsmen during the season opening Thursday and lasting through February 15 with chief changes being the shortening of rabbit and squirrel season, closing of the bear and turkey seasons, and reducing the license fee from $2 back to $1.

The first half of the split season on doves opens Thursday and closes October 5. The second half of dove hunting will be from December 24 to January 12. Doves cannot be hunted in the morning.

From October 6 through October 14 all hunting in the state will be illegal, but the season swings into action again with the opening of the rabbit season October 15.

In addition to the closing of the season on bears and turkey, squirrels and rabbits are getting the benefit of additional protection. In recent years the season on rabbits and squirrels has opened on October 1, but this trip the squirrel season won't open until November 1, and the hunting of rabbits can legally begin October 15. The rabbit season, which has been extending to March 1, will close this season on Feruary 15.

Additional protection has been afforded the rabbit by new regulations forbidding the sale of the animal. For several seasons sale of rabbit meat was permissible while all other game could not be sold. Now rabbits join the list with the expectation that such regulations will stop the mass killings of the animal for the commercial market. Only game that can be sold is meat of fur animals trapped during the open season by holders of trapping licenses.

Hunting licenses for the state have already been put on sale here by Sheriff Bailey Grant, and may be obtained at the sheriff's office or at Hunt and Whitaker, Kiper Hardware, Cook and Preddy, Gene's Sporting Goods, New York Furniture Company, Wilson-Lockhart Sporting Goods, May and Guthrie Hardware, John's Trading Post, Rizzo's Pharmacy, Star Furniture Company, Farmer's Feed and Seed Store, Southerland Sports Shop, Haddad's Hardware in Monroe; Brown Clothing, Mills Furniture and Millsaps Furniture in West Monroe; O. K. Bailey Mercantile Company, Sterlington; and Fred Hill, Swartz.

Except for last year, the hunting licenses have sold for $1, the price it will take again this season. The $2-fee went into effect last year with half of the amount to be divided between Ducks Unlimited and a state fund to be built up for the purpose of buying public hunting grounds.

The department of wild life and fisheries has released regulations for the 1948-49 season as follows:

License provisions—Resident hunters under 60 years of age must pay $1 for license, and hunters over 60 must have a permit obtained from the sheriff's office. Fees for non-residents are $25, and the trapping fee, for residents only, is $2.

Shipment of game—All game shipped by hunter on common carrier must be tagged by hunter, stating when killed and giving hunter's license number. No game may be shipped from the state without special permit, but non-resident hunter may take with him two days' bag limit of resident game birds.

Sale of game—The sale of all wild birds and all wild game animals, in open season, is absolutely prohibited. The meat of fur animals trapped during the open season may be sold by holder of trapping license.

TIGERS REBUILD WITH COMPLETE NEW BACKFIELD

Bengals Away From Home For Battle With Strong Crimson Wave

The Neville High School Tigers, with a complete new backfield, open their season at Minden next Friday night when they tangle with the Minden High School Crimson Wave at 8 o'clock.

Apparently the Bengals will be moving into fast company right from the start as the Wave put up surprising resistance Friday night in holding the defending state Class A Champion Ruston Bearcats to a 19-0 victory, and reports indicate the battle was even closer than even the score indicates.

"It begins to look like we will be in for a little more than we bargained for," Coach Bill Ruple said yesterday. "After watching Minden in action against Ruston, we can't deny that the Wave will give us a hard battle."

Coach Ruple also announced his Tiger lineup is about set and awaits only the polishing touches this week.

David Kahn and Billy Corser are installed at the ends with Capt. Joe Love and H. M. Butler handling the tackles. Bob Brummel, Jack Parker, and a newcomer, Kenneth Lewis, are battling for the staring guard assignments, and Wayne Moore will be holding down center.

With his complete 1947 starting backfield among the 18 players lost from last season's squad, Coach Ruple has had to develop a new set of backs.

The backfield Friday night will open with Vernon Sanders at quarterback, Ronald Gunter at right half, Sam Shepard at left half, and Jerry Brooks at fullback.

The Neville team last year lost only two games, each by one-point margins to Bogalusa's Class AA state champs, and Ruston's Class A state titlists, but, in remoulding his backfield in quest of something resembling last season's stellar combination, Coach Ruple moved All-State Guard Gunter, and End Sam Shepard into the ball handling department to find the combination he desired.

The backs appear well fortified with reserves, including Benny Heidenrich, Guy Dupriest, W. T. Brown, Harold Bassett, Joe Lasuzza, Sam Campbell, Larry Tucker, and Bobby Ledbetter.

The Neville band, Tigerettes, cheerleaders, and other Neville supporters plan to follow the team to Minden.

TICKETS ON SALE

The advanced sale of season tickets to home games of the Neville High School football team begins tomorrow with the pasteboards covering five battles on sale at Wilson-Lockhart Sporting Goods, Haddad Hardware, and at Neville High.

The season tickets are being sold for $4.50 to adults and $2.25 to children.

MANGHAM DEFEATS POINT IN 12 INNINGS

MANGHAM, La., Sept. 11.—(Special) The Mangham baseball club, which ends its season against Bernice here next Tuesday night, defeated the Point Red Sox, champs of the Little Eight League, 10 to 9, here Friday night in a battle that went 12 innings.

Johnny Ballance, who performed at third base with the Winnsboro Red Sox in the hose drive to the state semi-pro title and a place in the National Baseball Congress meet at Wichita, Kan., led Mangham to victory with his lusty hitting.

Ballance banked out three home runs and a double in five times at bat, one of his circuit clouts being the game winning blow in the twelfth.

The game was the third of the season with Point and gave Mangham a 2 to 1 edge in the series.

FAIR PARK, MARSHALL BATTLE TO 7 TO 7 TIE

MARSHALL, Tex., Sept. 11.—(AP)—In a nip and tuck affair the Fair Park Indians and Marshall Mavericks battled to a 7-7 tie Friday night before 5,000 fans.

The Mavericks paced by fleet-footed Cahlen Dinkle had the better of the going around the midfield but on three occasions in the first half the Shreveporters held the Texans within the Indian 15-yard line.

More than 200 cowboys have entered the various contests to be held at the 23rd annual Madison Square Garden rodeo, September 29-October 24.

FERRIDAY DRILLS BECOME ROUGHER

Bulldogs End Light Workouts; Four Veterans Will Lead Eleven This Year

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 11.—(Special)—With a week of light contact and signal drills under their belts, the Ferriday Bulldogs will next week turn to all out scrimmaging and a polishing up of their offense.

The past week has been devoted to ball handling, blocking and tackling drills, Coaches Charley Loomis and Ray Harris employing "spot" scrimmage and frequent changes and substitutions. They have been able to size up most of their prospects and work out several effective combinations. Ferriday's offense is particularly looking good.

The mentors of the Bulldogs will depend on veterans Joe Price Lancaster, Alvah Stuart, Jack Lancaster and Charles Albert Massey. The Lancaster boys with Jack's speed and Joe Price's speed, power and hard shifty running, should prove valuable to the team. Alvah Stuart is very fast and very hard to drag down. Massey with a sizeable increase in weight over last year, has changed from a good little player to a good big one. He will probably share part of the punting duties, probably, and Joe Price promises to be pretty effective in the passing department.

Bill Gore looks good in scrimmage and will play a lot of halfback for the Bulldogs this year. All of the others are showing up well.

This year's schedule follows the pattern of past schedules in respect to completeness and difficulty, so being able to point to certain tough games, Coach Loomis' charges will have to play each game as it comes and maintain a peak of efficiency.

Workouts will be continued on next Monday, it was announced.

HAYNESVILLE'S TORNADO DOWNS SPRINGHILL, 30-0

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Jackie Martin averaged 16 yards per try last night as the Haynesville Golden Tornado defeated the Springhill Lumberjacks, 30-0.

The Tornado All-Stater took a 40-yard pass from M. D. Ray to set up the first Haynesville score.

In the second half Beasley ran 26 yards; Ray passed to Garland May for 23 more and Craig carried it over from the one. After the 'Jacks failed to gain they punted and Martin romped 64 yards for another score.

BASTROP'S COLE WINS ATTENTION OF TIGER COACH

Quarterback Sure To Share Whatever Glory Awaits L. S. U. Eleven

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 11.—(Special)—Bastrop's contribution to the Louisiana State University eleven is Jack Cole, hailed around these parts as one of the sophomore finds of the season.

An 18-year-old quarterback, signal caller and aerialist, Cole is a natural under the center on the Tigers' T-formation. He is at his best when a quick, flat pass to either of the ends is in order.

Gaynell Tinsley, the Bayou Bengals new head man, will probably call upon Cole to share the quarterback berth with Charlie Pevey, two others who like Cole are sophomores, Ray Porta and Fred Brechtel, and junior Carroll Griffith, who will also perform at right half. And Tinsley will need them all when the going gets tough this fall.

For the Tigers will have their backs against the wall most of the campaign. There is not one breather during the season. After two away-from-homers with a pair of rugged Southwest Conference contenders, Texas and Rice, the Purple and Gold meets Texas A. and M., Georgia, North Carolina, Ole Miss, Vanderbilt, Mississippi State, Alabama and Tulane.

The North Carolina and Vanderbilt games are also road engagements.

Cole has most of the requirements of a first-rate back. He's got determination, confidence and aggressiveness. With some college experience behind him—he won his frosh numeral last fall—he will be practically a cinch to make anybody's team.

For a quarterback, Cole weighs enough. At 180 pounds, his six-one frame carries him well and fast. He makes full use of his deceptive powers.

He began his football days at Bastrop High School, and lettered in football, basektball and baseball before he was graduated in 1947. His coach, Charles Thomas, tutored him in all three sports, developing him into a forward in basketball and a baseball shortstop, as well as a back in football.

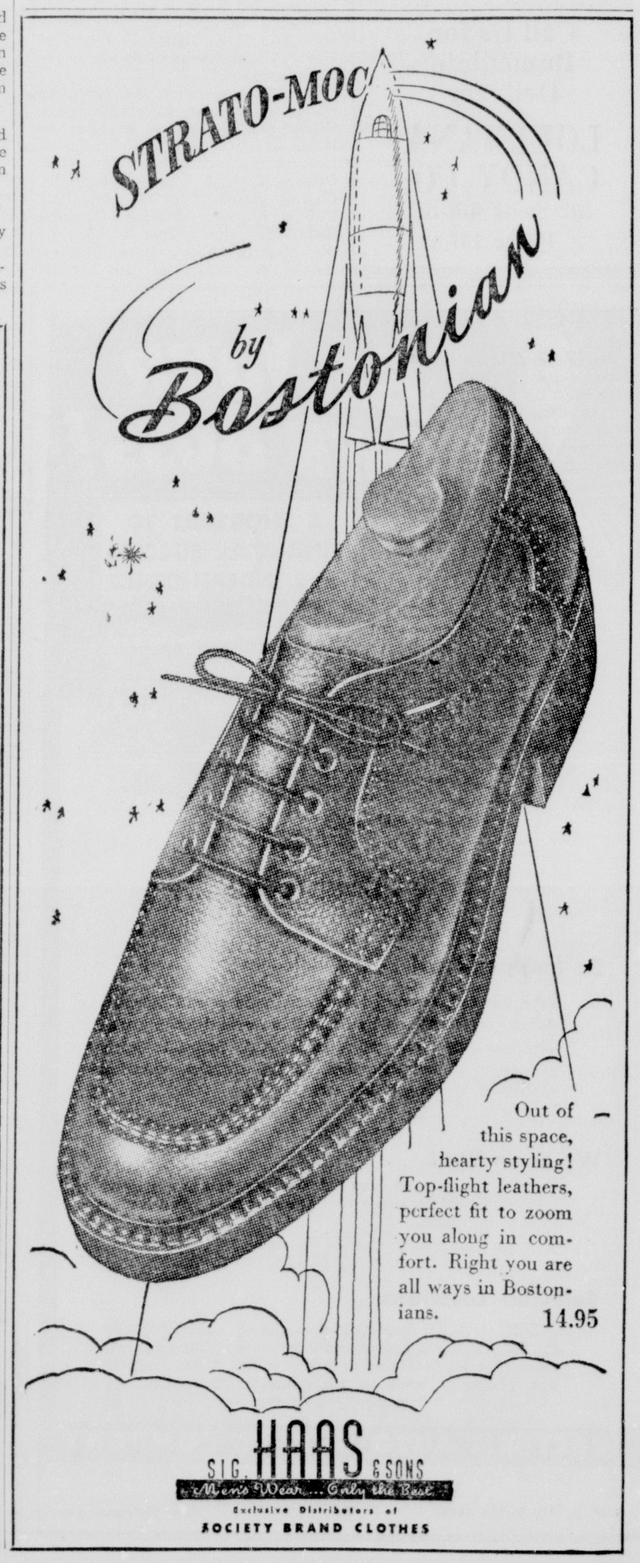

In his last year he made honorable mention, all-state in football.

Cole's father, J. M. Cole, resides at 125 Herrington avenue in Bastrop.

BYRON NELSON, GOLFING GREAT, HERE TODAY

WIZARD OF LINKS BILLED FOR SHOW ON MUNY COURSE

Shirah Teams With Star Pro Against Bill Jones And Johnny Myers

Byron Nelson, the terror of the professional golfing circuits in recent years and owner of numerous championships, will be a featured attraction at Municipial Golf Club here this afternoon, making his first Monroe appearance under the auspices of the Exchange Club which has gone all out in its effort to give the golfing fraternity of this section a chance to see a "big leaguer" in action.

Byron Nelson

Nelson, who arrived in Monroe yesterday evening with his manager, Paul Hargraves, is considered one of the foremost masters of the game, and sports followers from throughout this section of the country are expected in Monroe today to see the wizard of the fairways in action.

The show starts at 2 o'clock when "Lord Byron" opens a 30-minute session of exhibition shots. The master of the long iron has an assorted bag of tricks designed to bring gasps from those in the gallery who frequently have trouble with their game but will get a chance to see how it should be done.

Following the exhibition, Nelson will team with C. J. Shirah, pro at Municipal Club, for a match with Johnny Myers, Morehouse Country Club pro of Bastrop, and Bill Jones, Monroe amateur, who won the recent Twin City Tournament here and last Monday beat state champion Lawrence Larcade, Opelousas, in the finals of the annual Tallulah Labor Day Tournament.

In a tune-up for their date with Nelson, the transplanted Texan now pro at Toledo, O., Jones yesterday took a practice whirl over the Municipal layout, turning in a four-under-par 68. Myers got in a 70 practice round earlier in the week, and teamed with Jones, plans some keen competition for Nelson and Shirah.

Tickets for the show, on sale in advance, may be obtained from any member of the Exchange Club or at the Municipal club house.

GRAYSON'S SCOREBOARD

ANN ARBOR, Sept. 11.—(NEA)—Michigan, which looked like the slickest college football team in the country in the Pasadena Rose Bowl last New Year's Day, will roar along again this fall.

This despite the loss of the All-America backs Bob Chappuis and Bump Elliott, two other regular backfielders, quarterback Howie Yerges and fullback Jack Weisenburger, and the offensive tackles Bruce Hilkene and Bill Pritula.

Not to mention Coach Fritz Crisler.

Michigan operated two units a year ago—an offensive and defensive one. The entire defensive club is back, and a good share of the offensive boys, too.

Benny Oosterbaan, taking over as the successor to Crisler, has the main problem of converting some of the defensive players into offensive men. The offensive unit of last autumn was comparatively light, averaging 184 pounds in the line, 178 in the backfield, but it was lightning fast and deceptive as Harry Houdini. The defensive unit averaged 198 up front, 185 in the backfield.

Of 22 lettermen returning, a large percentage were used on defense last year, so the problem is to build an offensive that will carry the same type of attack that Michigan has been using.

Oosterbaan's first offensive team is practically picked now.

It has Gene Derricotte and Walt Teninga at the halves, Dick Kempthorn at fullback and Pete Elliott, younger brother of Bump, at quarter.

In the line will be ends Dick Rifenburg and Ed McNeill, tackles Al Wistert and Ralph Kohl, guards Capt. Dominic Tomasi and Stuart Wilkins and center Danny Dworsky. This combination, an all-veteran one, averages 198 in the line, 183 in the backfield.

It is faster than average and equipped with the same general attack style as last year. It perhaps will have more of a running attack.

The 176-pound Derricotte is probably the finest running back in the college game, extremely fast, adept at passing, a remarkable punt returner and a long range punter. He is a corker with short spot passes over the line.

All except Kempthorn run, pass and kick, and well. Kempthorn is, of course, a plunger and blocker.

Michigan is seven and eight deep all the way along the line, and will still have Athletic Director Crisler's fine hand in the background.

Oosterbaan, the famous pass receiver, starting his 20th year on the staff, but his first as head coach, has no crying towel.

"We have a good team," he says. "Remember, a champion is always a champion until he's licked."

That's Benny Oosterbaan's stand, and Michigan once more will take plenty of licking.

The working press won't be the only group to "enjoy" the University of Texas' big new press box. The structures' towering cantilever construction overhangs some seats, and will shade a large portion of the west stands early in the afternoon. And in Texas in September—that's comfort!

WESTSIDE W. O. W. PLANS FOR BOXING

The Woodmen of the World of West Monroe plan to sponsor a boxing team for amateur scrappers this season, and a meeting of prospective talent has been called for tomorrow night.

Lawrence Williams, W. O. W. representative, last night said any boys living west of the Ouachita river who desire to participate in the season's activity with the proposed boxing squad should be present at the meeting set for 8 o'clock tomorrow night at the West Monroe city hall.

The meeting will be chiefly for the purpose of getting a roster of prospective boxers, their weights and experience, and to have the boys meet with a coach to be appointed by the W. O. W.

Workouts will begin at a later date, and it is planned to arrange matches with other boxing teams in this section.

STRONG TACKLES BRIGHTEN SCENE IN GREENIE CAMP

Ten Specialists All Over Six Feet Tall And Weigh Over 200 Pounds

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 11.—(Special)—If any Tulane scat-back would like a good convoy across an opposition's goal line, he could do no better than choose a Greenie tackle.

It would make no difference which one. Any would probably serve the purpose.

There are 10 of them in the Wave camp, all six-foot or over and weighing 200 pounds or more.

These mastadons may be lacking in ability—how much won't be known until sometime in November after the season is over. But they've got the will and are being carefully instructed in the art of mayhem by that veteran tackle Coach Hank Crisp of Henry Frnka's staff. And if the ability is there, Crisp will find it.

There's not enough experience on either side to satisfy a coach—there never is. But nevertheless four of these 10 have letters from previous seasons, four were on the Wave squad last year, one was a freshman in 1947 and the other is a junior college transferee.

Among the experienced are Dan Rogas, who stands a thumbnail past six-feet and tips the scales at 216. He's a Port Arthur, Tex., sophomore who lettered as a freshman last season while playing 138 minutes of ball.

Already Southeastern Conference coaches are keeping a weather eye on him and have nominated him as one tackle "most likely to succeed" when the All-S. E. C. selections are passed out.

But he's not the only one. There's Paul Lea, a 6'2", 220-pounder from New London, Tex., who also lettered as a freshman last year; Max Druen, a 6' 2", 206-pounder from Enid, Okla., a junior this year, and Walter Villars, a 6' 1 1/2", 207-pounder from New Orleans and a two-year letterman.

Druen played 218 minutes last year, Villars, 113, and Lea, 103.

Returning from last year's squad are Clemon Bounds, 5' 4", from Pascagoula, Miss., and the only 200-pounder; Don Joyce, a 6' 1/2" boy from Stubenville, O., who Frnka moved to tackle from end; and Jerome Helluin, 6' 2", and heaviest of the Greenies at 280 pounds.

Bounds played in 1946 but was out a year with an injury. This year he's expected to play with a spirit comparable to that firey thatch of red hair. Joyce, a husky lad, proved capable at end last year and Frnka believes he'll be even better at tackle. Helluin, an All-State fullback in high school at Donaldsonville, La., moves to tackle and if he can get his weight down may become a major addition to the line.

Euel Davis, a 6' 3", 235 pound Van Buren Ark., product, and Bob Eddy, 6' 2", 225-pound Carthage, Mo., boy who played freshman ball for Tulane last year, round out the tackle prospects.

CROP OF INJURIES HAMPER BULLDOG WORK PAST WEEK

Coach Aillet Pleased With First Scrimmage; All Blocking Backs Look Good

RUSTON, La., Sept. 11.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech's Bulldogs have been slowed down temporarily in preparing for their opening grid game because of an exceptionally large number of muscular injuries suffered during the last few days of practice.

The Techmen will open their 10-game schedule at 8 o'clock on Saturday night by playing the Howard Payne Yellow Jackets of Brownwood, Texas, at Ruston.

Tech scored a 13-7 victory over the Texans in 1946, but lost 14-0 to the same team last year.

Because of the collection of injuries among the Bulldog aspirants, the Techmen are unable to undertake many rough workouts considered necessary for the tough competition that lies ahead.

Taking advantage of a heavy rain Thursday night, however, the Tech coaches put their charges through their first game condition scrimmage. Three members of the squad suffered facial injuries during the scrimmage session.

Head Coach Joe Aillet expressed satisfaction with the performance of the gridmen under game conditions. He said the blocking backs did exceptionally fine work.

One of the most promising performers, in the opinion of the Tech coach, was Jimmy Harrison, sophomore tailback from Shreveport. The former Byrd High School star proved to be a sensational runner during the practice contest.

Other backfield men giving a good account of themselves in the scrimmage included James Bres, right halfback of Vicksburg, Miss.; Bobby Aillet, fullback of Ruston; A. C. Schiro, fullback of Baton Rouge, and John Williamson, right halfback of New Orleans.

On the injured list is Gene Knecht, freshman tailback of New Orleans, who will be out of the lineup for at least two weeks because of a bruised ankle. Both Knecht and Williamson are former Warren Easton High School gridmen.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Rotund Herman Hickman picked up a loud speaker and told an assemblage of newspaper men and "old Blues": "This is our first real scrimmage so I don't know how well we'll go." . . . A short time later he was proving the megaphone was just a prop. You could hear him all over the Yale bowl shouting "Block! Block!" as his boys ran through their paces. . . . It can be recorded here that the Yales really were blocking for their new coach and running their "T" formation plays with surprising speed and precision—but that probably won't be enough to win them many football games. . . . Yale has some good backs—Levi Jackson, Ferd (The Bull) Nadherny and Tex Furse—but the linemen just aren't big and mean enough—nor numerous enough. . . . After having coached the lines of those great war-time army teams, you'd expect Herman to be moaning about the lack of "depth," but he's not a moaner and, besides, you seldom mention that subject around the Ivy League. Nobody has it.

Haste Without Waste

The other day Charley Loftus, Yale sports publicity man, asked Hickman: "Herman, why don't you try that 14-day diet to reduce?" . . . "I did try it once," Herman replied, "but I ate it all in two days."

Bowling 'Em Over

Watching Yale's 1948 unveiling ceremony in the bowl, Vern Miller, Boston newspaperman and former Harvard tackle, warned that Brown is "the most underrated team in the Ivy League." . . . Miller, incidentally, was the only guy in the place who could surpass Hickman in size and watch him as a trencherman. . . . Harvard's footballers will wear black satin pants this fall—the first real change in their traditional uniforms in 76 years. . . . Art Valpey, Harvard coach, is high on a tackle named Howie Houston, whom he tabs as being as good as last year's Michigan tackles. . . . Big laugh of the afternoon came when Furse, the Yale quarterback, faked handoffs to both halfbacks then pulled a delayed pitchout to Nadherny going around end. . . . "What?" asked one old Blue in amazement. "Are we stooping to deception after all these years?"

He Didn't Want Much

A letter recently received by Rube McCray, William and Mary coach, asked: "I would appreciate it very much if you would diagram a few old-fashioned trick plays for me. It doesn't matter what formation they are run from, just as long as they will shake a man loose for a touchdown."

Quick Change Dept.

Charley Johnston, manager of Sandy Saddler, reports that Willie Pep's manager, Lou Viscusi, turned down a $40,000 offer for a Pep-Saddler featherweight title bout because he was mad at Johnston. Charley comments sadly: "We have been friends for the last 20 years until I asked him to let Pep fight Saddler for the title." . . . Vince Boryla, who shifted his basketball talents from Notre Dame to Denver, explained he wants to enter business there after finishing college. . . . Question is whether Vince will give Notre Dame the business when the teams meet January 22.

CLIFF DAPPER MAY GET ATLANTA SKIPPER'S JOB

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Catcher Cliff Dapper, 29, of Montreal in the International League, has been tapped to succeed Hazen (Ki Ki) Cuyler as manager of the Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association.

BYRON NELSON, GOLFING GREAT, HERE TODAY

WIZARD OF LINKS BILLED FOR SHOW ON MUNY COURSE

Shirah Teams With Star Pro Against Bill Jones And Johnny Myers

Byron Nelson, the terror of the professional golfing circuits in recent years and owner of numerous championships, will be a featured attraction at Municipial Golf Club here this afternoon, making his first Monroe appearance under the auspices of the Exchange Club which has gone all out in its effort to give the golfing fraternity of this section a chance to see a "big leaguer" in action.

Byron Nelson

Nelson, who arrived in Monroe yesterday evening with his manager, Paul Hargraves, is considered one of the foremost masters of the game, and sports followers from throughout this section of the country are expected in Monroe today to see the wizard of the fairways in action.

The show starts at 2 o'clock when "Lord Byron" opens a 30-minute session of exhibition shots. The master of the long iron has an assorted bag of tricks designed to bring gasps from those in the gallery who frequently have trouble with their game but will get a chance to see how it should be done.

Following the exhibition, Nelson will team with C. J. Shirah, pro at Municipal Club, for a match with Johnny Myers, Morehouse Country Club pro of Bastrop, and Bill Jones, Monroe amateur, who won the recent Twin City Tournament here and last Monday beat state champion Lawrence Larcade, Opelousas, in the finals of the annual Tallulah Labor Day Tournament.

In a tune-up for their date with Nelson, the transplanted Texan now pro at Toledo, O., Jones yesterday took a practice whirl over the Municipal layout, turning in a four-under-par 68. Myers got in a 70 practice round earlier in the week, and teamed with Jones, plans some keen competition for Nelson and Shirah.

Tickets for the show, on sale in advance, may be obtained from any member of the Exchange Club or at the Municipal club house.

GRAYSON'S SCOREBOARD

ANN ARBOR, Sept. 11.—(NEA)—Michigan, which looked like the slickest college football team in the country in the Pasadena Rose Bowl last New Year's Day, will roar along again this fall.

This despite the loss of the All-America backs Bob Chappuis and Bump Elliott, two other regular backfielders, quarterback Howie Yerges and fullback Jack Weisenburger, and the offensive tackles Bruce Hilkene and Bill Pritula.

Not to mention Coach Fritz Crisler.

Michigan operated two units a year ago—an offensive and defensive one. The entire defensive club is back, and a good share of the offensive boys, too.

Benny Oosterbaan, taking over as the successor to Crisler, has the main problem of converting some of the defensive players into offensive men. The offensive unit of last autumn was comparatively light, averaging 184 pounds in the line, 178 in the backfield, but it was lightning fast and deceptive as Harry Houdini. The defensive unit averaged 198 up front, 185 in the backfield.

Of 22 lettermen returning, a large percentage were used on defense last year, so the problem is to build an offensive that will carry the same type of attack that Michigan has been using.

Oosterbaan's first offensive team is practically picked now.

It has Gene Derricotte and Walt Teninga at the halves, Dick Kempthorn at fullback and Pete Elliott, younger brother of Bump, at quarter.

In the line will be ends Dick Rifenburg and Ed McNeill, tackles Al Wistert and Ralph Kohl, guards Capt. Dominic Tomasi and Stuart Wilkins and center Danny Dworsky. This combination, an all-veteran one, averages 198 in the line, 183 in the backfield.

It is faster than average and equipped with the same general attack style as last year. It perhaps will have more of a running attack.

The 176-pound Derricotte is probably the finest running back in the college game, extremely fast, adept at passing, a remarkable punt returner and a long range punter. He is a corker with short spot passes over the line.

All except Kempthorn run, pass and kick, and well. Kempthorn is, of course, a plunger and blocker.

Michigan is seven and eight deep all the way along the line, and will still have Athletic Director Crisler's fine hand in the background.

Oosterbaan, the famous pass receiver, starting his 20th year on the staff, but his first as head coach, has no crying towel.

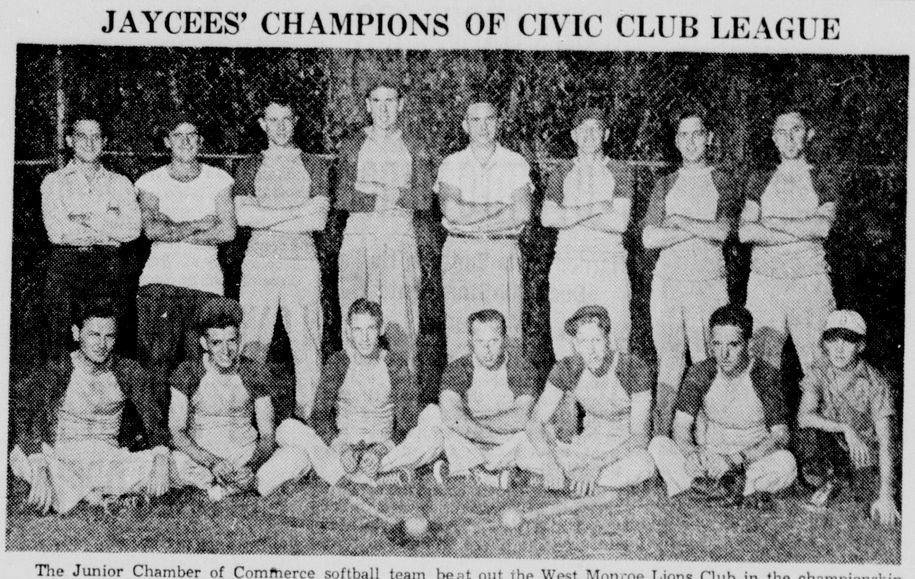

"We have a good team," he says. "Remember, a champion is always a champion until he's licked."

That's Benny Oosterbaan's stand, and Michigan once more will take plenty of licking.

The working press won't be the only group to "enjoy" the University of Texas' big new press box. The structures' towering cantilever construction overhangs some seats, and will shade a large portion of the west stands early in the afternoon. And in Texas in September—that's comfort!

WESTSIDE W. O. W. PLANS FOR BOXING

The Woodmen of the World of West Monroe plan to sponsor a boxing team for amateur scrappers this season, and a meeting of prospective talent has been called for tomorrow night.

Lawrence Williams, W. O. W. representative, last night said any boys living west of the Ouachita river who desire to participate in the season's activity with the proposed boxing squad should be present at the meeting set for 8 o'clock tomorrow night at the West Monroe city hall.

The meeting will be chiefly for the purpose of getting a roster of prospective boxers, their weights and experience, and to have the boys meet with a coach to be appointed by the W. O. W.

Workouts will begin at a later date, and it is planned to arrange matches with other boxing teams in this section.

STRONG TACKLES BRIGHTEN SCENE IN GREENIE CAMP

Ten Specialists All Over Six Feet Tall And Weigh Over 200 Pounds

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 11.—(Special)—If any Tulane scat-back would like a good convoy across an opposition's goal line, he could do no better than choose a Greenie tackle.

It would make no difference which one. Any would probably serve the purpose.

There are 10 of them in the Wave camp, all six-foot or over and weighing 200 pounds or more.

These mastadons may be lacking in ability—how much won't be known until sometime in November after the season is over. But they've got the will and are being carefully instructed in the art of mayhem by that veteran tackle Coach Hank Crisp of Henry Frnka's staff. And if the ability is there, Crisp will find it.

There's not enough experience on either side to satisfy a coach—there never is. But nevertheless four of these 10 have letters from previous seasons, four were on the Wave squad last year, one was a freshman in 1947 and the other is a junior college transferee.

Among the experienced are Dan Rogas, who stands a thumbnail past six-feet and tips the scales at 216. He's a Port Arthur, Tex., sophomore who lettered as a freshman last season while playing 138 minutes of ball.

Already Southeastern Conference coaches are keeping a weather eye on him and have nominated him as one tackle "most likely to succeed" when the All-S. E. C. selections are passed out.

But he's not the only one. There's Paul Lea, a 6'2", 220-pounder from New London, Tex., who also lettered as a freshman last year; Max Druen, a 6' 2", 205-pounder from Enid, Okla., a junior this year, and Walter Villars, a 6' 1 1/2", 207-pounder from New Orleans and a two-year letterman.

Druen played 218 minutes last year, Villars, 113, and Lea, 103.

Returning from last year's squad are Clemon Bounds, 5' 4", from Pascagoula, Miss., and the only 200-pounder; Don Joyce, a 6' 1/2" boy from Stubenville, O., who Frnka moved to tackle from end; and Jerome Helluin, 6' 2", and heaviest of the Greenies at 280 pounds.

Bounds played in 1946 but was out a year with an injury. This year he's expected to play with a spirit comparable to that firey thatch of red hair. Joyce, a husky lad, proved capable at end last year and Frnka believes he'll be even better at tackle. Helluin, an All-State fullback in high school at Donaldsonville, La., moves to tackle and if he can get his weight down may become a major addition to the line.

Coach Aillet Pleased With First Scrimmage; All Blocking Backs Look Good

RUSTON, La., Sept. 11.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech's Bulldogs have been slowed down temporarily in preparing for their opening grid game because of an exceptionally large number of muscular injuries suffered during the last few days of practice.

The Techmen will open their 10-game schedule at 8 o'clock on Saturday night by playing the Howard Payne Yellow Jackets of Brownwood, Texas, at Ruston.

Tech scored a 13-7 victory over the Texans in 1946, but lost 14-0 to the same team last year.

Because of the collection of injuries among the Bulldog aspirants, the Techmen are unable to undertake many rough workouts considered necessary for the tough competition that lies ahead.

Taking advantage of a heavy rain Thursday night, however, the Tech coaches put their charges through their first game condition scrimmage. Three members of the squad suffered facial injuries during the scrimmage session.

Head Coach Joe Aillet expressed satisfaction with the performance of the gridmen under game conditions. He said the blocking backs did exceptionally fine work.

One of the most promising performers, in the opinion of the Tech coach, was Jimmy Harrison, sophomore tailback from Shreveport. The former Byrd High School star proved to be a sensational runner during the practice contest.

Other backfield men giving a good account of themselves in the scrimmage included James Bres, right halfback of Vicksburg, Miss.; Bobby Aillet, fullback of Ruston; A. C. Schiro, fullback of Baton Rouge, and John Williamson, right halfback of New Orleans.

On the injured list is Gene Knecht, freshman tailback of New Orleans, who will be out of the lineup for at least two weeks because of a bruised ankle. Both Knecht and Williamson are former Warren Easton High School gridmen.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Rotund Herman Hickman picked up a loud speaker and told an assemblage of newspaper men and "old Blues": "This is our first real scrimmage so I don't know how well we'll go." . . . A short time later he was proving the megaphone was just a prop. You could hear him all over the Yale bowl shouting "Block! Block!" as his boys ran through their paces. . . . It can be recorded here that the Yales really were blocking for their new coach and running their "T" formation plays with surprising speed and precision—but that probably won't be enough to win them many football games. . . . Yale has some good backs—Levi Jackson, Ferd (The Bull) Nadherny and Tex Furse—but the linemen just aren't big and mean enough—nor numerous enough. . . . After having coached the lines of those great war-time army teams, you'd expect Herman to be moaning about the lack of "depth," but he's not a moaner and, besides, you seldom mention that subject around the Ivy League. Nobody has it.

Haste Without Waste

The other day Charley Loftus, Yale sports publicity man, asked Hickman: "Herman, why don't you try that 14-day diet to reduce?" . . . "I did try it once," Herman replied, "but I ate it all in two days."

Bowling 'Em Over

Watching Yale's 1948 unveiling ceremony in the bowl, Vern Miller, Boston newspaperman and former Harvard tackle, warned that Brown is "the most underrated team in the Ivy League." . . . Miller, incidentally, was the only guy in the place who could surpass Hickman in size and watch him as a trencherman. . . . Harvard's footballers will wear black satin pants this fall—the first real change in their traditional uniforms in 76 years. . . . Art Valpey, Harvard coach, is high on a tackle named Howie Houston, whom he tabs as being as good as last year's Michigan tackles. . . . Big laugh of the afternoon came when Furse, the Yale quarterback, faked handoffs to both halfbacks then pulled a delayed pitchout to Nadherny going around end. . . . "What?" asked one old Blue in amazement. "Are we stooping to deception after all these years?"

He Didn't Want Much

A letter recently received by Rube McCray, William and Mary coach, asked: "I would appreciate it very much if you would diagram a few old-fashioned trick plays for me. It doesn't matter what formation they are run from, just as long as they will shake a man loose for a touchdown."

Quick Change Dept.

Charley Johnston, manager of Sandy Saddler, reports that Willie Pep's manager, Lou Viscusi, turned down a $40,000 offer for a Pep-Saddler featherweight title bout because he was mad at Johnston. Charley comments sadly: "We have been friends for the last 20 years until I asked him to let Pep fight Saddler for the title." . . . Vince Boryla, who shifted his basketball talents from Notre Dame to Denver, explained he wants to enter business there after finishing college. . . . Question is whether Vince will give Notre Dame the business when the teams meet January 22.

RED SOX SWELL LEAD WITH DOUBLE VICTORY

ATHLETICS FALL BEFORE BOSTON; YANKS TRIP NATS

Cleveland Closes In On Second Place With Twin Win Over Browns

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Boston's Red Sox moved three games ahead of the rest of the field in the American League flag chase tonight by shading Philadelphia Athletics 2-1 behind the slick pitching of Lefty Mel Parnell.

Mel Parnell

The Sox had defeated the A's 9-1 in the daylight half of this afternoon-night program.

Parnell, who won his 13th game of the season, his ninth at night and sixth in succession, got into a bad hole in the last of the ninth when the bases became loaded on two walks (one intentional), a hit and a sacrifice.

But he brought a great shout from 34,002 fans when he grabbed Ferris Fain's high bouncer and pegged home to start a game-ending double play.

Dom DiMaggio's long triple to deep center field scored Matt Batts, who had walked, and Parnell, who had bunted safely, for Boston's two runs in the fifth inning.

The only Philadelphia score came in the seventh and was hotly resented by the fans and the Boston battery. Parnell and Batts both complained bitterly that two pitches to Fain, who knocked in the run, should have been called strikes. Umpire Cal Hubbard had ruled both were balls. Had either pitch been called a strike, Fain would have been struck out to end the inning.

Fain's hit was a Texas leaguer into

SEARS DROPS 3RD STRAIGHT BATTLE BY 4 TO 0 MARGIN

Hernor Bests Smith In Hurling Duel; All-Star Contest Wednesday

The favored Sears, Roebuck softball club, northeast Louisiana district champions, lost their third straight battle to the Monroe Red Sox last night, 4 to 0, and with the defeat went the championship of the City Softball League.

Even the closest observers of Twin City softball wouldn't have conceded Ted Flaherty's Red Sox a look-in on the title, much less winning in three straight games, but the surprising Crimson Rose took the clincher last night behind the two-hit pitching of O. A. Hernor, whose opponent, Wilbur Smith, also turned in a sterling three-hitter.

The defending champion Spatafora's Pharmacy club had been eliminated in the playoff semi-finals by Sears.

Smith's wildness contributed to the first three Red Sox runs.

In the second inning Jack Dyer was hit by a pitched ball, went to second when "Son" Durham grounded out, took third when Dee Preston bounced, and scored on a wild pitch.

The Red Sox scored twice in the fifth. Dee Preston walked and took second on a wild pitch. Charlie Anderson flied out to deep center, advancing Preston to third, from where he scored on a wild pitch. Hernor walked and came all the way home on a single by "Legs" Riggin and an error by Hedgecock.

Then in the sixth "Cotton" Hall doubled, went to third on Dyer's single, and scored when Durham grounded out.

Sears' made a strong bid to score in the last frame, loading the bases, but failed. Johnnie Russell was safe on D. Preston's error. Hedgecock flied out, and Frazier grounded out. Then Earl Vigg was safe on an error by Durham, and Manager James Hood was hit by a pitched ball to load the sacks. J. Kuykendall flied out to center to end the game.

The City League's All-Star game, pitting the circuit's champs against the pooled resources of the best on the other eight teams in the league, will wind up the season Wednesday night in a game sponsored by the Barkdull Faulk Parent-Teacher Association, beginning at 8 o'clock.

The All-Star club was selected by the managers of the league, only two of the skippers failing to vote in the balloting. Seven Red Sox, Dee Preston, Hall, Dyer, Durham, Riggins, Sterling McClain, and Anderson, won places on the squad, but since their team has won the title they will not be included on the All-Star team Wednesday.

The pick-of-the-league, to be managed by Ralph Marionneaux of Spatafora, James Hood of Sears, and Herbert Hays of Gay, will be as follows: Julius Haddad, Sugar, and George Guier, first base; Stanley Passman, second base; "Son" Wood and Hugh Smith, third base; Francis Hayes, shortstop; Fontana and "Buster" Stone, left field; Johnny Kelly, center field; Johnny Dutchkar, E. B. Peddy, and Max Wroten, right field; Wilbur Smith, Harry Roberts, and Joe Kilcoyne, pitchers; and Dan Pickens and Luke Coonrod, catchers.

LONGHORN-TIGER TILT SERVES AS RUGGED OPENER

Texans Are Hailing Game As Toughest Curtain-Raiser In History Of School

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 11.—(AP)—The Texas-Louisiana State football game here next Saturday is being hailed by Longhorn backers as the best opener the Texas school has scheduled in its 46 years of football history.

The contest figures to be one of the standout games of the nation from a pre-season point of view. Memorial Stadium, enlarged to take care of more than 65,000 persons, will be rededicated. Business officials anticipate a crowd of 45,000 to 50,000.

Texas is regarded the favorite here. The Longhorns have a predominantly veteran lineup, their only big question mark hanging over the quarterback slot vacated by Bobby Layne.

L. S. U. will also be depending on a comparatively inexperienced man at the quarterback post. He is Charlie Pevey, who played some when Y. A. Tittle was injured last season.

Coach Blair Cherry of Texas thinks he has a capable replacement in Paul Campbell, even though Campbell didn't see enough action to win a letter last year.

The effectiveness of Pevey and Campbell at the up-under spot for the two T-formation teams may be a deciding factor. Both handle passing duties.

The Tigers boast two fine runners in Halfback Rip Collins and Fullback Zollie Toth. For the Longhorns, Fullback Tom Landry and Halfbacks Billy Pyle and Byron Gillory are ground gainers of proven ability.

Texas and L. S. U. have met on 10 previous occasions, the series dating back to 1896. The Tigers hold the edge, five games to four, with one tie. The last time they met, 1941, the Longhorns stomped out a 34-0 decision.

Dartmouth will play only three home games during the 1948 football campaign.

NEYLAND SAYS VOLS WEAK AT ALL POSITIONS

Tennessee Coach Begs To Differ With Opponents Rating His Club So High

By Escar Thompson

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 11.—(AP)—"On a given day we might beat any team on our schedule," is the way Gen. Bob Neyland sums up Tennessee's 1948 football team.

The wily Vol mentor, starting his 17th campaign at Tennessee, shrugs off the suggestion of his Southeastern Conference colleagues that his Vols will be one of the league's topmost challengers.

"I don't see how they figure that," Neyland says. "The way I see it is that we have a chance to sneak up on a couple of teams. But I also think we stand to lose five games like we did last year."

The 1947 season was Neyland's worst since he dropped anchor at Tennessee in 1926. The Vols won five and lost five, losing to Georgia Tech, Duke, Alabama, North Carolina and Mississippi before coming to life and smacking Boston College, Kentucky and Vanderbilt. Other victims were Chattanooga and Tennessee Tech.

Tennessee lost 16 men, including six starters, from the 1947 outfit. Neyland says the losses left the Vols "weaker at all positions except at tailback."

"With the added experience our four tailbacks got last year, we should be stronger at that position," he added.

If tailbacks J. B. Proctor, Hal Littleford, W. C. Cooper and Jack Beeler live up to Neyland's expectations, then watch Tennessee. For the tailback post is the most vital in Tennessee's single-wing offensive.

Proctor, 185-pound junior from Nashville, Tenn., appears the cream of the crop. He developed at a rapid pace at the tag end of last season, completing 24 of 34 passes in the Vols' successive wins over Boston College, Kentucky and Vanderbilt.

He is heavier and faster this fall and seemingly has more poise. Those should prove valuable assets.

"Proctor is a much improved player," Neyland says. "His kicking has improved, he runs faster and his passing is excellent."

Littleford, 165-pound junior from Bristol, Tenn., will be Proctor's chief understudy. He is a fine runner and the best kicker on the squad.

Rounding out the backfield with Proctor will be Bob Lund, 185-pound Knoxville senior, at wingback; Ralph Chancey, 190-pound junior from Cleveland, Tenn., at fullback; and Orvis Milner, 180-pound junior of Knoxville, at blocking back, provided a tricky knee holds up.

The line is Tennessee's big question mark, but if two or three players live up to expectations, the starting fore-

LONGHORN, TIGER CLASH WILL RANK WITH TOP GAMES

Already Counting On Capacity Crowd For L. S. U., Texas Meeting Saturday

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 11.—(Special)—In the most auspicious opener of the University of Texas' 56 years of football history, the Longhorns and Louisiana State meet here next Saturday afternoon.

It will be one of the top games in the nation for Sept. 18, and it will mark the re-dedication of Texas' Memorial Stadium, enlarged this year to a capacity exceeding 65,000. In this setting, the two state universities will open the 1948 season with help from an expected 45,000-50,000 spectators and one or two coast-to-coast broadcasts.

The ambitious Tigers, making their first start under Coach Gaynell Tinsley, will send something of an "unknown" team against the Steers. Texas will field largely a veteran lineup, but will match L. S. U.'s inexperience at the all-important "T" formation quarterback spot. The performance of this task by unheralded lads on each side may decide Saturday's game.

Louisiana's Charlie Pevey gained experience in 1947, when injuries removed Y. A. Tittle from the lineup. But the Texas' Q. B., slender Paul Campbell, didn't play enough to win his letter last fall, while spelling Bobby Layne. Both Pevey and Campbell will guide the day's passing offense. For running, the Tigers will turn to experienced Rip Collins, at a halfback, and plunging Zollie Toth at fullback.

The Longhorns will match these with Tom Landry at full and with Billie Pyle and Byron Gillory flanking him at the halfback posts.

The heat, usulaly a factor in the Longhorns' early home games, shouldn't bother the Tigers, who come from a torrid September heat belt themselves.

The brief re-dedication ceremony, just prior to the kick-off, will be headed by the president of the University of Texas, Dr. T. S. Painter.

If the crowd does near the predicted 50,000 mark, it will be the largest ever to see a game in the southwest, the previous high being a throng of 48,000 that watched Texas and Rice here last year.

In the past, Texas and L. S. U. have met ten times, the series extending clear back to 1896. The Tigers have won five, lost four, and one game ended in a tie; but the last meeting found Texas' great 1941 team winning a 34-0 decision.

The complete record:
1896—Texas 0, L. S. U. 14.
1899—Texas 29, L. S. U. 0.
1902—Texas 0, L. S. U. 5.
1907—Texas 12, L. S. U. 5.
1910—Texas 12, L. S. U. 0.
1935—Texas 6, L. S. U. 18.
1936—Texas 6, L. S. U. 6.
1937—Texas 0, L. S. U. 9.
1938—Texas 0, L. S. U. 20.
1941—Texas 34, L. S. U. 0.

FAIRBANKS TAKES MOREHOUSE TITLE

New Softball Champions Beat Out Mer Rouge In Extra Inning, 10 To 9

Fairbanks dethroned Mer Rouge as champions of the Morehouse Softball League Friday night to become the new league kingpins, in an extra inning contest. Fairbanks won, 10-9.

The largest crowd of the season was on hand to witness the most thrilling game of the year in spite of the free hitting by both clubs. Mer Rouge collected 13 hits off the offerings of M. W. Massee and Gabby Johnson while Fairbanks was tagging Red Holley for 15 hits to hand him his second defeat in the seven-game series.

Fairbanks, playing their first year of softball, finished the season on top of the league under the capable guidance of Manager Borden Bradley and the stellar pitching of Fred Godwin, Gabby Johnson and Herbert Pace with the backing of a hustling ball team, and ardent sport fans.

In the first round of play in the Shaughnessy playoff, Fairbanks eliminated Southern Natural Gas Company of Perryville in three straight games, while Mer Rouge was downing Bastrop Motor Supply to enter the finals.

Due to injuries and the illness of several star players, Fairbanks was unable to field the team they used all season and had to use a revised lineup.

Two of the best pitching performances was turned in by Gabby Johnson when he limited the hard hitting Mer Rouge club to two hits in each of the first and fourth games.

CLIFFORD WILL MEET CARTER IN MAT MAIN EVENT TUESDAY

George Thomas Billed For Semi-Final Scrap With 'Sailor' Olsen

"Flash" Clifford, the Atlanta, Ga., bruiser who won a disputed victory over Jack Curtis, world's light heavyweight mat champion, here two weeks ago, will battle a newcomer, Jack Carter of New Zealand, in the main event on Tuesday night's card at Gus Kallio's Arena.

Carter, claiming the New Zealand light-heavy crown, is appearing in the south for the first time and claims he is on the trail of a title match with Curtis.

Promoter Kallio last night declared that since Clifford, swelled with his recent win over Curtis in a non-title scramble, is also after a championship bout, he will attempt to bill Tuesday's winner against the champ at a later date.

"I feel certain the title match can be arranged," Kallio said. "Curtis is anxious to get a chance to settle with Clifford, even if his crown is at stake. But if Carter triumphs, then Curtis possibly could count on an even stronger opponent and there should be no excuse for him to avoid the New Zealander."

Polly D'Antonio, Monroe boxer, had earlier figured to appear on Tuesday's card in a boxing engagement with Curtis who took a wrestling vacation last week to knock out Pat Cronin, Jackson, Miss., in the fourth round of what had been billed as a 15-round grudge fight.

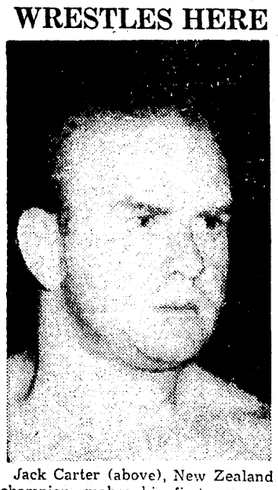

D'Antonio informed Kallio later, however, that a business engagement in Chicago was taking him away from home for the week end and he would be unable to keep the appointment.

The enforced absence of D'Antonio was all right with Curtis since he suffered a severe gash under his right eye in the battle with Cronin and it might not have been advisable for him to fight D'Antonio so soon with the injury unhealed.

Another newcomer, George Thomas, of Marshall, Tex., will also be here Tuesday when he tangles with Al "Sailor" Olsen, the tattooed man of Kansas City, in the semi-final scramble which opens the show at 8:30 o'clock.

The Carter-Clifford feature will have a 90-minute time limit, and the semi-final will be over an hour time limit route. Both matches will go until one battler wins two falls.

ATHLETICS FALL BEFORE BOSTON; YANKS TRIP NATS

Cleveland Closes In On Second Place With Twin Win Over Browns

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Boston's Red Sox moved three games ahead of the rest of the field in the American League flag chase tonight by shading Philadelphia Athletics 2-1 behind the slick pitching of Lefty Mel Parnell.

Mel Parnell

The Sox had defeated the A's 9-1 in the daylight half of this afternoon-night program.

Parnell, who won his 13th game of the season, his ninth at night and sixth in succession, got into a bad hole in the last of the ninth when the bases became loaded on two walks (one intentional), a hit and a sacrifice.

But he brought a great shout from 34,002 fans when he grabbed Ferris Fain's high bouncer and pegged home to start a game-ending double play.

Dom DiMaggio's long triple to deep center field scored Matt Batts, who had walked, and Parnell, who had bunted safely, for Boston's two runs in the fifth inning.

The only Philadelphia score came in the seventh and was hotly resented by the fans and the Boston battery. Parnell and Batts both complained bitterly that two pitches to Fain, who knocked in the run, should have been called strikes. Umpire Cal Hubbard had ruled both were balls. Had either pitch been called a strike, Fain would have been struck out to end the inning.

LONGHORN, TIGER CLASH WILL RANK WITH TOP GAMES

Already Counting On Capacity Crowd For L. S. U., Texas Meeting Saturday

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 11.—(Special)—In the most auspicious opener of the University of Texas' 56 years of football history, the Longhorns and Louisiana State meet here next Saturday afternoon.

It will be one of the top games in the nation for Sept. 18, and it will mark the re-dedication of Texas' Memorial Stadium, enlarged this year to a capacity exceeding 65,000. In this setting, the two state universities will open the 1948 season with help from an expected 45,000-50,000 spectators and one or two coast-to-coast broadcasts.

The ambitious Tigers, making their first start under Coach Gaynell Tinsley, will send something of an "unknown" team against the Steers. Texas will field largely a veteran lineup, but will match L. SEARS DROPS 3RD STRAIGHT BATTLE BY 4 TO 0 MARGIN

The favored Sears, Roebuck softball club, northeast Louisiana district champions, lost their third straight battle to the Monroe Red Sox last night, 4 to 0, and with the defeat went the championship of the City Softball League.

Even the closest observers of Twin City softball wouldn't have conceded Ted Flaherty's Red Sox a look-in on the title, much less winning in three straight games, but the surprising Crimson Rose took the clincher last night behind the two-hit pitching of O. A. Hernor, whose opponent, Wilbur Smith, also turned in a sterling three-hitter.

The defending champion Spatafora's Pharmacy club had been eliminated in the playoff semi-finals by Sears.

Smith's wildness contributed to the first three Red Sox runs.

In the second inning Jack Dyer was hit by a pitched ball, went to second when "Son" Durham grounded out, took third when Dee Preston bounced, and scored on a wild pitch.

The Red Sox scored twice in the fifth. Dee Preston walked and took second on a wild pitch. Charlie Anderson flied out to deep center, advancing Preston to third, from where he scored on a wild pitch. Hernor walked and came all the way home on a single by "Legs" Riggin and an error by Hedgecock.

Then in the sixth "Cotton" Hall doubled, went to third on Dyer's single, and scored when Durham grounded out.

Sears' made a strong bid to score in the last frame, loading the bases, but failed. Johnnie Russell was safe on D. Preston's error. Hedgecock flied out, and Frazier grounded out. Then Earl Vigg was safe on an error by Durham, and Manager James Hood was hit by a pitched ball to load the sacks. J. Kuykendall flied out to center to end the game.

The City League's All-Star game, pitting the circuit's champs against the pooled resources of the best on the other eight teams in the league, will wind up the season Wednesday night in a game sponsored by the Barkdull Faulk Parent-Teacher Association, beginning at 8 o'clock.

The All-Star club was selected by the managers of the league, only two of the skippers failing to vote in the balloting. Seven Red Sox, Dee Preston, Hall, Dyer, Durham, Riggins, Sterling McClain, and Anderson, won places on the squad, but since their team has won the title they will not be included on the All-Star team Wednesday.

The pick-of-the-league, to be managed by Ralph Marionneaux of Spatafora, James Hood of Sears, and Herbert Hays of Gay, will be as follows: Julius Haddad, Sugar, and George Guier, first base; Stanley Passman, second base; "Son" Wood and Hugh Smith, third base; Francis Hayes, shortstop; Fontana and "Buster" Stone, left field; Johnny Kelly, center field; Johnny Dutchkar, E. B. Peddy, and Max Wroten, right field; Wilbur Smith, Harry Roberts, and Joe Kilcoyne, pitchers; and Dan Pickens and Luke Coonrod, catchers.

LONGHORN-TIGER TILT SERVES AS RUGGED OPENER

Texans Are Hailing Game As Toughest Curtain-Raiser In History Of School

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 11.—(AP)—The Texas-Louisiana State football game here next Saturday is being hailed by Longhorn backers as the best opener the Texas school has scheduled in its 46 years of football history.

The contest figures to be one of the standout games of the nation from a pre-season point of view. Memorial Stadium, enlarged to take care of more than 65,000 persons, will be rededicated. Business officials anticipate a crowd of 45,000 to 50,000.

Texas is regarded the favorite here. The Longhorns have a predominantly veteran lineup, their only big question mark hanging over the quarterback slot vacated by Bobby Layne.

L. S. U. will also be depending on a comparatively inexperienced man at the quarterback post. He is Charlie Pevey, who played some when Y. A. Tittle was injured last season.

Coach Blair Cherry of Texas thinks he has a capable replacement in Paul Campbell, even though Campbell didn't see enough action to win a letter last year.

The effectiveness of Pevey and Campbell at the up-under spot for the two T-formation teams may be a deciding factor. Both handle passing duties.

The Tigers boast two fine runners in Halfback Rip Collins and Fullback Zollie Toth. For the Longhorns, Fullback Tom Landry and Halfbacks Billy Pyle and Byron Gillory are ground gainers of proven ability.

Texas and L. S. U. have met on 10 previous occasions, the series dating back to 1896. The Tigers hold the edge, five games to four, with one tie. The last time they met, 1941, the Longhorns stomped out a 34-0 decision.

Dartmouth will play only three home games during the 1948 football campaign.

Tennessee Coach Begs To Differ With Opponents Rating His Club So High

By Escar Thompson

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 11.—(AP)—"On a given day we might beat any team on our schedule," is the way Gen. Bob Neyland sums up Tennessee's 1948 football team.

The wily Vol mentor, starting his 17th campaign at Tennessee, shrugs off the suggestion of his Southeastern Conference colleagues that his Vols will be one of the league's topmost challengers.

"I don't see how they figure that," Neyland says. "The way I see it is that we have a chance to sneak up on a couple of teams. But I also think we stand to lose five games like we did last year."

The 1947 season was Neyland's worst since he dropped anchor at Tennessee in 1926. The Vols won five and lost five, losing to Georgia Tech, Duke, Alabama, North Carolina and Mississippi before coming to life and smacking Boston College, Kentucky and Vanderbilt. Other victims were Chattanooga and Tennessee Tech.

Tennessee lost 16 men, including six starters, from the 1947 outfit. Neyland says the losses left the Vols "weaker at all positions except at tailback.'

"With the added experience our four tailbacks got last year, we should be stronger at that position," he added.

If tailbacks J. B. Proctor, Hal Littleford, W. C. Cooper and Jack Beeler live up to Neyland's expectations, then watch Tennessee. For the tailback post is the most vital in Tennessee's single-wing offensive.

Proctor, 185-pound junior from Nashville, Tenn., appears the cream of the crop. He developed at a rapid pace at the tag end of last season, completing 24 of 34 passes in the Vols' successive wins over Boston College, Kentucky and Vanderbilt.

He is heavier and faster this fall and seemingly has more poise. Those should prove valuable assets.

"Proctor is a much improved player," Neyland says. "His kicking has improved, he runs faster and his passing is excellent."

Littleford, 165-pound junior from Bristol, Tenn., will be Proctor's chief understudy. He is a fine runner and the best kicker on the squad.

Rounding out the backfield with Proctor will be Bob Lund, 185-pound Knoxville senior, at wingback; Ralph Chancey, 190-pound junior from Cleveland, Tenn., at fullback; and Orvis Milner, 180-pound junior of Knoxville, at blocking back, provided a tricky knee holds up.

The line is Tennessee's big question mark, but if two or three players live up to expectations, the starting fore-

GIANTS DUMP DODGERS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The New York Giants all but ruined the Brooklyn Dodgers' pennant chances today when they trounced their interborough rivals twice, 2-1 and 6-4.

A paid crowd of 48,583 saw Larry Jansen best Joe Hatten in the first game 13-inning duel to win his 17th decision of the season. Substitute Shortstop Bobby Rhawn's three-run homer with two out in the sixth and final inning furnished the winning runs in the nightcap. The second game was halted because of darkness after the winning runs scored.

Trialing 4-2 when they came to bat in the bottom of the sixth, the Giants quickly disposed of Starter Ralph Branca when Sid Gordon walked and Johnny Mize singled him to third. With Southpaw Paul Minner on the mound, Willard Marshall singled to right scoring Gordon. Righthander Hank Behrman came in to strike out Pinch Hitter Less Layton, but Rhawn, recalled from Minneapolis last Wednesday, smacked his first pitch into the lower right field stands to give the Giants a sweep of the twin bill.

Wildness cost Hatten the first game. He walked Buddy Kerr on a 3-2 pitch with two out and the bases loaded in the 13th to force Marshall over the plate with the winning run.

LAST RODEO ACTS ARE SLATED TODAY

Final Show Will Get underway At 3 p. m. Today At West Monroe Arena

The championship rodeo troupe, having performed nightly since Monday in the West Monroe arena, will bid adieu to fans as their final act ends late tomorrow afternoon. Officials of the show have hailed their visit here as "highly successful."

The show this afternoon, which will get started at 3 p. m., will include final contest for grand prizes.

Last night's show got off with the usual band of the grand entrance and introduction of officials, and was followed by the boom town mounted square dance team.

Event number three, the riding of bare back broncs, included in its contestant lineup:

Bill Barton, Marvin Holmes, Neal Woods, J. B. Harris, Bobby Booth, Marvin Holmes, Ray Anding, Jake Monroe, Gene Enix, Bo Lusk, and Eric Little.

Trick and fancy roping, conducted by the White sisters, Lola and Lena, was followed by the calf roping contest which included:

Smitty Smith, 35.7 seconds; R. B. Carraway, 19.3 seconds; Jack Sanders, 20.2 seconds; T. B. Porter, no time; Alvis Sewalt, no time; Bill Leach, 15.9 seconds; Royce Sewalt, 16.4 seconds; J. K. Harris, 16.7 seconds; Vernon Kerns, 16.8 seconds; Alvin Hosley, 17.7 seconds, and L. N. Sikes, 20.3 seconds.

Lola White was featured in an attraction all her own when she directed her horse through a flaming, fiery circle.

Cowhands mounted in saddles of bucking broncs, occupied event number seven. Participants were: Texas Kidd, Jr., Gene Enix, Marvin Holmes, Eric Little(who was injured when he was thrown from his mount, L. E. Weeks, Bill Barton, and Dean Ott.

Event eight featured Ken Boen and the old Gray Mare act, which without fail, has brought laughter from the fans.

Cowboys in their bull dogging contest opened event nine. Participating in the affair were:

Tony Scott, no time; Joe Teague, 5.5 seconds; R. B. Carraway, 9-1 seconds; Royce Sewalt, no time; Elliott Calhoun, 7.5 seconds; Everett Vold, 6.5 seconds; Alvie Sewalt, no time; Nat Marshall, no time, and Bill Leach, no time.

Ruby Tacker, Lola White, Marge Monroe and Lena White, four cowgirls, stunned fans with their fancy and trick riding.

The final event of bull riding, included the following contestants:

Orval Mann, Charles Foster, Butler Monroe, M. H. Walters, J. T. Tacker, Bo Lusk, Jake Monroe and Fred Anding.

The show will conclude its performances for the season this afternoon.

NEYLAND

wall will be plenty rugged. However, it lacks depth.

Capt. Jim Powell, 190-pound end from Miami, Fla., is the lone lineman back from last year's starting lineup. He ranked ninth nationally as a pass-catcher and led the Vols in scoring with 36 points.

Powell will team with either Al Russas, Providence, R. I., senior or Jim Miner, mentor, Ohio, sophomore. Both are 200-pounders.

Norman Meseroll, 212-pound bruiser from New Brunswick, N. J., and Paul Gearing, 215-pound junior from Monongahela, Pa., will be the tackles, and Jim Vugrin, 190-pound junior from Lansford, Pa., and Roy Smith, 195-pound Knoxville sophomore, will man the guard posts.

Ralph Huneycutt, 195-pound junior from Appalachia, Va., has the inside track for center, but he must beat out James Sivert, 190-pound sophomore of Gate City, Va.

The schedule is the same as last year's with the substitution of Mississippi State for Boston College. The Maroons and Vols open the season here Sept. 25.

BEARCATS WILL MEET OUACHITA ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Game Will Be Last At Home For O. P. H. S. Eleven Until October 15

The Ouachita Parish High School steamroller will certainly be slowed down when the Lions tangle with the Bossier City School Bearcats here next Friday night at Brown Field in their last home game until October 15.

The Lions, after impressive performances in a 58-0 rout of Jonesboro-Hodge and a 35-6 win over Homer, are expecting more trouble from the Bearcats who walloped Jonesboro-Hodge themselves Thursday night to the tune of 39-0 with reserves playing a big share of the game.

Word traveling the Class A circuit has Bossier City already tagged as the possible successor to Ruston as champions of the conference, and the Bearcats have always been able to give Ouachita rugged battles despite their difference in class.

The Ouachita backfield combination of Mark Boatright, F. J. Sievers, "Red" Phillips, and Billy Joe Milstead looked particularly good against Homer, but the fans are still waiting to see what the boys can do under stronger pressure. Bossier City is sure to come up with a stronger club than the Lions have faced so far.

In the meantime, the O. P. H. S. forwards, with only two regulars back from last year, Bobby Bruce and Jack Smith, are getting valuable experience and may be able to hold their own when the tough Class AA conference battles start coming in.

After the date with Bossier City, the Lions travel to Ruston for a renewal of old rivalry with the state Class A champions on September 24. Then on October 1 they tackle Class AA Bolton of Alexandria in a non-conference tilt, rest through an open date, and come home for their conference opener with the Haynesville Golden Tornado on October 15.

punch into the second and third quarters.

A Ram fumble paved the way for a Dragon touchdown by Jim Cooper in the first quarter, but Lindsey tied the count in the second period when he smacked through from the one-yard line. A few minutes later, after a sprint by Johnson to the two, Charles Keene plunged over for the touchdown that put the Rams out in front, and Hindmon kicked the point to give Bastrop a 13-6 lead at the half.

Lindsey and Johnson scored a touchdown each in the third period, and Hindmon kicked the points from placement.

Lindsey, the workhorse of the Bastrop team, carried the ball 21 times for 93 yards, and Keene, 153-pound fullback, accounted for 69 yards.

Bastrop's offense clicked for a net gain of 280 yards rushing and 24 yards on a lone completed pass, while DeRidder netted 71 yards rushing, and 69 yards on three completed passes. The first downs were 11 to 6 in favor of the Rams.

It was the first game of the season for DeRidder, and the second straight win for Coach Charlie Thomas' Rams who invade Homer for a meeting with the Pelicans next Friday night.

SOUTHEASTERN

(By Associated Press)

After a two-day rest the Montgomery Rebels and Jackson Senators today will begin final settlement in Montgomery of the Southeastern League Shaughnessy playoff.

The final best four-out-of-seven series was scheduled to begin Friday night but league officials called a two-day intermission. To reach the final round Montgomery whipped Aniston and Jackson defeated Vicksburg in the two preliminary best four-out-of-seven playoffs.

ANCIENT STATUS

UNIVERSITY, Miss.—In the University of Mississippi's centennial session (1848-1948), Johnny Reb football dates back 56 years, to 1893.

If the Texas-LSU game crowd climbs near the expected 50,000 mark it will be the biggest throng ever to see a football game in the state of Texas. The 48,000 that saw Rice and Texas last year is the current mark.

GIANTS DUMP DODGERS

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The New York Giants all but ruined the Brooklyn Dodgers' pennant chances today when they trounced their interborough rivals twice, 2-1 and 6-4.

A paid crowd of 48,583 saw Larry Jansen best Joe Hatten in the first game 13-inning duel to win his 17th decision of the season. Substitute Shortstop Bobby Rhawn's three-run homer with two out in the sixth and final inning furnished the winning runs in the nightcap. The second game was halted because of darkness after the winning runs scored.

Trialing 4-2 when they came to bat in the bottom of the sixth, the Giants quickly disposed of Starter Ralph Branca when Sid Gordon walked and Johnny Mize singled him to third. With Southpaw Paul Minner on the mound, Willard Marshall singled to right scoring Gordon. Righthander Hank Behrman came in to strike out Pinch Hitter Less Layton, but Rhawn, recalled from Minneapolis last Wednesday, smacked his first pitch into the lower right field stands to give the Giants a sweep of the twin bill.

Wildness cost Hatten the first game. He walked Buddy Kerr on a 3-2 pitch with two out and the bases loaded in the 13th to force Marshall over the plate with the winning run.

wall will be plenty rugged. However, it lacks depth.

Capt. Jim Powell, 190-pound end from Miami, Fla., is the lone lineman back from last year's starting lineup. He ranked ninth nationally as a pass-catcher and led the Vols in scoring with 36 points.

Powell will team with either Al Russas, Providence, R. I., senior or Jim Miner, mentor, Ohio, sophomore. Both are 200-pounders.

Norman Meseroll, 212-pound bruiser from New Brunswick, N. J., and Paul Gearing, 215-pound junior from Monongahela, Pa., will be the tackles, and Jim Vugrin, 190-pound junior from Lansford, Pa., and Roy Smith, 195-pound Knoxville sophomore, will man the guard posts.

Ralph Huneycutt, 195-pound junior from Appalachia, Va., has the inside track for center, but he must beat out James Sivert, 190-pound sophomore of Gate City, Va.

The schedule is the same as last year's with the substitution of Mississippi State for Boston College. The Maroons and Vols open the season here Sept. 25.

BEARCATS WILL MEET OUACHITA ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Game Will Be Last At Home For O. P. H. S. Eleven Until October 15

The Ouachita Parish High School steamroller will certainly be slowed down when the Lions tangle with the Bossier City School Bearcats here next Friday night at Brown Field in their last home game until October 15.

The Lions, after impressive performances in a 58-0 rout of Jonesboro-Hodge and a 35-6 win over Homer, are expecting more trouble from the Bearcats who walloped Jonesboro-Hodge themselves Thursday night to the tune of 39-0 with reserves playing a big share of the game.

Word traveling the Class A circuit has Bossier City already tagged as the possible successor to Ruston as champions of the conference, and the Bearcats have always been able to give Ouachita rugged battles despite their difference in class.

The Ouachita backfield combination of Mark Boatright, F. J. Sievers, "Red" Phillips, and Billy Joe Milstead looked particularly good against Homer, but the fans are still waiting to see what the boys can do under stronger pressure. Bossier City is sure to come up with a stronger club than the Lions have faced so far.

In the meantime, the O. P. H. S. forwards, with only two regulars back from last year, Bobby Bruce and Jack Smith, are getting valuable experience and may be able to hold their own when the tough Class AA conference battles start coming in.

After the date with Bossier City, the Lions travel to Ruston for a renewal of old rivalry with the state Class A champions on September 24. Then on October 1 they tackle Class AA Bolton of Alexandria in a non-conference tilt, rest through an open date, and come home for their conference opener with the Haynesville Golden Tornado on October 15.

punch into the second and third quarters.

A Ram fumble paved the way for a Dragon touchdown by Jim Cooper in the first quarter, but Lindsey tied the count in the second period when he smacked through from the one-yard line. A few minutes later, after a sprint by Johnson to the two, Charles Keene plunged over for the touchdown that put the Rams out in front, and Hindmon kicked the point to give Bastrop a 13-6 lead at the half.

Lindsey and Johnson scored a touchdown each in the third period, and Hindmon kicked the points from placement.

Lindsey, the workhorse of the Bastrop team, carried the ball 21 times for 93 yards, and Keene, 153-pound fullback, accounted for 69 yards.

Bastrop's offense clicked for a net gain of 280 yards rushing and 24 yards on a lone completed pass, while DeRidder netted 71 yards rushing, and 69 yards on three completed passes. The first downs were 11 to 6 in favor of the Rams.

It was the first game of the season for DeRidder, and the second straight win for Coach Charlie Thomas' Rams who invade Homer for a meeting with the Pelicans next Friday night.

UNIVERSITY, Miss.—In the University of Mississippi's centennial session (1848-1948), Johnny Reb football dates back 56 years, to 1893.

If the Texas-LSU game crowd climbs near the expected 50,000 mark it will be the biggest throng ever to see a football game in the state of Texas. The 48,000 that saw Rice and Texas last year is the current mark.

P.-T. A. COUNCIL HOLDS SESSION

Work Of Coming School Year Is Mapped Out By Leaders

The Twin City P.-T. A. Council had a call meeting of all local units, presidents, membership chairmen and room mothers at the Ouachita parish health unit Thursday at 3:30 p. m. to give information as to how best to conduct and promote the P.-T. A. membership drive.

The meeting was in the form of an open forum directed by Mrs. M. L. DeFreese, director of council and special service; Mrs. A. C. Pappas, council president, and Mrs. George Varino, legislative chairman. Nine local units were represented.

It was suggested that the membership chairmen, room mothers, magazine chairmen and co-workers attend school on the opening day prepared to sell P.-T. A. membership cards and subscriptions to the P.-T. A. magazine. Back to school night was called another good time to sell subscriptions.

A suggestion was made that fathers can be made interested in P.-T. A. work in finding something at school that needs fixing or replacement. It was pointed out that each school should strive to hold every member who belonged in the past year, and then to enroll at least 10 per cent of new membership. It was urged to complete the membership drive by November 15. If not completed by that time, a deadline set for December 15 was suggested. All dues that belong to the state must be sent in by that time.

A loving cup will be presented by the council to the local unit showing the greatest percentage of gain in membership over the previous year. The deadline for this is set for November 15.

It was suggested that the council ask each local unit to make P.-T. A. membership posters for display downtown during October, which is P.-T. A. membership month. An award is suggested to be given to the local unit making the best poster.

The need of a parent-teacher workshop in colleges so that the graduating teachers will know how to work with the parents was suggested.

At the close of the meeting, members of various P.-T. A. groups said the session had proved highly instructive.

FIGHT OVER PAPER GIVES NEWS ITEM

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—This item is in today's paper because of an alleged fight—on Beacon Hill—over yesterday's.

Andrew E. Propper, Bostonian of 2 Joy Place, today obtained a municipal court complaint against Charles A. Waite, auditor of the American Unitarian Association, charging larceny of a newspaper.

Waite, who wore a bandage over his left eye, was given a cross-complaint charging Propper with assault and battery with a stick.

Propper told Judge Frank W. Tomasello:

"The paper has been missing for several mornings when I'd go to get it to read the baseball stories. I was getting sick of it. Yesterday I left the door ajar and saw this man come and snatch it."

Waite denied taking the paper. He said Fropper "came running up and shouted 'you're the one who has been taking my paper,' and hit me with the stick."

The court case will be in next Friday's paper.

U. N. HEADQUARTERS CONSTRUCTION STARTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Excavating will start Tuesday for the United Nations' permanent headquarters in eastside Manhattan.

The U. N. announced today it had awarded to the Slattery Contracting Company a $500,000 contract for the excavation of the six-block area along the East river.

The firm's bid was the lowest of six offered by contractors selected by the U. N. to bid on the contract.

U. N. and city officials will hold a brief ceremony Tuesday to mark the beginning of the excavation, first phase of a $65,000,000 project.

The headquarters will include a secretariat building, general assembly building and conference area.

Local Man Elected President Of The Louisiana Division Of Highway

L. Underwood Fourmy of Monroe, was elected the first president of the Louisiana division of U. S. Highway 80 Association at the organization meeting held in Monroe Friday, September 10. W. H. Farmer, the mayor of Delhi, was elected secretary.

The meeting was called by Floyd Hodges, Shreveport, the Louisiana director in the national association. In opening the meeting, Hodges pointed out that the national association had been organized to promote increased travel over highway 80, which is one of the most important trans-continental highways in the United States. The meeting was well attended by businessmen interested in increased travel over highway 80, representing nearly every Louisiana town and city located on the route.

Mr. Fourmy, and other officials of the Louisiana division are to attend a meeting of the officers and directors of the national association which is being held today in Vicksburg, Miss., where definite plans will be laid for a nation-wide fund raising campaign, as well as plans for publicizing highway 80 and promoting increased travel over it.

It was brought out at Friday's meeting that increased attention must be given to the improving of highway 80 in Louisiana, particularly since the Louisiana section is one of the poorest in the nation. It is hoped that in the next few years a completely new highway will have replaced the present inadequate stretch through the state.

SCOUT COUNCIL ADOPTS BUDGET

Executive Board Enthusiastic Over Plans For Year's Financing

Thirty-five members of the Ouachita Valley Council Boy Scout executive board enthusiastically endorsed the 1948-49 council operating budget and the plan by which it is to be raised, in a board meeting held at the Virginia Hotel, Monroe, Thursday, September 9.

A. B. Clarkson, council president, presided over the meeting, which was attended by representatives from all districts of the council. Dr. A. M. Serex, council finance chairman, was in charge of the finance portion of the meeting. Dr. Serex was assisted by Floyd Huddleston, former Scout executive, whose talk on the "Philosophy of Scouting Finance," was the keynote of the meeting. Huddleston explained the reason for one council budget, how the budget is adopted, raised and spent to insure the proper administration of the Scouting program for boys throughout the council area.

Through a series of interesting and very effective dramatizations, those attending the meeting were shown the plan by which the $26,000 operating budget for the fifteen-parish Ouachita Valley Council is to be raised. Participating in this part of the program were: L. L. Price, E. J. Foster, J. W. Webster, members of the executive board, and Gerald B. Harrigill, field Scout executive.

After a complete explanation of the finance plan, representatives from the various districts were asked to comment on the system to be used in raising the 1948-49 operating budget for the council, and all present enthusiastically accepted and endorsed the plan. In the plan, no goals are to be set for districts, but each community is requested to contact at least ten per cent of its population for contributions to the Boy Scout program.

The finance plan will be discussed again in all district committee meetings in the council during the month of September, and local community drives are to be held in October.

Present at the meeting on September 9 were: Lloyd F. Love, Gerald F. DeLaune, S. L. Maxwell, Ferriday; G. Lyman Gladney, F. O. Shipp, Rayville; Roy M. Taylor, Joe Dante, J. A. Holmes, J. R. DORMITORIES IN TECH TO OPEN

College To 'Come To Life' After Closing Of Summer Term

RUSTON, Sept. 11.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech will "come to life" Sunday with the opening of the dormitories for freshmen, preparatory to the beginning of the fall semester. The college has been shut down academically since the close of the summer term on July 31, although several administrative staff members have been on the job during the interim.

A convocation for first-term freshmen will be held in Howard auditorium at 9 o'clock Monday morning and a meeting of the general faculty will be held in the Little Theater at 4 p.m. the same day. The freshmen will be addressed by President Claybrook Cottingham at the assembly. He will be presented by George Briley, Natchitoches, president of the Tech Student Body Association. Following a full day of preliminary registration activities, the students and faculty will attend an informal reception on the lawn of the president's home at 8 p.m.

Dormitories will be open for upperclassmen on Tuesday. The upperclassmen will register on Wednesday, with those whose names begin with L through Z enrolling that day. Others will register on Thursday.

CANNON ROARS BUT CAPTAIN STAYS PUT

Bremen, Ind., Sept. 11.—(AP)—The cannon roared and smoke rolled but the "human cannonball," Capt. Hugo Zacchini, failed to come out of the barrel last night.

The gunner peered in and the captain was still there—unconscious from powder fumes but otherwise unhurt.

He was revived by firemen and announced that tonight he will be shot out of the cannon twice for the visitors at the Bremen carnival.

The veteran performer was undisturbed by the incident, which he said really was fortunate because if the mechanism had not failed and he had been hurled out of the barrel he would have landed on a ferris wheel instead of over it in a net.

"The cannon was aimed at the wrong angle," he explained.

SPY CHECKERS

"the president was either unaware of the true war-time espionage situation or is desperately endeavoring to shield his administration through such a generalization from justified public censure."

Vail quoted the high army officer as telling the committee that "Japanese espionage was either nonexistent or unworthy of mention during the war-time period while German espionage was of negligible and relatively unimportant proportions.

"According to the testimony of the officer he was certain that in some degree Russian efforts to penetrate atomic research safeguards were successful. To what degree he could not venture an opinion."

The un-American activities committee intends to pry more deeply next week into the question of atomic espionage as a prelude to resumption of open hearings. The public hearings have been scheduled for Wednesday.

As to what secrets on atomic development the Russians might have actually got, the committee had little to say. All that the members have been willing thus far to offer is that they have testimony to the effect that some atomic scientists leaked information to the Russians and that some shipments of uranium compounds and metal were made to Russia during the war.

Groves said he did not recall any uranium shipments to the Soviets.

Vail was asked whether there was any reason to believe the Russians were aware of the atom bomb project from the beginning.

"Well," he answered, "you can take the statement of this high ranking officer that espionage activities were in progress prior to his becoming affiliated with this project."

Vail said that the atom bomb work began before the Manhattan atomic project was organized to carry through with the development of the bomb. He said there was an interval of several months between the start of the work and creation of the Manhattan project headed by Groves.

SPOT COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Spot cotton closed steady 25 cents a bale higher. Sales 6,735; low middling 25.60; middling 31.10; good middling 31.40.

New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 11. — (AP) — The cotton market was firm today with trading quiet. A carryover of Friday's textile mill buying and some Commission House replacement, demand encountered only limited hedge selling.

Dealers reported that a considerable portion of the 1948 cotton crop was moving into government loans and as a result selling from the south was held to a minimum.

Expectation of increased buying against future export sales and predictions for a pickup in textile business contributed to the upward movement.

Futures closed unchanged to 60 cents a bale higher than the previous close.

MORE CRUDE OIL RESERVES SEEN

Deposits In United States Estimated At Nine Hundred Billion Gallons

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 11.—(Special)—The known volume of crude oil underground in the United States has reached nine hundred billion gallons, the highest in history, despite unprecedented demands for oil products, R. S. McFarland, vice-president and general manager, Mid-Continent division, Seaboard Oil Company of Delaware, stated here today.

Quoting from a study just completed by the Oil Industry Information Committee, McFarland cited modern exploration and improved recovery methods as the means to lifting the nation's reserves despite heavy demands. Beside crude oil, he said, the known reserves of condensates, natural gasoline and other liquefied petroleum gases, which form part of the supply, total more than 130 billion gallons.

"Evidence of such improved methods of discovering and recovering oil should dispel fears that we are in danger of running out of oil," McFarland said. "While only a few decades ago we were able to recover only about 20 per cent of the oil from a well, today's average recovery rate is near 80 per cent. Careful control of the flow, development of well-head equipment that prevents wasteful gushers, and the repressuring of wells by gas and water have contributed increasing yield of oil."

Equipment such as the airborne magneto-meter, the waterborne seismograph and the gravimeter have taken a lot of the guesswork out of the search for oil, the report pointed out, thus contributing to the increased reserves. Research making possible the utilization of natural gas, coal, oil shale and tar sands as supplementary sources of liquid fuel further assure the United States adequate supplies for many years in the future, the report said.

The study emphasizing that only oil known to exist through test drilling was included in the summary of proved reserves, and does not include partially developed fields, nor a further possible increase in recoverables from wells formerly considered exhausted, nor synthetic products or liquids obtained through processing natural gas. Geologists estimate that there are over two trillion more gallons of oil yet to be discovered and proved in the United States.

OPERATION ORDERS ISSUED BY DIGBY

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Commissioner of Conservation S. L. Digby announced orders affecting operations on Paradis, Waskom and North Tepetate oil fields.

The orders unitized separate interest in the 40-acre drilling unit No. 56 in Paradis Field, naming the Texas Co. as operator; denied application of Stanolind Oil and Gas Co. for integration of the J. W. Flournoy unit in Waskom Field, and granted application of Atlantic Refining Co. to drill another well near the center of unit No. 3 in North Tepetate Field.

Digby also announced the postponement or cancellation of three of several hearings set for Sept. 16 in Shreveport. The hearings were on operations in the Ada, Haynesville and North Tepetate Fields.

P.-T. A. COUNCIL HOLDS SESSION

Work Of Coming School Year Is Mapped Out By Leaders

The Twin City P.-T. A. Council had a call meeting of all local units, presidents, membership chairmen and room mothers at the Ouachita parish health unit Thursday at 3:30 p. m. to give information as to how best to conduct and promote the P.-T. A. membership drive.

The meeting was in the form of an open forum directed by Mrs. M. L. DeFreese, director of council and special service; Mrs. A. C. Pappas, council president, and Mrs. George Varino, legislative chairman. Nine local units were represented.

It was suggested that the membership chairmen, room mothers, magazine chairmen and co-workers attend school on the opening day prepared to sell P.-T. A. membership cards and subscriptions to the P.-T. A. magazine. Back to school night was called another good time to sell subscriptions.

A suggestion was made that fathers can be made interested in P.-T. A. work in finding something at school that needs fixing or replacement. It was pointed out that each school should strive to hold every member who belonged in the past year, and then to enroll at least 10 per cent of new membership. It was urged to complete the membership drive by November 15. If not completed by that time, a deadline set for December 15 was suggested. All dues that belong to the state must be sent in by that time.

A loving cup will be presented by the council to the local unit showing the greatest percentage of gain in membership over the previous year. The deadline for this is set for November 15.

It was suggested that the council ask each local unit to make P.-T. A. membership posters for display downtown during October, which is P.-T. A. membership month. An award is suggested to be given to the local unit making the best poster.

The need of a parent-teacher workshop in colleges so that the graduating teachers will know how to work with the parents was suggested.

At the close of the meeting, members of various P.-T. A. groups said the session had proved highly instructive.

Lee, pastor of Belleview Baptist Church of Memphis, Tenn., and president of the Southern Baptist Convention.

The Ouachita Valley Association has named committees to serve in making preparations for the coming convention. Mr. J. D. FIGHT OVER PAPER GIVES NEWS ITEM

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—This item is in today's paper because of an alleged fight—on Beacon Hill—over yesterday's.

Waite, who wore a bandage over his left eye, was given a cross-complaint charging Propper with assault and battery with a stick.

Propper told Judge Frank W. Tomasello:

"The paper has been missing for several mornings when I'd go to get it to read the baseball stories. I was getting sick of it. Yesterday I left the door ajar and saw this man come and snatch it."

Waite denied taking the paper. He said Propper "came running up and shouted 'you're the one who has been taking my paper,' and hit me with the stick."

The court case will be in next Friday's paper.

U. N. HEADQUARTERS CONSTRUCTION STARTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Excavating will start Tuesday for the United Nations' permanent headquarters in eastside Manhattan.

The U. N. announced today it had awarded to the Slattery Contracting Company a $500,000 contract for the excavation of the six-block area along the East river.

The firm's bid was the lowest of six offered by contractors selected by the U. N. to bid on the contract.

U. N. and city officials will hold a brief ceremony Tuesday to mark the beginning of the excavation, first phase of a $65,000,000 project.

The headquarters will include a secretariat building, general assembly building and conference area.

Local Man Elected President Of The Louisiana Division Of Highway

L. Underwood Fourmy of Monroe, was elected the first president of the Louisiana division of U. S. Highway 80 Association at the organization meeting held in Monroe Friday, September 10. W. H. Farmer, the mayor of Delhi, was elected secretary.

The meeting was called by Floyd Hodges, Shreveport, the Louisiana director in the national association. In opening the meeting, Hodges pointed out that the national association had been organized to promote increased travel over highway 80, which is one of the most important trans-continental highways in the United States. The meeting was well attended by businessmen interested in increased travel over highway 80, representing nearly every Louisiana town and city located on the route.

Mr. Fourmy, and other officials of the Louisiana division are to attend a meeting of the officers and directors of the national association which is being held today in Vicksburg, Miss., where definite plans will be laid for a nation-wide fund raising campaign, as well as plans for publicizing highway 80 and promoting increased travel over it.

It was brought out at Friday's meeting that increased attention must be given to the improving of highway 80 in Louisiana, particularly since the Louisiana section is one of the poorest in the nation. It is hoped that in the next few years a completely new highway will have replaced the present inadequate stretch through the state.

SCOUT COUNCIL ADOPTS BUDGET

Executive Board Enthusiastic Over Plans For Year's Financing

Thirty-five members of the Ouachita Valley Council Boy Scout executive board enthusiastically endorsed the 1948-49 council operating budget and the plan by which it is to be raised, in a board meeting held at the Virginia Hotel, Monroe, Thursday, September 9.

A. B. Clarkson, council president, presided over the meeting, which was attended by representatives from all districts of the council. Dr. A. M. Serex, council finance chairman, was in charge of the finance portion of the meeting. Dr. Serex was assisted by Floyd Huddleston, former Scout executive, whose talk on the "Philosophy of Scouting Finance," was the keynote of the meeting. Huddleston explained the reason for one council budget, how the budget is adopted, raised and spent to insure the proper administration of the Scouting program for boys throughout the council area.

Through a series of interesting and very effective dramatizations, those attending the meeting were shown the plan by which the $26,000 operating budget for the fifteen-parish Ouachita Valley Council is to be raised. Participating in this part of the program were: L. L. Price, E. J. Foster, J. W. Webster, members of the executive board, and Gerald B. Harrigill, field Scout executive.

After a complete explanation of the finance plan, representatives from the various districts were asked to comment on the system to be used in raising the 1948-49 operating budget for the council, and all present enthusiastically accepted and endorsed the plan. In the plan, no goals are to be set for districts, but each community is requested to contact at least ten per cent of its population for contributions to the Boy Scout program.

The finance plan will be discussed again in all district committee meetings in the council during the month of September, and local community drives are to be held in October.

Present at the meeting on September 9 were: Lloyd F. Love, Gerald P. DeLaune, S. L. Maxwell, Ferriday; G. Lyman Gladney, F. O. Shipp, Rayville; Roy M. Taylor, Joe Dante, J. A. Holmes, J. R. Donnell, Winnsboro; John W. McCloy, W. H. Cameron, Winnfield; James Madison, Judge E. L. Gladney, Sheriff Robert Harp, Bastrop; T. O. Dollar, Jonesboro; L. P. McLane, Judge E. L. Walker, Amos W. In The Air

Over Monroe

By Margaret Gambrell

When the word got around Saturday that there would be a B-29 stopping over at Selman Field, several persons were out to inspect the huge aircraft, and greet its crew which carried Brig. Gen. T. B. Herndon, commanding general of the 307th air division now on active duty in Fort Worth, Tex.

Gen. Herndon made a surprise visit to Monroe on a tour surveying training facilities of the squadrons of his command in Little Rock, Ark., Baton Rouge and New Orleans.

General Herndon is now on active duty training with the 7th bombardment wing of the 8th air force at Carswell air force base, Fort Worth, Tex.

Capt. William H. Gannaway, of the 578th squadron of Monroe, was on the trip with General Herndon.

Also accompanying the general on flight was Colonel H. F. Dubuys, of New Orleans, deputy commander, of the 307th air division, Lt. Col. Henry Reeves, commanding officer of the 577th squadron of Little Rock, Capt. Vincent S. Inbornone, of New Orleans, who is group navigator for the 392nd bombardment group, Lt. Cary B. Fant, flight engineer of Linden, Tex., and Lt. Thomas B. Thompson of New Orleans.

Lt. Fant was flight engineer on the B-29 that set records on the flight from Tokyo to Washington, D. C., on a non-stop flight last year.

Sunbird News

Frank Jacola, flying student, returned to college this past week but before he left he had the thrill of experiencing his first solo flight.

DORMITORIES IN TECH TO OPEN

College To 'Come To Life' After Closing Of Summer Term

RUSTON, Sept. 11.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech will "come to life" Sunday with the opening of the dormitories for freshmen, preparatory to the beginning of the fall semester. The college has been shut down academically since the close of the summer term on July 31, although several administrative staff members have been on the job during the interim.

A convocation for first-term freshmen will be held in Howard auditorium at 9 o'clock Monday morning and a meeting of the general faculty will be held in the Little Theater at 4 p.m. the same day. The freshmen will be addressed by President Claybrook Cottingham at the assembly. He will be presented by George Briley, Natchitoches, president of the Tech Student Body Association. Following a full day of preliminary registration activities, the students and faculty will attend an informal reception on the lawn of the president's home at 8 p.m.

First-term freshmen and students who attended Tech during the summer session only will register in alphabetical order, beginning at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning.

One of the highlights of the freshman registration day program will be the traditional capping ceremony for girls Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. At this ceremony the freshman girls don the traditional green caps, which will mark them as beginning students at the college.

Dormitories will be open for upperclassmen on Tuesday. The upperclassmen will register on Wednesday, with those whose names begin with L through Z enrolling that day. Others will register on Thursday.

CANNON ROARS BUT CAPTAIN STAYS PUT

Bremen, Ind., Sept. 11.—(AP)—The cannon roared and smoke rolled but the "human cannonball," Capt. Hugo Zacchini, failed to come out of the barrel last night.

The gunner peered in and the captain was still there—unconscious from powder fumes but otherwise unhurt.

He was revived by firemen and announced that tonight he will be shot out of the cannon twice for the visitors at the Bremen carnival.

The veteran performer was undisturbed by the incident, which he said really was fortunate because if the mechanism had not failed and he had been hurled out of the barrel he would have landed on a ferris wheel instead of over it in a net.

"The cannon was aimed at the wrong angle," he explained.

SPY CHECKERS

"the president was either unaware of the true war-time espionage situation or is desperately endeavoring to shield his administration through such a generalization from justified public censure."

Vail quoted the high army officer as telling the committee that "Japanese espionage was either nonexistent or unworthy of mention during the war-time period while German espionage was of negligible and relatively unimportant proportions.

"According to the testimony of the officer he was certain that in some degree Russian efforts to penetrate atomic research safeguards were successful. To what degree he could not venture an opinion."

The un-American activities committee intends to pry more deeply next week into the question of atomic espionage as a prelude to resumption of open hearings. The public hearings have been scheduled for Wednesday.

As to what secrets on atomic development the Russians might have actually got, the committee had little to say. All that the members have been willing thus far to offer is that they have testimony to the effect that some atomic scientists leaked information to the Russians and that some shipments of uranium compounds and metal were made to Russia during the war.

Groves said he did not recall any uranium shipments to the Soviets.

Vail was asked whether there was any reason to believe the Russians were aware of the atom bomb project from the beginning.

"Well," he answered, "you can take the statement of this high ranking officer that espionage activities were in progress prior to his becoming affiliated with this project."

Vail said that the atom bomb work began before the Manhattan atomic project was organized to carry through with the development of the bomb. He said there was an interval of several months between the start of the work and creation of the Manhattan project headed by Groves.

New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The cotton market was firm today with trading quiet. A carryover of Friday's textile mill buying and some Commission House replacement demand encountered only limited hedge selling.

Dealers reported that a considerable portion of the 1948 cotton crop was moving into government loans and as a result selling from the south was held to a minimum.

Expectation of increased buying against future export sales and predictions for a pickup in textile business contributed to the upward movement.

Futures closed unchanged to 60 cents a bale higher than the previous close.

MORE CRUDE OIL RESERVES SEEN

Deposits In United States Estimated At Nine Hundred Billion Gallons

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 11.—(Special)—The known volume of crude oil underground in the United States has reached nine hundred billion gallons, the highest in history, despite unprecedented demands for oil products, R. S. McFarland, vice-president and general manager, Mid-Continent division, Seaboard Oil Company of Delaware, stated here today.

Quoting from a study just completed by the Oil Industry Information Committee, McFarland cited modern exploration and improved recovery methods as the means to lifting the nation's reserves despite heavy demands. Beside crude oil, he said, the known reserves of condensates, natural gasoline and other liquefied petroleum gases, which form part of the supply, total more than 130 billion gallons.

"Evidence of such improved methods of discovering and recovering oil should dispel fears that we are in danger of running out of oil," McFarland said. "While only a few decades ago we were able to recover only about 20 per cent of the oil from a well, today's average recovery rate is near 80 per cent. Careful control of the flow, development of well-head equipment that prevents wasteful gushers, and the repressuring of wells by gas and water have contributed increasing yield of oil."

Equipment such as the airborne magneto-meter, the waterborne seismograph and the gravimeter have taken a lot of the guesswork out of the search for oil, the report pointed out, thus contributing to the increased reserves. Research making possible the utilization of natural gas, coal, oil shale and tar sands as supplementary sources of liquid fuel further assure the United States adequate supplies for many years in the future, the report said.

The study emphasizing that only oil known to exist through test drilling was included in the summary of proved reserves, and does not include partially developed fields, nor a further possible increase in recoverables from wells formerly considered exhausted, nor synthetic products or liquids obtained through processing natural gas. Geologists estimate that there are over two trillion more gallons of oil yet to be discovered and proved in the United States.

OPERATION ORDERS ISSUED BY DIGBY

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Commissioner of Conservation S. L. Digby announced orders affecting operations on Paradis, Waskom and North Tepetate oil fields.

The orders unitized separate interest in the 40-acre drilling unit No. 56 in Paradis Field, naming the Texas Co. as operator; denied application of Stanolind Oil and Gas Co. for integration of the J. W. Flournoy unit in Waskom Field, and granted application of Atlantic Refining Co. to drill another well near the center of unit No. 3 in North Tepetate Field.

Digby also announced the postponement or cancellation of three of several hearings set for Sept. 16 in Shreveport. The hearings were on operations in the Ada, Haynesville and North Tepetate Fields.

SINCERE FRIENDLY SALESMAN CAN SECURE HIS FUTURE

If you are over 35, have had 10 years successful sales experience and like to talk with executives in all types of business, you may qualify for a very good territory where we are well-known. The goodwill advertising field is rapidly expanding. A territory with an old established firm becomes a valuable annuity. We have been a leader in this field for 65 years and pay a high commission which is advanced weekly. Full commission paid on reorders and customers average three orders each year. Some men earn very subsantial incomes their first year but it is more general for a man to earn $5000 his first year, $7000 his second year and not reach the $10,000 bracket until his third year. If you think you can qualify, write The Kemper-Thomas Company, Cincinnati 12, Ohio. The important thing is that we practically place you in business for yourself without any investment. 9-12-A

SINCERE FRIENDLY SALESMAN CAN SECURE HIS FUTURE

If you are over 35, have had 10 years successful sales experience and like to talk with executives in all types of business, you may qualify for a very good territory where we are well-known. The goodwill advertising field is rapidly expanding. A territory with an old established firm becomes a valuable annuity. We have been a leader in this field for 65 years and pay a high commission which is advanced weekly. Full commission paid on reorders and customers average three orders each year. Some men earn very subsantial incomes their first year but it is more general for a man to earn $5000 his first year, $7000 his second year and not reach the $10,000 bracket until his third year. If you think you can qualify, write The Kemper-Thomas Company, Cincinnati 12, Ohio. The important thing is that we practically place you in business for yourself without any investment. 9-12-A

INSURED FARM LOANS WIDENED

Farmers' Home Administration Announces More Lenient Policy

The Farmers Home Administration has been authorized by congress to insure up to $3,698,021 in farm real estate loans made by private lenders in Louisiana this fiscal year. Of the $15,000,000 appropriated for direct farm ownership loans, $493,174 is allocated to Louisiana, states F. L. Spencer, state director of the Farmers Home Administration.

"The changes congress recently made in our insured mortgage program are designed to broaden opportunities for family-type farmers to become farm owners," said Mr. Spencer.

Lenders now get three per cent interest instead of 2 1/2 per cent. Borrowers pay four per cent interest on both direct and insured loans, with the one per cent difference in interest on insured loans going to the Farmers Home Administration for insurance charges and administrative expenses. The Farmers Home Administration services the loan without extra cost to the borrower or to the credit institution. Lenders now have an assured market for the mortgages.

From now on they may turn over the mortgages to the government after seven years and be paid in full. It is felt that these revisions in the Bankhead-Jones farm tenant act will provide a greater incentive to private lenders to help farmers buy farms, stated Mr. Spencer.

Veterans, as usual, will receive preference, and borrowers with either direct or insured loans will be given supervision.

"As formerly, we will make loans only to buy sound-value farms—farms that will pay out in terms of their long-range earning capacity rather than at today's relatively high prices," stated Mr. Spencer.

BREAK GROUND AT PARKVIEW

Shown above is a group from this new Baptist Church who are assembled at the time of ground breaking for their new edifice on Forsythe avenue. An impressive ceremony was held with the pastor, Rev. C. P. Coaker, as master of ceremonies. Scripture was read and a talk delivered by the pastor. A dedicatory prayer was offered by A. P. Lassiter. Others shown in the picture are Walter Ryland, chairman; Carlton Salley, Ivy Jordan, Ira Cagle (holding spade of dirt), J. W. Womack, chairman of the finance committee, besides a number of the members of the church.

Mackenzie's Column

By DeWitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

A situation fraught with potentialities of widespread bloodshed has developed out of the dispute between the Dominion of India and the powerful Nizam of Hyderabad, paramount prince of the Indian sub-continent and reputedly the world's richest individual.

The background of this crisis dates back to just over a year ago when Britain granted independence to all India which, apart from the principalities, was split into two dominions — Pakistan (mainly Moslem) and India (largely Hindu). England advised the hundreds of princes to join either one or the other of the dominions and most of the rulers have done so, the Nizam being the outstanding exception.

India has insisted that his Exalted Highness, as the prince is known, join that dominion. This demand is based on two grounds: (1) Hyderabad lies wholly within the Dominion of India, and (2) the state presents the anomaly of a Moslem prince ruling over a population of some 16,000,000 which is more than three-quarters Hindu.

However, the Nizam long has been noted as proud and resentful of interference with what he regards as his prerogatives. Moreover he has a sizeable standing army of his own. The British always handled him with kid gloves, as I learned as far back as 1916 during my first visit to India.

So his Exalted Highness has stood his ground in the face of insistent demands from the dominion. Relations between the dominion and the state have gone from bad to worse. There have been clashes between Hyderabad police forces and Indian troops on the borders. Finally a few days ago Prime Minister Nehru, of India, demanded that the Nizam outlaw his police army and permit Indian troops to enter the state to maintain order. This the Nizam curtly refused to do.

The latest development is a blunt statement by Nehru at a press conference that Indian troops will be stationed at Secunderabad, capital of Hyderabad, regardless of what happens. He added significantly:

"We do not expect an easy march to Secunderabad."

That's a grim picture—but it's only half the story. The dispute between the Nizam and the dominion of India interlocks with the bitter politico-religious clash between India and Pakistan.

This hostility has all but brought the two dominions to open warfare over the princely state of Kashmir whose population is mainly Moslem but whose maharajah, a Hindu, elected to join predominantly Hindu India. Troops of both dominions are in Kashmir and there has been fighting which has threatened to become general. A United Nations commission on the ground has been unable to achieve peace.

With the foregoing as a preface it is easy to understand the meaning of the statement by the foreign minister of Pakistan, Sir Mohammed Zafrarullah, who charges that India's policy in the Hyderabad dispute will lead to a "communal bloodbath" which could engulf the subcontinent. Of course he is viewing the situation through the hostile eyes of Pakistan, whereas India holds the Nizam responsible for the crisis.

Irrespective of responsibility, however, the fact remains that the consensus of observers seem to be a "communal bloodbath" is a possibility. The Indian peninsula has seen this bloody communal strife for generations, but never before has there been such a mighty and formal division of the country as exists in the dominions of Pakistan and India.

The position is so grave that the United States embassy at New Delhi has announced aerial evacuation of American and British nationals from Hyderabad will begin in a few days. It is estimated that there are 40 British and 300 Americans in the state.

MUST PRODUCE, TEACHERS TOLD

Catahoula Instructors Informed By Superintendent That Best Efforts Required

JONESVILLE, La., Sept. 11.—(Special)—Catahoula parish teachers were given fair warning this week by the school board that the future of their pay increases and tenure benefits would be determined by their efforts toward improving the school system.

In a resolution, the board stated teachers in all parish schools must carry out completely the school program as outlined by the principals; the board would back the principal 100 per cent in carrying out the program, and each principal would be responsible for reporting to the school board any non-cooperativeness on the part of any personnel.

The resolution was passed after Supt. Aubrey L. Brooks had told board members and principals that the state legislature has been generous and that the teachers owe it to Catahoula parish to give an improved school system in 1948-49.

He said in the past salaries were so low that the public overlooked some inefficiencies.

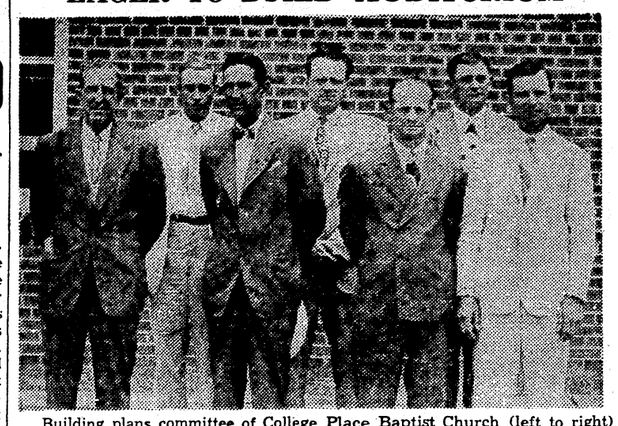

"The spotlight is on us this year," Brooks said. "All school personnel must understand that they must give a dollar's worth for every dollar received. We have had too many teachers who look forward only to Friday afternoon and payday."

School board members told principals that members of the faculty must earn their salaries or they are endangering the existence of the teacher tenure law. They also pointed out that the legislative appropriations only were for two years and that chances for additional school funds depend upon the attitude and efforts of all teachers during this "test" period.

All parish school principals were present at the meeting and pledged their efforts toward a record achievement during 1948-49.

Church Will Break Ground Soon For $100,000 Auditorium Building

College Place Baptist Church, four years old on next November 14, will be the scene of a ground-breaking for the new auditorium and an extra educational unit on the anniversary date. The present debt of the church will be liquidated by that time.

This church group recently authorized the preparation of plans by W. King Stubbs, local architect, working out details of the floor plans provided for by the department of church architecture of the Sunday school board of the Southern Baptist convention in Nashville, Tenn.

The plan calls for an auditorium to seat 1,000 and for an educational unit for 500. The estimated cost is $100,000. The present building, completed in June, 1946, cost $65,000 furnished and is, as stated, shortly to be free of all indebtedness.

The church membership has grown from 240 to 685 since November, 1944. An expansion of the Bible School was made during the last year in the establishment of a Sunday School in Selman field housing project. Drew Larry is the superintendent.

INSURED FARM LOANS WIDENED

Farmers' Home Administration Announces More Lenient Policy

The Farmers Home Administration has been authorized by congress to insure up to $3,698,021 in farm real estate loans made by private lenders in Louisiana this fiscal year. Of the $15,000,000 appropriated for direct farm ownership loans, $493,174 is allocated to Louisiana, states F. L. Spencer, state director of the Farmers Home Administration.

"The changes congress recently made in our insured mortgage program are designed to broaden opportunities for family-type farmers to become farm owners," said Mr. Spencer.

Lenders now get three per cent interest instead of 2 1/2 per cent. Borrowers pay four per cent interest on both direct and insured loans, with the one per cent difference in interest on insured loans going to the Farmers Home Administration for insurance charges and administrative expenses. The Farmers Home Administration services the loan without extra cost to the borrower or to the credit institution. Lenders now have an assured market for the mortgages.

From now on they may turn over the mortgages to the government after seven years and be paid in full. It is felt that these revisions in the Bankhead-Jones farm tenant act will provide a greater incentive to private lenders to help farmers buy farms, stated Mr. Spencer.

Veterans, as usual, will receive preference, and borrowers with either direct or insured loans will be given supervision.

"As formerly, we will make loans only to buy sound-value farms—farms that will pay out in terms of their long-range earning capacity rather than at today's relatively high prices," stated Mr. Spencer.

Mackenzie's Column

By DeWitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

A situation fraught with potentialities of widespread bloodshed has developed out of the dispute between the Dominion of India and the powerful Nizam of Hyderabad, paramount prince of the Indian sub-continent and reputedly the world's richest individual.

The background of this crisis dates back to just over a year ago when Britain granted independence to all India which, apart from the principalities, was split into two dominions—Pakistan (mainly Moslem) and India (largely Hindu). England advised the hundreds of princes to join either one or the other of the dominions and most of the rulers have done so, the Nizam being the outstanding exception.

India has insisted that his Exalted Highness, as the prince is known, join that dominion. This demand is based on two grounds: (1) Hyderabad lies wholly within the Dominion of India, and (2) the state presents the anomaly of a Moslem prince ruling over a population of some 16,000,000 which is more than three-quarters Hindu.

However, the Nizam long has been noted as proud and resentful of interference with what he regards as his prerogatives. Moreover he has a sizeable standing army of his own. The British always handled him with kid gloves, as I learned as far back as 1916 during my first visit to India.

So his Exalted Highness has stood his ground in the face of insistent demands from the dominion. Relations between the dominion and the state have gone from bad to worse. There have been clashes between Hyderabad police forces and Indian troops on the borders. Finally a few days ago Prime Minister Nehru, of India, demanded that the Nizam outlaw his police army and permit Indian troops to enter the state to maintain order. This the Nizam curtly refused to do.

The latest development is a blunt statement by Nehru at a press conference that Indian troops will be stationed at Secunderabad, capital of Hyderabad, regardless of what happens. He added significantly:

"We do not expect an easy march to Secunderabad."

That's a grim picture—but it's only half the story. The dispute between the Nizam and the dominion of India interlocks with the bitter politico-religious clash between India and Pakistan.

This hostility has all but brought the two dominions to open warfare over the princely state of Kashmir whose population is mainly Moslem but whose maharajah, a Hindu, elected to join predominantly Hindu India. Troops of both dominions are in Kashmir and there has been fighting which has threatened to become general. A United Nations commission on the ground has been unable to achieve peace.

With the foregoing as a preface it is easy to understand the meaning of the statement by the foreign minister of Pakistan, Sir Mohammed Zafrarullah, who charges that India's policy in the Hyderabad dispute will lead to a "communal bloodbath" which could engulf the subcontinent. Of course he is viewing the situation through the hostile eyes of Pakistan, whereas India holds the Nizam responsible for the crisis.

Irrespective of responsibility, however, the fact remains that the consensus of observers seem to be a "communal bloodbath" is a possibility. The Indian peninsula has seen this bloody communal strife for generations, but never before has there been such a mighty and formal division of the country as exists in the dominions of Pakistan and India.

The position is so grave that the United States embassy at New Delhi has announced aerial evacuation of American and British nationals from Hyderabad will begin in a few days. It is estimated that there are 40 British and 500 Americans in the state.

Miss Flournoy Weds Mr. Stack

Ceremony At Methodist Church Unites Monroe Girl And New Yorker

Simplicity characterized the wedding of Miss Gene Flournoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kelso Flournoy, and Mr. John James Stack, son of Mrs. John James Stack and the late Mr. Stack of Long Island, N. Y., which took place at the First Methodist Church Saturday, September 4, at 4 p. m. Only members of the immediate family were present.

Magnolia leaves encircled the altar before which the ceremony performed by the Rev. A. M. Serex took place, while crepe myrtle bound with white satin ribbon decorated the chancel.

Prior to the ceremony, Miss Mary Grace Lawn, organist, played traditional wedding music and during the ceremony she played softly "Oh Gentle Presence."

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attended by her sister, Mrs. Donald E. Simmons, Jr. Thomas Faulk Flournoy served Mr. Stack as best man.

The bride wore an ice-blue satin afternoon frock with matching accessories. She carried a small Victorian nosegay of white gardenias and pink roses from the gardens of her friends. Mrs. Simmons wore a draped model of deep purple with a small gold hat.

An arrangement of white gardenias decorated the table. For traveling, the bride wore a tailored suit of grey gabardine with accessories to match.

The bride, a member of a prominent pioneer family, is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School, and of Principia College, Elsah, Ill. She attended Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, and received her B. A. degree from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in Ruston, La. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma and Delta Beta Sigma sororities, and Fort Miro Chapter of Daughters of American Revolution.

Mr. Stack served three years in the United States army air forces as a meteorologist, spending two years on the Island of Guam. He is at the present time completing his studies at Columbia University.

After a wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania, Mr. and Mrs. Stack will be at home at 3140 Broadway, New York City.

Club Hears Talk

Mrs. E. C. Gibson, Mrs. J. D. Petty, Mrs. A. J. Speer greeted members of the Welcome Branch of the Twentieth Century Book Club and their guests, at the first meeting of the new club year, on the Cherokee terrace of the Frances Hotel.

Mrs. Leola Nixon, second vice-president, called the meeting to order. She conducted the business session, at which time the following officers were elected to fill vacancies: Mrs. F. H. Peterson, president, Mrs. E. J Whitman, first vice-president, and Mrs. F. E. Black, reporter.

Mrs. E. C. Gibson, program chairman, presented the guest speaker. Mr. Thomas M. Hayes, Jr., local attorney, who is a graduate of Tulane Law School. He served during the recent World War in both Pacific and European theaters, and is now practicing law in Monroe.

In describing "wills and community property laws of Louisiana," Mr. Hayes declared: "Everyone should make a written will, as a verbal will is not legally binding. If you have property, money, or anything which you desire should go to certain people after your death, you should so declare your intentions in writing, or your estate may pass to someone whom you do not desire to inherit it. Then successions should be opened as soon after death as possible, as less trouble and expense is involved than if you wait until a later date."

"Two people cannot make joint wills. Each person must make his own will. In Louisiana there are four types of wills prescribed by law. The simplest and one most widely used, is the olographic will. It must be written, entirely dated, and entirely signed all in the handwriting of the person making the will."

"In all fairness to yourself, you should consult your attorney, your accountant, or your tax consultant to determine what should be included in your will."

TO DIRECT PLAYS

Mrs. Blanche Oliver, left, and Mrs. Elizabeth Whitfield, two of the directors scheduled for productions during the coming Little Theatre season. Mrs. Oliver will direct the first play of the season, "Madame X," to be held in October at the municipal court. She also will direct a play of which she is author, later in the season. Mrs. Whitfield will direct a popular play to be presented during the winter months.

Will Make Talk

Mrs. Howard Rivers will address the young people of the First Presbyterian Church on Sunday, September 12, at 6:30 p. m. in the church auditorium. The subject of her talk will be "Hobbies and Christianity." The public is cordially invited to attend this meeting.

Miss Smith Weds Mr. Frantom In West Monroe Church

A wedding of interest throughout the Twin Cities was that of Miss Charlie Anne Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Smith and Mr. Ernest Breard Frantom, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Frantom, both of West Monroe. The marriage took place on Monday, August 16, at eight o'clock at the Memorial Presbyterian Church.

The double ring ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. C. B. Robinson, pastor of the Presbyterian Church underneath an arch entwined with fern and white satin bows.

An artistic arrangement of tall vases holding white asters and ferns stood on both sides of the arch. At either side of the altar stood white candelabra holding lighted tapers.

The tapers were lighted by the ushers, Mr. L. E. Frantom, brother of the groom, and Mr. Oswell Adams. White satin bows marked the pews reserved for the families.

Mrs. C. B. Robinson, organist, accompanied Miss Mildred White who sang "Because," preceding the ceremony. The bridal chorus from Lohengrin was rendered for the processional and Mendelssohn's wedding march for the recessional.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a striking two-piece shell-pink tailluer with a powder blue blouse and black accessories. She carried a white Bible surmounted by white carnations with streamers of white satin and tuberoses.

The bride's mother wore a printed silk model with a corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother wore a navy sheer and pink carnation corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the banquet hall of the church. At one end of the table was the wedding cake, a luscious confection embossed in pink roses and green leaves. It was surmounted by the bride and groom figurines. After the cutting of the wedding cake by the couple, Miss Kitty McCoy presided at the service. At the other end of the table was a large crystal bowl from which fruit punch was served by Miss Edwina Albritton.

The couple left for a short wedding trip and are now residing in an apartment on St. John.

Mrs. Frantom is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School and attended Northeast Junior College and B. M. I.

Mr. Frantom is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School and is a veteran of World War II.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attended by her sister, Mrs. Donald E. Simmons, Jr. Thomas Faulk Flournoy served Mr. Stack as best man.

The bride wore an ice-blue satin afternoon frock with matching accessories. She carried a small Victorian nosegay of white gardenias and pink roses from the gardens of her friends. Mrs. Simmons wore a draped model of deep purple with a small gold hat.

After the ceremony, the family gathered at the bride's home on Hudson Lane for an informal supper and the cutting of the wedding cake.

An arrangement of white gardenias decorated the table. For traveling, the bride wore a tailored suit of grey gabardine with accessories to match.

The bride, a member of a prominent pioneer family, is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School, and of Principia College, Elsah, Ill. She attended Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, and received her B. A. degree from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in Ruston, La. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma and Delta Beta Sigma sororities, and Fort Miro Chapter of Daughters of American Revolution.

Mr. Stack served three years in the United States army air forces as a meteorologist, spending two years on the Island of Guam. He is at the present time completing his studies at Columbia University.

After a wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania, Mr. and Mrs. Stack will be at home at 3140 Broadway, New York City.

Club Hears Talk

Mrs. E. C. Gibson, Mrs. J. D. Petty, Mrs. A. J. Speer greeted members of the Welcome Branch of the Twentieth Century Book Club and their guests, at the first meeting of the new club year, on the Cherokee terrace of the Frances Hotel.

Mrs. Leola Nixon, second vice-president, called the meeting to order She conducted the business session, at which time the following officers were elected to fill vacancies: Mrs. F. H. Peterson, president, Mrs. E. J Whitman, first vice-president, and Mrs. F. E. Black, reporter.

Mrs. E. C. Gibson, program chairman, presented the guest speaker, Mr. Thomas M. Hayes, Jr., local attorney, who is a graduate of Tulane Law School. He served during the recent World War in both Pacific and European theaters, and is now practicing law in Monroe.

In describing "wills and community property laws of Louisiana," Mr Hayes declared: "Everyone should make a written will, as a verbal will is not legally binding. If you have property, money, or anything which you desire should go to certain people after your death, you should so declare your intentions in writing, or your estate may pass to someone whom you do not desire to inherit it. Then successions should be opened as soon after death as possible, as less trouble and expense is involved than if you wait until a later date."

"Two people cannot make joint wills. Each person must make his own will. In Louisiana there are four types of wills prescribed by law. The simplest and one most widely used, is the olographic will. It must be written, entirely dated, and entirely signed all in the handwriting of the person making the will."

"In all fairness to yourself, you should consult your attorney, your accountant, or your tax consultant to determine what should be included in your will."

TO DIRECT PLAYS

Mrs. Blanche Oliver, left, and Mrs. Elizabeth Whitfield, two of the directors scheduled for productions during the coming Little Theatre season. Mrs. Oliver will direct the first play of the season, "Madame X," to be held in October at the municipal court. She also will direct a play of which she is author, later in the season. Mrs. Whitfield will direct a popular play to be presented during the winter months.

Will Make Talk

Mrs. Howard Rivers will address the young people of the First Presbyterian Church on Sunday, September 12, at 6:30 p. m. in the church auditorium. The subject of her talk will be "Hobbies and Christianity." The public is cordially invited to attend this meeting.

Miss Smith Weds Mr. Frantom In West Monroe Church

A wedding of interest throughout the Twin Cities was that of Miss Charlie Anne Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Smith and Mr. Ernest Breard Frantom, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Frantom, both of West Monroe. The marriage took place on Monday, August 16, at eight o'clock at the Memorial Presbyterian Church.

The double ring ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. C. B. Robinson, pastor of the Presbyterian Church underneath an arch entwined with fern and white satin bows.

An artistic arrangement of tall vases holding white asters and ferns stood on both sides of the arch. At either side of the altar stood white candelabra holding lighted tapers.

The tapers were lighted by the ushers, Mr. L. E. Frantom, brother of the groom, and Mr. Oswell Adams. White satin bows marked the pews reserved for the families.

Mrs. C. B. Robinson, organist, accompanied Miss Mildred White who sang "Because," preceding the ceremony. The bridal chorus from Lohengrin was rendered for the processional and Mendelssohn's wedding march for the recessional.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a striking two-piece shell-pink taillluer with a powder blue blouse and black accessories. She carried a white Bible surmounted by white carnations with streamers of white satin and tuberoses.

The bride's only attendant, Miss Billie Frantom, wore a gray suit with black accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations. Mr. Glenwood Adams was the groom's best man.

The bride's mother wore a printed silk model with a corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother wore a navy sheer and pink carnation corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the banquet hall of the church. At one end of the table was the wedding cake, a luscious confection embossed in pink roses and green leaves. It was surmounted by the bride and groom figurines. After the cutting of the wedding cake by the couple, Miss Kitty McCoy presided at the service. At the other end of the table was a large crystal bowl from which fruit punch was served by Miss Edwina Albritton.

The couple left for a short wedding trip and are now residing in an apartment on St. John.

Mrs. Frantom is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School and attended Northeast Junior College and B. M. I.

Mr. Frantom is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School and is a veteran of World War II.

D. A. R. HOLDS WORKSHOP ABOARD THE BROWN KRAFT

Mrs. Gladys B. Sperry, regent of Fort Miro chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held a "workshop meeting for chapter officers and chairmen aboard the cabin-cruiser "Brown Craft" when plans were made for chapter activities for the year. Mrs. Ray Junod served as co-hostess with Mrs. Sperry.

The meeting, held on the upper deck while the cruiser was anchored in an inlet, was opened with prayer by Mrs. Manning McGuire, chaplain. The pledge of allegiance to the flag was given by the group. Mrs. Gilbert Stovall, Americanism chairman, read "The American's Creed," while Miss Ina Merle Thomas led the singing of "America." From the brochure of committee work, a compilation of letters of instruction on chapter chairman of each of the national committees, Mrs. Sperry gave each chairman instructions pertaining to her chairmanship. The booklet "What the Daughters Do," giving in detail the vast scope of endeavors of the society, was presented to each officer and chairman. Twenty-one prospective members were endorsed for membership.

In closing the workshop Mrs. Sperry said in part: "The world-wide activities of the national society, Daughters of the American Revolution, require the capable and devoted service of all its members."

"The matter of attendance is an important one. The more members a chapter can have who take an active part in the society's objectives, the more influential the chapter will become, and the better will that chapter carry on and accomplish the work of our society. There are some members who just belong, and too few who are willing to carry the brunt of the work of the committees."

"In the words of Emerson, 'You cannot create interest without understanding.' It is my desire and purpose that each and every one attend all the meetings, study the handbook, the booklet 'What the Daughters Do' and the brochure page of instructions. Remembering at all times that 'the devotion of thought to an honest achievement makes the achievement possible.'"

Officers and committee chairmen present were: Mrs. Gladys B. Sperry, regent; Mrs. Courtney Oliver, first vice-regent; Mrs. Thomas Leigh, second vice-regent; Mrs. Shelby Meek, recording secretary; Mrs. Manning McGuire, chaplain; Mrs. Clarence Faulk, counselor and finance chairman. Chapter chairmen present were: Mrs. Fagan Cox, advancement of American music; Mrs. David I. Garrett, American Indians; Mrs. Gilbert Stovall, Americanism and press relations; Mrs. T. O. Brown, American Red Cross; Mrs. Lewis C. Slater, approved schools; Mrs. Charles M. Mitchell, by-laws; Mrs. Ray Junod, correct use of the flag; Mrs. Robert W. Hair, manual; Mrs. Leo Terzia, museum; Miss Eleona Brinsmade, student loan fund; Miss Ina Merle Thomas, filing and lending bureau; Mrs. Gilbert Faulk, radio; Mrs. Ned Leigh, member of year book committee and Mrs. H. D. A. R. HOLDS WORKSHOP ABOARD THE BROWN KRAFT

Mrs. Gladys B. Sperry, regent of Fort Miro chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held a "workshop meeting for chapter officers and chairmen aboard the cabin-cruiser "Brown Craft" when plans were made for chapter activities for the year. Mrs. Ray Junod served as co-hostess with Mrs. Sperry.

The meeting, held on the upper deck while the cruiser was anchored in an inlet, was opened with prayer by Mrs. Manning McGuire, chaplain. The pledge of allegiance to the flag was given by the group. Mrs. Gilbert Stovall, Americanism chairman, read "The American's Creed," while Miss Ina Merle Thomas led the singing of "America." From the brochure of committee work, a compilation of letters of instruction on chapter chairman of each of the national committees, Mrs. Sperry gave each chairman instructions pertaining to her chairmanship. The booklet "What the Daughters Do," giving in detail the vast scope of endeavors of the society, was presented to each officer and chairman. Twenty-one prospective members were endorsed for membership.

In closing the workshop Mrs. Sperry said in part: "The world-wide activities of the national society, Daughters of the American Revolution, require the capable and devoted service of all its members."

"The matter of attendance is an important one. The more members a chapter can have who take an active part in the society's objectives, the more influential the chapter will become, and the better will that chapter carry on and accomplish the work of our society. There are some members who just belong, and too few who are willing to carry the brunt of the work of the committees."

"In the words of Emerson, 'You cannot create interest without understanding.' It is my desire and purpose that each and every one attend all the meetings, study the handbook, the booklet 'What the Daughters Do' and the brochure page of instructions. Remembering at all times that 'the devotion of thought to an honest achievement makes the achievement possible.'"

Officers and committee chairmen present were: Mrs. Gladys B. Sperry, regent; Mrs. Courtney Oliver, first vice-regent; Mrs. Thomas Leigh, second vice-regent; Mrs. Shelby Meek, recording secretary; Mrs. Manning McGuire, chaplain; Mrs. Clarence Faulk, counselor and finance chairman. Chapter chairmen present were: Mrs. Fagan Cox, advancement of American music; Mrs. David I. Garrett, American Indians; Mrs. Gilbert Stovall, Americanism and press relations; Mrs. T. O. Brown, American Red Cross; Mrs. Lewis C. Slater, approved schools; Mrs. Charles M. Mitchell, by-laws; Mrs. Ray Junod, correct use of the flag; Mrs. Robert W. Hair, manual; Mrs. Leo Terzia, museum; Miss Eleona Brinsmade, student loan fund; Miss Ina Merle Thomas, filing and lending bureau; Mrs. Gilbert Faulk, radio; Mrs. Ned Leigh, member of year book committee and Mrs. H. READING POPULAR AS SUMMER DAYS GIVE WAY TO AUTUMN

Now that summer vacation has ended and schools have opened for another year, many people are beginning to think about reading for pleasure and for instruction. The Ouachita Parish Public Library has recently added a number of new titles that should appeal to every type of reader.

Constance Fitz Gibbon has written a most interesting story of international intrigue, called "The Arabian Bird." Garland Roark, who wrote the very popular "Wake of the Red Witch" has written another period novel, which promises to be very popular. It is called "Fair Wind to Java." Betty Smith has a new book called "Tomorrow Will Be Better." She has again laid her scene in Brooklyn. Her characters are well done and the book is interesting to read. Hervey Allen has released the third book of his series dealing with life in frontier Pennsylvania. It is called "Toward the Morning" and covers only a few months of the life of Salathiel Albine, whom we met earlier in "The Forst and the Fort" and "Bedford Village." Howard Clark has written a most appealing historical novel, called "The Mill on Mad River." Catherine Pomeroy Stewart has a new book, called "Three Roads to Valhalla," which has a modern setting that will appeal to many readers. Elizabeth Taylor's "A View of the Harbor" is a modern story with an English setting. "Roundelay" by Edna Moser is a story with a southern background, which will appeal to many readers. Rummer Godden has written a most significant novel, called "A Candle for St. Jude." "Roll Back the Sea" by A. Ben Doolaard is a story of the Dutch resistance to the German invasion of 1940. Beverly-Giddings is a story of the Dutch resistance to the German invasion of 1940. Beverly-Giddings has a new historical novel, called "River of Rogues," while Norman Collins has written quite a story of the slave trade, "Black Ivory."

Readers who prefer non-fiction will find books for every taste. Louis Bromfield has a large following, who have been most interested in his latest account of life in the middle west, "Malabar Farm." George Seaver's life of Albert Schweitzer" is considered one of the most significant books of this year. Dreppard has written another book in his series of books about antiques. This one is called "The Handbook of Antique Chairs."

Cook books are always popular. The library has a number of new ones. "America's Cook Book" published by the home institute of the New York Herald Tribune is most complete.

Andre Louis Simon is the author of a fascinating book, called "The French Cook Book." Sheila Hibben has collected recipes from all parts of America and published them in a work entitled "American Regional Cookery." Ruth Holberg has prepared a new book, which should be a boon to the hostess, who has no maid. It is called "Take It Easy Before Dinner" and contains recipes for meals that may be prepared before the guests arrive.

Books of reminiscences are always popular. The library has three new ones. "With Much Love," by Anne Green is a delightful book dealing with her family and her childhood in France. "Throw Me a Bone" by Eleanor Lothrop is an account of the adventures of the wife of an archeologist. "It's Greek to Me" by Willie Snow Ethridge tells of her life in Greece as the wife of an American official. All three of these books are written with humor and are entertaining reading.

Harold J. Laski has given us a marvelous picture of our country in his book, "The American Democracy." This book should be read by every American citizen. R. R. Hawkins has a fascinating new book called "New Houses From Old." Anyone who is interested in remodeling should see this. Two new books of special interest to farmers are "Grain Crops' by H. K. Wilson and "Farm Machinery and Equipment" by H. P. Smith.

All of the books listed above can be borrowed from the library in Monroe or from the Bookmobile. At the present time the library in West Monroe is closed because the building is being moved. Patrons who are registered in West Monroe are urged to check out books from the Monroe collection. Books checked out in West Monroe may be returned to the Monroe library or to Hays dress ship on Trenton in West Monroe.

"Throw Me a Bone" by Eleanor Lothrop is an account of the adventures of the wife of an archeologist. "It's Greek to Me" by Willie Snow Ethridge tells of her life in Greece as the wife of an American official. All three of these books are written with humor and are entertaining reading.

Harold J. Laski has given us a marvelous picture of our country in his book, "The American Democracy." This book should be read by every American citizen. R. R. Hawkins has a fascinating new book called "New Houses From Old." Anyone who is interested in remodeling should see this. Two new books of special interest to farmers are "Grain Crops' by H. K. Wilson and "Farm Machinery and Equipment" by H. P. Smith

All of the books listed above can be borrowed from the library in Monroe or from the Bookmobile. At the present time the library in West Monroe is closed because the building is being moved. Patrons who are registered in West Monroe are urged to check out books from the Monroe collection. Books checked out in West Monroe may be returned to the Monroe library or to Hays dress ship on Trenton in West Monroe.

LITTLE THEATRE CURTAIN CALL

The Monroe Little Theatre membership campaign is shaping up to be the best one in its history. Much enthusiasm and spirit has gone into this year's campaign. Through the courtesy of the Masur Brothers and the artistic arrangement of their advertising manager, Charles Penn, the Little Theatre has a window display in the Palace window. This display features scenes from former plays and art posters made by Joy Harper, Joan Landhy and Mrs. George Lofton.

Speaking of the posters these attractive young ladies have made, they have really put some time and effort into them. Mrs. Lofton's art work shows real talent and imagination.

Mrs. Alice Findlay is being assisted by members of the Newcomers Club at the ticket booth in the Palace. Just to name a few of the Monroe Newcomers who are taking an active interest in Little Theatre work, Mrs. A. V. Miller, Jr., Mrs. T. L. Landhy, Mrs. Herbert Bailey, and Mrs. H. Webster.

Plans for the readings of the first play of the season, are going forward. The readings will be held the latter part of September and the first play will be under the direction of Mrs. Blanche Oliver.

PERSONALITY SKETCH

Alice Findlay, to quote those who have worked with her, "is one of the nicest things that has ever happened to Little Theatre." She came here from Palo Alto with her husband Gil, another ardent Little Theatre trouper. Although she'd never done work in theatrics before, she's been an invaluable worker to the group in Monroe. While she appeared as the matron in last season's "Missing Witness," she was more often seen backstage. Here she fried eggs for "Hay Fever," prompted and did sound effects for "The Front Page," and, in general, did anything that needed doing. She also was seen continually at the ticket booth in the Palace where she worked during the membership drive and which she has handled single-handed since. In fact, right now she is up to her ears in tickets, in charge of the current drive for members which Little Theatre is carrying on during the month of September. In addition to these time-consuming activities, Alice also finds time to hold the responsible office of president in Monroe's Newcomers Club. A native of California, Alice travels with her globe-trotting husband whenever possible. While most of his trips abroad have left her sitting behind, she can tell many interesting tales of their twenty-two months in the West Indies. The Findlays have a daughter, Virginia, who is in high school out in California.

Altrusa Club Meets

Members of the Altrusa Club met in the home of Mrs. Adrienne Carr, 801 North Second street, for the first monthly business meeting of the new year. Plans were made for club projects for the new year.

The Marker committee gave its report on the number of markers sold by members of the club and the amount of money received from these sales. The money made from these sales goes into a revolving fund created by the club to further and strengthen efficient leadership and to help and encourage women to build futures of highest accomplishment in the business and professional world. The club is presently sponsoring a young woman in nurse's training.

The membership and classification committee gave a report of all classifications now open in the club, and members to fill these classifications were voted upon.

After conclusion of the business session, refreshments were served to the following members: Mrs. Adrienne Carr, Miss Agatha Burkett, Dr. Katherine Foster, Mrs. Gordie Phillips, Miss Mary Benoit, Miss Marguerite Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Erlene Adams, Mrs. Thelma Bond, Miss Clydie Cox, and Mrs. Thomas Luckett.

KIMBALL PIANO NO. 500,000!

Join the Monroe Civic Music Association Hear Famous Artists of Concert, Stage and Opera

The Kimball Queen Anne Consolette

AMERICA'S FAVORITE PIANO

There is real significance behind the completion of Kimball piano No. 500,000. The record confirms the overwhelming approval awarded the Kimball piano by concert artists, music teachers, colleges, conservatories and satisfied piano owners the world over.

MORE KIMBALL PIANOS HAVE BEEN BUILT, AND ARE IN USE TODAY, THAN ANY OTHER MAKE.

This accomplishment has been made possible only because Kimball has always meant top dollar value. Constant family ownership and control assure continuation of the policy established by W. W. Kimball, founder of the company, more than three generations ago:

"To offer, always, the value piano of America. A piano unequalled for superb tone, exquisite styling and dependability."

The Kimball piano of today is made of the finest materials by specialized, skilled, piano craftsmen. Built completely (not assembled) in the world's largest piano factory with the care and experience gained only through the manufacturing of 500,000 fine pianos.

When choosing a piano look first for Kimball, the finer instrument that has brought music to millions. Come in — see and try these outstanding pianos preferred above all others. You'll find that in tone, beauty, and value, Kimball pianos lead the field.

Kimball — America's value piano — Since 1857.

Traditional Beauty and Modern Simplicity

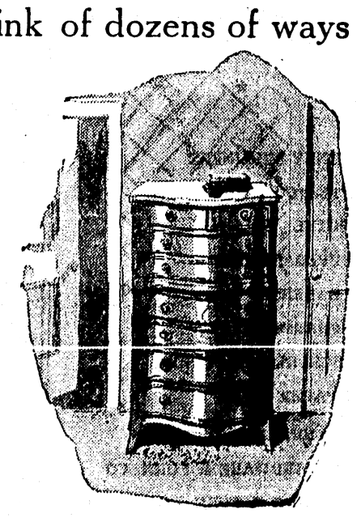

In this Bedroom Furniture by HENREDON

Simplifying of detail and modification of proportion makes this Henredon furniture with its Eighteenth Century antecedents pleasantly amenable to contemporary room arrangement.

There are lovely, graceful chests scaled tall and narrow, low and wide, to fit your particular wall space. Well-built bureaus will take care of your linens or lingerie and at the same time put up a pretty front. The four-poster bed with its canopy frame will lend dignity and colonial charm to your bedroom. When you see these pieces---all rich mahogany---you'll think of dozens of ways to use them. The manufacturers took problems and tastes like yours into consideration when they designed these pieces. "House and Garden" says Henredon "measures up to your decorating demands."

LITTLE THEATRE CURTAIN CALL

The Monroe Little Theatre membership campaign is shaping up to be the best one in its history. Much enthusiasm and spirit has gone into this year's campaign. Through the courtesy of the Masur Brothers and the artistic arrangement of their advertising manager, Charles Penn, the Little Theatre has a window display in the Palace window. This display features scenes from former plays and art posters made by Joy Harper, Joan Landhy and Mrs. George Lofton.

Speaking of the posters these attractive young ladies have made, they have really put some time and effort into them. Mrs. Lofton's art work shows real talent and imagination.

Mrs. Alice Findlay is being assisted by members of the Newcomers Club at the ticket booth in the Palace. Just to name a few of the Monroe Newcomers who are taking an active interest in Little Theatre work, Mrs. A. V. Miller, Jr., Mrs. T. I. Landhy, Mrs. Herbert Bailey, and Mrs. H. Webster.

Plans for the readings of the first play of the season, are going forward. The readings will be held the latter part of September and the first play will be under the direction of Mrs. Blanche Oliver.

PERSONALITY SKETCH

Alice Findlay, to quote those who have worked with her, "is one of the nicest things that has ever happened to Little Theatre." She came here from Palo Alto with her husband Gil, another ardent Little Theatre trouper. Although she'd never done work in theatrics before, she's been an invaluable worker to the group in Monroe. While she appeared as the matron in last season's "Missing Witness, "she was more often seen backstage. Here she fried eggs for "Hay Fever," prompted and did sound effects for "The Front Page," and, in general, did anything that needed doing. She also was seen continually at the ticket booth in the Palace where she worked during the membership drive and which she has handled single-handed since. In fact, right now she is up to her ears in tickets, in charge of the current drive for members which Little Theatre is carrying on during the month of September. In addition to these time-consuming activities, Alice also finds time to hold the responsible office of president in Monroe's Newcomers Club. A native of California, Alice travels with her globe-trotting husband whenever possible. While most of his trips abroad have left her sitting behind, she can tell many interesting tales of their twenty-two months in the West Indies. The Findlays have a daughter, Virginia, who is in high school out in California.

OVER-RICH IN MONUMENTS

PARIS—(AP)—France has more historical monuments than she knows what to do with. The Education Ministry has classified 12,000 cathedrals, chateaux, etc. as historical monuments. Many erstwhile rich Frenchmen, now fallen upon hard times, have been offering their ancient houses to the government, which has been turning them down for lack of funds to keep them up.

WHEN KIDNEYS Work Too Often

Are you embarrassed and bothered by too frequent elimination during the day and night? This symptom as well as irritating passages, Bladder Irritations, Backache, Strong Cloudy Urine, Pains in the Groin, Hips and Lower Stomach, may be due to temporary germ irritation in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. In such cases the very first dose of the scientifically compounded medicine called CYSTEX usually goes to work right now helping you these three ways: 1. Helps nature remove certain irritating germs in acid conditions. 2. Thus helps remove a frequent cause of many aches and pains. 3. By relieving and calming irritated tissues, it helps reduce frequent or smarting passages day and night. Get CYSTEX from your druggist. Give it a fair trial under satisfaction or money back guarantee.

Many erstwhile rich Frenchmen, now fallen upon hard times, have been offering their ancient houses to the government, which has been turning them down for lack of funds to keep them up.

"Sky Hooks" WON'T WORK!

It would be a great thing, in time of emergency, if we could hang up around our shores impenetrable barriers against air attack. A good, strong 100,000-ft.-high screen would add a large measure of security to our feelings. Unfortunately, there aren't any "sky hooks" on which to suspend such a curtain.

But we have a better answer than that in the valiant young men of the Air Force, who fly America's planes and keep 'em flying.

One of the best assurances of adequate Air Power as a force for peace is an informed public. If YOU know what the U. S. Air Force has in the way of men and equipment . . . if you know the missions those well-trained men and swift planes perform as part of the Army-Navy-Air Force team, you can understand and appreciate the splendid job that your Air Force is doing.

Air Force Day, September 18, is your opportunity to get to know your Air Force better. There will be aerial demonstrations and special exhibits in many places. Air Force Bases and installations will have "Open House." Information will be available at Recruiting Stations.

Visit these exhibits. Meet the men of the Air Force and see the fine caliber men they are. Show your personal interest in what they're doing to give America the Air Power it needs.

For AIR POWER IS PEACE POWER!

THIS IS YOUR AIR FORCE—AND THESE ARE ITS MISSIONS

The Strategic Air Command
Conducts long-range bombardment and fighter operations, independently or in co-operation with land and naval forces.

The Tactical Air Command
Equipped with new jet fighters and attack bombers for operation anywhere in the world.

The Air Defense Command
Provides air defense of the U. S. Trains the Air Reserve. Supervises training of the Air National Guard.

The Air Materiel Command
Research and development of new planes, guided missiles, Air Force materiel, accessories and supplies.

The Air Training Command
Provides individual training, except higher education available in the Air University.

The Military Air Transport Service
Provides world-wide air transportation for all departments of the U. S. military establishment, as well as weather and air-rescue service.

"Sky Hooks" WON'T WORK!

It would be a great thing, in time of emergency, if we could hang up around our shores impenetrable barriers against air attack. A good, strong 100,000-ft.-high screen would add a large measure of security to our feelings. Unfortunately, there aren't any "sky hooks" on which to suspend such a curtain.

But we have a better answer than that in the valiant young men of the Air Force, who fly America's planes and keep 'em flying.

One of the best assurances of adequate Air Power as a force for peace is an informed public. If YOU know what the U. S. Air Force has in the way of men and equipment . . . if you know the missions those well-trained men and swift planes perform as part of the Army-Navy-Air Force team, you can understand and appreciate the splendid job that your Air Force is doing.

Air Force Day, September 18, is your opportunity to get to know your Air Force better. There will be aerial demonstrations and special exhibits in many places. Air Force Bases and installations will have "Open House." Information will be available at Recruiting Stations.

Visit these exhibits. Meet the men of the Air Force and see the fine caliber men they are. Show your personal interest in what they're doing to give America the Air Power it needs.

For AIR POWER IS PEACE POWER!

The Strategic Air Command
Conducts long-range bombardment and fighter operations, independently or in co-operation with land and naval forces.

The Tactical Air Command
Equipped with new jet fighters and attack bombers for operation anywhere in the world.

The Air Defense Command
Provides air defense of the U. S. Trains the Air Reserve. Supervises training of the Air National Guard.

The Air Materiel Command
Research and development of new planes, guided missiles, Air Force materiel, accessories and supplies.

The Air Training Command
Provides individual training, except higher education available in the Air University.

The Military Air Transport Service
Provides world-wide air transportation for all departments of the U. S. military establishment, as well as weather and air-rescue service.

The Air University
Higher education in all phases of military aviation.

The Overseas Air Commands
Includes USAF in Europe, Caribbean Air Command, Pacific Air Command, Far East Air Force and Alaskan Air Command.

Count Five!

That's how long it takes sound to travel a mile—a scant five seconds! Your Air Force today has experimental planes that are designed to equal or surpass the speed of sound.

They're not being talked about, but they're being tested and flown. And there are other aircraft, still on the drafting boards or in process of construction, designed for even more outstanding performance.

Air Force research is something that goes on constantly, on drafting boards, in metallurgical laboratories, in wind tunnels. It produces startling new aerodynamic designs, new fuels, more efficient jet engines.

Ever since the days of the Wright brothers, American ingenuity has applied itself to the task of making—and keeping—this nation first in the air. Today this genius for aviation research and development is focused and given direction by the Air Force.

On Air Force Day, September 18, visit local Air Force exhibits and get a glimpse of the progress that is being made in swifter, safer flight. Talk to the eager young men who make up America's modern Air Force. And remember how much depends on their skill. Our national security and the peace of the world are guarded by Air Power.

Count Five!

That's how long it takes sound to travel a mile—a scant five seconds! Your Air Force today has experimental planes that are designed to equal or surpass the speed of sound.

They're not being talked about, but they're being tested and flown. And there are other aircraft, still on the drafting boards or in process of construction, designed for even more outstanding performance.

Air Force research is something that goes on constantly, on drafting boards, in metallurgical laboratories, in wind tunnels. It produces startling new aerodynamic designs, new fuels, more efficient jet engines.

Ever since the days of the Wright brothers, American ingenuity has applied itself to the task of making—and keeping—this nation first in the air. Today this genius for aviation research and development is focused and given direction by the Air Force.

On Air Force Day, September 18, visit local Air Force exhibits and get a glimpse of the progress that is being made in swifter, safer flight. Talk to the eager young men who make up America's modern Air Force. And remember how much depends on their skill. Our national security and the peace of the world are guarded by Air Power.

HANDICAPPED GI'S IN NEED OF WORK

L. W. Dawson States That There Are Many Who Could Be Employed

With experience in the third annual observance of National Employ the Physically Handicapped week, the rise of national employment to new high peaks has improved job opportunities for disabled veterans and other handicapped workers but has not supplied sufficient job openings to assure gainful employment to disabled veterans as rapidly as they are ready for jobs, L. W. Dawson, veterans employment service representative for Louisiana, said Saturday.

Basing his statement on an official report forwarded to all state veterans employment representatives by Perry Faulkner, chief of the veterans employment service, Mr. Dawson said an additional 100,000 job opportunities for disabled veterans will be needed this year. In Louisiana alone, it is estimated that a minimum of 2,000 disabled veterans will seek employment through the Louisiana state employment service this year.

The backlog of disabled veterans seeking employment through the employment offices of Louisiana and in all state employment services throughout the country has been reduced sharply during the last two years, Mr. Dawson said. The national figures show that in 1946 there was a backlog of 262,000 disabled veterans seeking employment. Today this figure has been reduced to 82,000.

While significant progress has been made in the past two years, a word of caution is necessary. There is still a tremendous job to be done in finding employment for the 1,400 handicapped veterans now registered and the several hundred who register each month, together with more than 2,000 in training. This presents a formidable task; however, Mr. Dawson pointed out that the impact of an expanded defense program is now falling upon industry and labor. We are meeting up with realities of a peacetime draft.

These facts point to a coming manpower shortage. With this looming ahead, Mr. Dawson believes that partial answer is the utilization of the many trained and willing disabled veterans seeking their place in the labor force. These men and women are capable of producing in equal competition with the non-disabled when placed in the proper occupations. Industry can call upon these men and women to step into the breach and take their places in the offices and factories of the nation. This would be their second mission, one of production, of work, contributory to their and the nation's economic welfare.

HOUSE COLLAPSES BUT YOUTH IS UNINJURED

MOLINE, Ill., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Much has been said of the house that Jack built. This is the story of the house that Jacks wrecked.

All summer long, Mrs. Clara Krack, 46, widow of a Moline policeman, and her four sons, Ralph, 18, Samuel, 14, Thomas, 13, and Robert 9, labored to excavate a basement under their four-room frame residence.

Finally came time to jack the house up with piling while cement blocks were fitted into place. Friday the family finished supper at an early hour and went back to their toil.

Sam squeezed under the house and put the last piece of piling on which the structure rested, into place.

Then before the horrified eyes of mother and three other sons, the north end of the house collapsed into the basement as the piling gave away.

"Don't worry, mother, I'm all right," Sam called from the cellar. He had escaped injury. The crash wrecked the home. Windows and dishes were broken.

Mrs. Krack said today she intends to rebuild her home over the basement.

RODEO DARING AND SKILL SCENES

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL GETS YEARS' LEAVE

JONESVILLE, La., Sept. 11.—(Special)—Lister Alexander, principal of Manifest Elementary School for the past five years, has been granted a year's leave of absence because of illness by the Catahoula parish school board.

Alexander has been on the faculty of the Manifest school for 10 years but has been ailing for several months. The board granted the leave of absence and notified Alexander that his job would be awaiting him at the beginning of the 1949-50 term if he recovers.

Substituting for Alexander for the 1948-49 term will be J. Eldon Doughty, principal of Block Elementary School the past two years. Doughty has been granted a leave of absence of one year from his Block post.

CUB PACK 34 HAS MONTHLY MEETING

Cub Pack 34 held its regular monthly meeting with 46 in attendance. John Totten opened the meeting by leading the flag ceremony. He displayed a flag given him by his grandfather.

Den reports were made that softball, baseball and vacations had slowed down the den activities during the summer, but they were gathering steam for a full speed ahead. A display of handicrafts, collections and scrapbooks was shown. Den Mother Lea called attention to a collection of insects.

Awards were made to the following: Harry Charles Hebert, bear second silver arrow point; Clarence Johnson, lion silver arrow point; John Totten, lion badge; Glenn Bassett, wolf silver arrow point; Don Medaries, wolf badge, wolf gold arrow point and wolf silver arrow point; Frank Hover, wolf silver arrow point; Robert Smith, bear silver arrow point; Marvin Gibson, wolf badge; Henry Hathorn, wolf badge; Billy Greenlee, wolf badge; Jimmy Lea, lion second silver arrow point. The awards were made by the den mothers.

Cubmaster Lea next presented the cubs their new registration cards. The attendance pennant was returned to Mrs. Ford's den for the largest percentage of cubs and parents present.

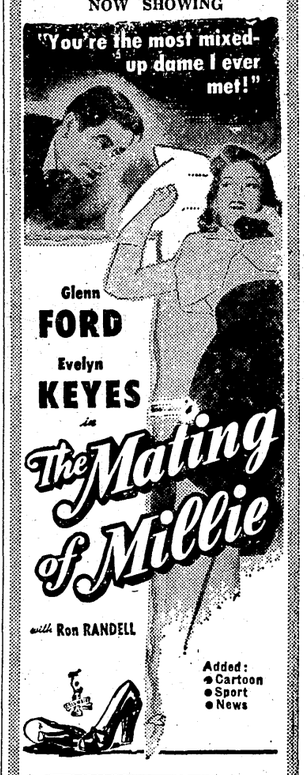

After the discussion of the September theme, "Round-Up and Conservation," the October pack meeting was set for October 14 at 7 p.m. with a film on deep sea-diving as the highlight.

HANDICAPPED GI'S IN NEED OF WORK

L. W. Dawson States That There Are Many Who Could Be Employed

With experience in the third annual observance of National Employ the Physically Handicapped week, the rise of national employment to new high peaks has improved job opportunities for disabled veterans and other handicapped workers but has not supplied sufficient job openings to assure gainful employment to disabled veterans as rapidly as they are ready for jobs, L. W. Dawson, veterans employment service representative for Louisiana, said Saturday.

Basing his statement on an official report forwarded to all state veterans employment representatives by Perry Faulkner, chief of the veterans employment service, Mr. Dawson said an additional 100,000 job opportunities for disabled veterans will be needed this year. In Louisiana alone, it is estimated that a minimum of 2,000 disabled veterans will seek employment through the Louisiana state employment service this year.

The backlog of disabled veterans seeking employment through the employment offices of Louisiana and in all state employment services throughout the country has been reduced sharply during the last two years, Mr. Dawson said. The national figures show that in 1946 there was a backlog of 262,000 disabled veterans seeking employment. Today this figure has been reduced to 82,000.

In Louisiana, the backlog of disabled veteran applicants has been reduced from 3 600 in 1946 to 1,400 in 1948.

While significant progress has been made in the past two years, a word of caution is necessary. There is still a tremendous job to be done in finding employment for the 1,400 handicapped veterans now registered and the several hundred who register each month, together with more than 2,000 in training. This presents a formidable task; however, Mr. Dawson pointed out that the impact of an expanded defense program is now falling upon industry and labor. We are meeting up with realities of a peacetime draft.

These facts point to a coming manpower shortage. With this looming ahead, Mr. Dawson believes that partial answer is the utilization of the many trained and willing disabled veterans seeking their place in the labor force. These men and women are capable of producing in equal competition with the non-disabled when placed in the proper occupations. Industry can call upon these men and women to step into the breach and take their places in the offices and factories of the nation. This would be their second mission, one of production, of work, contributory to their and the nation's economic welfare.

HOUSE COLLAPSES BUT YOUTH IS UNINJURED

MOLINE, Ill., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Much has been said of the house that Jack built. This is the story of the house that Jacks wrecked.

All summer long, Mrs. Clara Krack, 46, widow of a Moline policeman, and her four sons, Ralph, 18, Samuel, 14, Thomas, 13, and Robert 9, labored to excavate a basement under their four-room frame residence.

Finally came time to jack the house up with piling while cement blocks were fitted into place. Friday the family finished supper at an early hour and went back to their toil.

Sam squeezed under the house and put the last piece of piling on which the structure rested, into place.

Then before the horrified eyes of mother and three other sons, the north end of the house collapsed into the basement as the piling gave away.

"Don't worrk, mother, I'm all right," Sam called from the cellar. He had escaped injury. The crash wrecked the home. Windows and dishes were broken.

Mrs. Krack said today she intends to rebuild her home over the basement.

RODEO DARING AND SKILL SCENES

The giant Brahma and rider (above) are in the midst of conflicting ideas but as appears in the photo, the Brahma is losing his stride under the "bulldog" determination of the cowman. The horseman (below) is in the calf roping contest which ends in mere seconds. Lost seconds or a tangled rope will put him hopelessly behind in the running.

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL GETS YEARS' LEAVE

JONESVILLE, La., Sept. 11.—(Special)—Lister Alexander, principal of Manifest Elementary School for the past five years, has been granted a year's leave of absence because of illness by the Catahoula parish school board.

Alexander has been on the faculty of the Manifest school for 10 years but has been ailing for several months. The board granted the leave of absence and notified Alexander that his job would be awaiting him at the beginning of the 1949-50 term if he recovers.

Substituting for Alexander for the 1948-49 term will be J. Eldon Doughty, principal of Block Elementary School the past two years. Doughty has been granted a leave of absence of one year from his Block post.

NEGRO ARRESTED

Edmond Guster, Negro, 84, was arrested near West Monroe by the sheriff's department late Friday and charged with drawing and displaying a dangerous weapon, to wit: a butcher knife. The Negro was released from the parish jail on $250 bond.

CUB PACK 34 HAS MONTHLY MEETING

Cub Pack 34 held its regular monthly meeting with 46 in attendance. John Totten opened the meeting by leading the flag ceremony. He displayed a flag given him by his grandfather.

Den reports were made that softball, baseball and vacations had slowed down the den activities during the summer, but they were gathering steam for a full speed ahead. A display of handicrafts, collections and scrapbooks was shown. Den Mother Lea called attention to a collection of insects.

Awards were made to the following: Harry Charles Hebert, bear second silver arrow point; Clarence Johnson, lion silver arrow point; John Totten, lion badge; Glenn Bassett, wolf silver arrow point; Don Medaries, wolf badge, wolf gold arrow point and wolf silver arrow point; Frank Hover, wolf silver arrow point; Robert Smith, bear silver arrow point; Marvin Gibson, wolf badge; Henry Hathorn, wolf badge; Billy Greenlee, wolf badge; Jimmy Lea, lion second silver arrow point. The awards were made by the den mothers.

Cubmaster Lea next presented the cubs their new registration cards. The attendance pennant was returned to Mrs. Ford's den for the largest percentage of cubs and parents present.

After the discussion of the September theme, "Round-Up and Conservation," the October pack meeting was set for October 14 at 7 p.m. with a film on deep sea-diving as the highlight.

NOW TELL ME, TRACY, WHAT MADE YOU THINK HEELS BEALS WAS UP THERE?

JUST A GOOD GUESS, MILLIGAN.

YOU SEE THE TAXI ACRES O'RILEY AND HEELS BEALS WERE IN, CRASHED JUST 50 FEET FROM WHERE THE SIGN CREW WERE RAISING THIS PAPIER-MACHE BOTTLE.

WHILE WE WERE STANDING HERE, ONE OF THE WORKMEN CAME UP WITH HEELS BEALS' COAT. THE SPOT WHERE IT WAS FOUND WAS DIRECTLY UNDER WHERE THE MOUTH OF THE BOTTLE LAY.

RE-EXAMINATION OF THE SCENE INDICATED HEELS MIGHT HAVE TOSSED THE COAT ASIDE AS HE SLID INTO THE BOTTLE. IT WAS JUST A GOOD GUESS.

AND YOU, MR. SOFT DRINK PRESIDENT, ARE GETTING OUT OF THIS DEAL EASY!

—THANKS TO YOUR SERVICES AS REFEREE.

ALL B. O. PLENTY ASKS, FOR THE USE OF HIS BABY'S NAME, IS EXCLUSIVE DISTRIBUTION RIGHTS NEAR HIS SUNNY DELL ACRES HOME, AND A SMALL ROYALTY.

I WANT THIS BOTTLE MOVED TO MY PLACE. I'LL USE IT AS A STAND FOR SELLING "SPARKLE PLENTY" COL.A!

TARZAN

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

A TRIAL HAD JUST ENDED WHEN TARZAN ENTERED THE ARENA. TARZAN WAS ANNOYED. CROWDS IRRITATED HIM. THROUGH NARROWED LIDS HE SURVEYED THE SCENE.

"I CHALLENGE THE NOBLE LURUL TO COMBAT," RUHTAL CRIED. "SOROS, THE CONDEMNED SHALL FIGHT FOR ME."

"PRINCESS THENA LOVES LURUL," COMMENTED A GUARD. "BECAUSE RUHTAL HAS DESIGNS ON HER HIMSELF, HE'S PLANNED TO HAVE YOUNG LURUL KILLED."

EVEN WITH TWO GOOD ARMS, LURUL WAS NO MATCH FOR THE POWERFUL SOROS.

THE CROWD CLAMORED FOR A VOLUNTEER. BECAUSE OF SOROS' REPUTATION, NO ONE ANSWERED KING RUZUR'S CALL FOR A CHAMPION TO TAKE LURUL'S PLACE.

"THE KING FAVORS RUHTAL," SAID THE GUARD. "HE'LL ALLOW THE CONTEST. LURUL WILL DIE. THEN MAY THE GODS HAVE MERCY ON OUR BELOVED PRINCESS!"
